ONE THOUSAND LIVES ARE LOST BY THE SINKING OF STEAMSHIP

FIVE FROM MINNESOTA ARE SAVED

Rheinholdt Boch and Daughter of Rochester Land at Rimouski.

Evan Kavalske, Who Purchased Ticket at Duluth, Among Rescued.

Herman and Freda Kruse of Rochester Also Among Saved.

Rimouski, Que., May 29.—Three hundred and ninety-nine survivors from the steamship Empress of Ireland have been landed here. This leaves 1,038 of those on board unaccounted for. First reports had it that the collier Storstad had also sunk. These proved to be incorrect. Though her bow was badly damaged, the Storstad was able to keep afloat. Some reports said she had aboard 360 survivors. This, if true, would reduce the death list materially, from more than 1,000 to less than 700. Among the survivors here, thirty-four were from the Empress' second cabin.

Survivors at Rimouski.

Danfort, the Marconi operator of the Eureka, reports the following incomplete list of survivors at Rimouski:

R. H. Perkinson, bedroom steward; W. Rowan, steward; Alex Radley, Cooms, pantry men; A. Reginald, Moreland, White, Grey, James Williams, assistant stewards; E. Foster, A. Elliott, bakers; A. C. Ferguson, S. R. Simon, Nostal, Boeliz, Speddon, Novek; A. W. Gaude, chief engineer; S. Sampson, Swan, tenth engineer; T. Bradwick, sailor; S. Murphy, T. Borah, quartermaster; Duckworth, electrician; J.

EMPRESS OF IRELAND SUNK IN ST. LAWRENCE

Canadian Pacific Steamship Is Rammed By the Collier Storstad Off Father Point and Goes Down Within Ten Minutes.

Estimates of Total Loss of Life Range From 678 to Over 1,100---Twenty-Two of the Rescued Die From Their Injuries.

Rimouski, Que., May 29.—The twin-screw Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland, carrying 1,437 persons, passengers and crew, sank in the darkness before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river near here with a loss of perhaps 1,000 lives. Early estimates of the dead varied from 678 to more than 1,100.

The vessel, bound from Quebec to Liverpool, with 77 first, 206 second, and 504 third class passengers, was cut wide open by the collier Storstad and sank within 20 minutes in 19 fathoms of water. Of those saved the majority appeared to be members of the crew or from the steerage. Many were badly injured and twenty-two died after being picked up.

OCCURRED OFF FATHER POINT.

The crash occurred about 2 o'clock this morning off Father Point, Que., a village brought into prominence when Dr. Crippen, the London murderer, was caught.

The collier, bound for Quebec, struck the Empress of Ireland on the port side about the middle of the ship. She literally tore her way back almost to the liner's screws, leaving a rent through which the water poured in such a deluge that she sank before many of the passengers were aware of what had happened.

BOATS TO THE RESCUE.

Brief calls for help sent out by the Marconi operator were heard by the pilot boat Eureka here, ten miles from the scene, and the Eureka, followed by the Lady Evelyn, a mail tender, put on forced steam and made all speed for the spot.

It was these two boats that found afloat the few lifeboats that were launched from the stricken ship and picked up the survivors they contained. Three hundred and thirty-nine were saved by the Lady Evelyn and sixty by the Eureka. Among those saved was Capt. P. G. Kendall of the Empress.

LAURENCE IRVING LOST.

Most of the first class passengers apparently perished. Among those in the first cabin were Sir Henry Seton-Karr, a noted English lawyer and big game hunter, and Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, and his wife, Mabel Hackney. Of a party of 140 Canadian Salvation Army members on board only twenty were rescued. They had left Quebec yesterday bound for the army's international conference in London.

So quickly did the Empress sink that those passengers fortunate enough to get into the lifeboats found themselves garbed only in their night clothes. No baggage was saved.

IN PITIABLE CONDITION.

The condition of the survivors was pitiable. Some had broken arms and legs, and all had suffered terribly. L. E. Gossetin, a prominent lawyer from Montreal, saved himself by clinging to a raft. When the rescue ships docked here the station platform was converted into a hospital and the townspeople, bringing food and clothing, united to aid the sufferers. Twelve bodies, with faces covered, lay side by side on the wharf. They were passengers who had made the lifeboats but who were fatally hurt.

Wreckage strews the St. Lawrence for a long distance near where the Empress sank. The sun shone brightly during the forenoon. Though the water is

LAURENCE IRVING AND WIFE LOST

Sir Henry Seton-Karr, British Lawyer, Also Perished.

New York, May 29.—Laurence S. B. Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, who perished with his wife on the Empress of Ireland, is an actor, author and manager. He received his education at Marlborough college, College Rollin, Paris, and spent three years in Russia studying for foreign office. His plays are widely known. In 1908 and 1909 he presented sketches of his own authorship in England and America. On May 3, 1910, Mr. Irving addressed the Equal Suffrage league at New York.

Sir Henry Seton-Karr, who also lost his life, is a son of the late George Berkely Seton-Karr. He was born in 1853 and educated at Harrow and at Oxford university. In 1906 he was defeated for member of parliament in the general election. In 1910 he attended a dinner to Col. Roosevelt at London.

CARRANZA IS TOO LATE TO TAKE PART IN THE NIAGARA CONFERENCE

He Would Accept Mediation on International Questions Alone.

Names of New Provisional Government Have Been Selected.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 29.—The mediators have practically decided not to receive the communication from Gen. Carranza, brought here today by Juan Urquidi, the Constitutionalist agent.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 29.—Juan F. Urquidi, private secretary to Rafael Zubaran, the Constitutional agent at Washington, arrived here today bearing a communication from Gen. Carranza to the mediators, saying he is willing to send a representative to the mediation conference to discuss international differences between the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Urquidi said he came merely as a messenger to deliver a communication and not to discuss issues. He expects to return tomorrow to Washington.

When he arrived at the Hotel Clifton he sent his card to Ambassador Da Gama, who sent down word that he was "busy" but did not say whether or not he would receive him later in the day.

What Carranza Says.

PATHETIC SCENES ARE WITNESSED

Wives and Children of Members of Crew at Liverpool.

Liverpool, May 29.—Crowds gathered today at the offices of the Canadian Pacific company awaiting information concerning the fate of the passengers and crew of the steamer Empress of Ireland.

Many of the seamen and firemen of the vessel lived in Liverpool, and pathetic scenes were witnessed when their wives and children turned away with the information that no names of survivors had yet come through.

FLAGS AT LONDON ARE HALF-MASTED

Insurance at Lloyd's on the Vessel Amounts to $2,900,000.

London, May 29.—The flags on the shipping offices in London were half-masted on receipt of the news of the disaster to the Empress of Ireland.

The insurance held at Lloyd's on the Empress of Ireland amounts to $2,900,000. When the first news of the accident arrived a considerable amount of reinsurance was effected at 47¼ per cent.

John Burns, president of the local government board, this morning twice visited the Canadian Pacific railway offices to obtain the latest news about the disaster, and requested to be kept fully informed.

PRESIDENT WILSON: "TAKE THIS UMBRELLA AND YOU WON'T GET WET."

MANY SURVIVORS OF WRECK MAIMED AND ALMOST NAKED

Mere Sprinkling of First Class Passengers Were Saved.

Stricken Vessel Sank to Bottom as If She Were Lead.

Rimouski, Que., May 29.—Probably more than 1,000 lives and surely not less than 700 were lost when the great Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland sank before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river, ripped open from amidships to stern by the Danish collier Storstad.

This was the estimate made this afternoon when the hysterical survivors, many of them pitiably maimed and almost naked, were being brought here. It was based on the fact that the Empress carries 1,437 persons all told, of whom 399 were rescued and landed here by the ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn. The Storstad, at first reported to have more than 300 survivors on board, has sailed for Quebec, after landing only a handful of rescued and a number of dead.

Cabin Passengers Lost.

Of those saved, crew members and third-class passengers predominated. From partial lists available at 2 o'clock it was evident that but a mere sprinkling of the first cabin passengers were saved. Only three names of those in the cabins appeared in the preliminary lists of rescued. They were G. W. G. Henderson and C. R. Burt, address unstated, and Walter Fenton of Manchester, Eng.

The stricken vessel sank as if she were lead. An explosion, apparently originating in her engine room, hastened her end and those persons who were able to make their way from their cabins found themselves on a perilously slanting deck. Many leaped and were drowned. Others were fortunate enough to grasp driftwood or were picked up by lifeboats. It was apparent that the great hole torn in the ship's side admitted such a deluge of water that many must have been overcome in their beds.

Die After Being Rescued.

The rescued, fighting their way to the lifeboats from the careening deck, clinging desperately to the rails or leaping blindly over board, broke their arms or legs or otherwise injured themselves so badly that twenty-two died after being picked up, drowning and in some cases insensible, others were landed here, while the people of the village gathered with medicines and stimulants to relieve their suffering. A special train was made up this afternoon on which many were taken to Quebec and Montreal.

The president of the Canadian Pacific railway issued a statement this afternoon saying that the Empress had sunk within 14 minutes. No one aboard had time to seize his belongings, much less to dress. Those found in the lifeboats were in their night clothes.

Women Suffer Severely.

The women suffered most. Only a few were saved, according to the early lists, and indications are that they lacked the strength to combat conditions which confronted them. There was not, as was the case on the Titanic, time for calm deliberation and rigid observance of the unwritten rule of the sea "women first."

A party of Salvation Army members, en route to London, was almost wiped out. Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, is among the missing, and other prominent persons in the first cabin were unaccounted for late this afternoon.

When the rescue ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn reached the scene shortly before daybreak, they found nine lifeboats from the Empress all jammed full and many of the occupants wounded. It still was dark. Wreckage covered the river everywhere. The Storstad, her bow badly crumpled, was still on the scene picking up the living survivors she could.

Capt. Kendall's Escape.

In one of the lifeboats crouched Capt. Kendall, commander of the Empress, dazed and greatly shaken. He had leaped from the deck and had been picked up by members of his crew. Those in the first and second cabins known to have been saved up to 3 o'clock this afternoon are:

G. W. S. Henderson.
C. R. Burt.
Walter Fenton.
Miss Alice Lee, Nassau, Bahamas.
Miss E. Court, Liverpool, England.
Walter Erginger (this may be J. Erzinger of Winnipeg).
B. Weinruch, Montreal.

Story of a Survivor.

W. Davis of Montreal, one of the few survivors able to talk coherently after first landing, said he and his wife had not been awakened by the impact of the collision and knew nothing of the accident until water began to rush into their stateroom. He helped his wife to the bow deck, but the big ship had already listed and it was impossible to launch a boat. Together they crawled on their hands and knees up the sloping deck of the liner. The vessel was rapidly sinking. His wife was swept from his grasp. Both were carried by the suction into the river. They clung to a piece of wood and were rescued. The wife was unconscious.

J. W. Longley, a rancher of Canford, B. C. calmly sat on the deck rail and went down with the sinking ship. He held his breath, came up, grabbed the side of a lifeboat, held to it and was rescued by the Eureka.

William Measures, Salvation Army bandsman, crept along the rail of the promenade deck and stepped into the water. He swam to a life boat and was rescued.

WASHING WOOLENS.

Colored woolens are usually sent to a professional for cleansing, but this expense may be spared as the process is so simple that all kinds of woolen fabrics, from the heavy tweed knockabout skirt to the dainty shawl of finest wool and delicate coloring, can be renewed at home and with very little trouble, too, says the Kansas City Star. All such large pieces as skirts, small boys' woolen suits, heavy table covers and an entire dress of dark woolen, if very much soiled, should be cleansed with soap bark, because this not only removes general soil, but will also take out grease and other stains.

You put five cents' worth of the soap bark into a gallon of cold water and set it over the fire. When it boils strain the water into a tub and add cold water until comfortable for the hands. Fill up the vessel again and put back upon the stove.

Put the garment to be cleaned into the bath and lift up and down, rubbing bad places until they disappear. Use no soap, borax or ammonia. The soap bark is sufficient to make a good, soft lather. When thoroughly clean wring and rinse in the strained water from the vessel. Shake and hang out of doors to dry. Iron while damp upon the wrong side, and the garment will look like new.

Flannels of delicate colorings, also such fabrics as cashmere, henrietta, merino, challis and the mohair require a bath of soap suds and warm water. Here again the use of ammonia, borax, washing powders, or fluids should be avoided.

Soap jelly kept on hand will save time and is a great convenience. To make it shave pure white soap in the proportion of half a pound of soap to a quart of water and simmer gently until dissolved. When cold it will be a jelly and ready for use. A teacupful added to a gallon of warm water will make a good suds. Half an ounce of alum or one tablespoonful of oxgall is put into the suds. The articles are washed by squeezing through the hands, rubbing as little as possible.

When clean do not wring tightly enough to form wrinkles, and rinse in two waters (warm), each containing from one teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of salt, according to the quantity of water. The former will be sufficient for a gallon of water. Dry in the shade always and never before a fire, because the heat from both sun and fire will make the drying uneven, which will probably result in streaks. The ironing should be done on the wrong side while the material is damp.

Knitted or crocheted shawls will come out like new again if, before being washed, they are carefully folded flat and run all around the edge with a basting thread. Next lay in a pillow slip and baste through and through (like a comfortable), then put into the suds and proceed as before. The pillow slip may be hung upon the line to dry the contents.

Some people put any kind of flannel or woolen goods into a pillow slip and hang up, but this is not the best method of drying, because the weight at the bottom draws the sides of the slip together, preventing the air from entering. The better way, unless the article is basted, is to tie it in a square of cotton loosely and tie up to the line. The air will then reach it between the knots. Quick drying is very necessary in the case of colored woolens of all textures.

A SIGN OF POVERTY.

Philadelphia Telegraph: They were talking about poverty a few evenings ago, when Congressman Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, told of an impression a man from the rural wilds once got on visiting the city.

The ruralite, the congressman said, had gone to the town on a long-anticipated visit, and when he returned he had much to relate of city ways and what he saw.

"They put on all kinds of fancy frills up there," he narrated to the eager crowd at the corner store, "but I don't believe they hev got half the money they pretend ter hev."

"Well, do tell," wonderingly exclaimed one of the eager listeners. "Ye don't really mean it, Jake?"

"Yaas," was the convincing rejoinder of Jake. "One night I went by a house thet looked purty big, but jes ther same, ther people in it were so darned poor thet two wimmen was playin' on one pianner."

NO NEED FOR ALARM.

Washington Times: One of the fair passengers of a yachting party observed that the captain wore an anxious look after some mishap to the craft's machinery.

"What's the matter, Captain?" she inquired solicitously.

"The fact is," responded the captain in a low voice, "our rudder's broken."

"Oh, my, don't fret about that," replied the young woman consolingly. "As it's under the water nearly all the time no one will notice that."

TOWS FIRST CANAL CARGO

Capt. M. B. Glockle of Duluth Commands Honored Tug at Panama.

Writes of Noteworthy Experience to Capt. Swenson of This City.

Capt. M. B. Glockle, a well known marine man of this city who sailed the tug Harvey D. Goulder in the local harbor for several years, has the unique distinction of sailing the tug which towed the first cargo of merchandise through the Panama canal from sea to sea.

In a letter written to Capt. Albert Swenson of the local hydrographic office, Capt. Glockle writes that it was his honor to be able to sail the government tug La Boca, which on May 19, towed three barges of merchandise through the canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The barges carried 1,200 tons of sugar.

Capt. Glockle has been in the service of the canal commission for several months. His home is in Duluth where his family now resides.

COMMUNITY MUSIC.

The Survey: Community music throughout Wisconsin is to be stimulated through systematic effort recently organized by the state university. A forthcoming bulletin of the extension department of the university calls attention to activities showing how music is becoming popularized throughout the United States.

The bulletin instances a "Pennsylvania Oberammergau," at Bethlehem, where a local choir gives "what are conceded to be the finest presentations of Bach's work in this country," and a "Swedish Bayreuth in Kansas," at the town of Lindsborg.

A particularly interesting account is given of the "outdoor sing" at Anoka, Minn., the idea of the supervisor of music in the Minneapolis schools which he carried out at practically no expense. He mounted a box and led a band and 5,000 people who came from neighboring villages in the familiar old songs which every one knows and loves.

Efforts which have been made to control street music are also mentioned. In some cities hand organs are supplied with music for the folk dances which children learn in the schools. In Boston street instruments must have their tunes censored before they are given a license.

The bulletin announces how the university, through its extension division, will assist any community in the state.

It plans to rent at low cost, music for choruses, bands and orchestras, and it is now arranging for "a course in music appreciation, consisting of rolls for mechanical piano players and discs for phonographs, together with a series of 'pictures or studies.'" This material will be sent out in a way similar to that in which traveling sets of books or clippings are now put at the disposal of localities.

The department will further assist in the forming of entertainment courses. Teachers of music will be provided for communities, and the plan will involve circuits of several neighboring small communities, each of which may thus obtain part of the service of a well-equipped musician.

EDUCATION AS GROWTH.

Marietta L. Johnson in The Survey: "I have advised Mary's mother to keep her from school," said the doctor decidedly.

"Why have you done that?" I inquired.

"Mary has a weak heart, and is rather anemic. I think she should live out of doors more," replied the doctor.

"But the children in our school are out of doors more than half the school day.'"

"Well, Mary needs more freedom, she can't sit quietly so long," said the doctor.

"She need not sit quietly except when she is so occupied that she wishes to do so," I protested. "In fact, doctor, she may bring her dolls to school if she wishes. There is absolutely nothing that she has to do at school that may be detrimental to her."

So Mary remained in school at Fairhope.

It was six years ago that I founded this School of Organic Education. I had taught all grades, had had experience as a critic teacher in a city training school, and had been principal of a department in a state normal school. I knew the "system" through and through—had "banked" on it, defended it, worked for it—and finally turned from it.

I came to look at education as a growth, not merely an acquiring of information. I called our school "organic" because its aim is to represent and perfect the entire being, to provide an environment with which to supply the needs of the growing mind and spirit as surely as appropriate food is furnished for the growing body. These ideas have been expressed again and again at educational gatherings.

Why not put a theory into practice and find out whether children would know as much at the end of a given time if their real interests and desires were followed, if the needs of the growing organism were supplied instead of making requirements of the children. Then the child would in a sense give the school the diploma, if the education fulfilled his requirements.

WHEN GAME BIRDS SIT TIGHT.

Guy C. Pollock in the London Globe: Some witchery was at work while we were hunting, for patridges contrived to lie on fallow, on grass, amid the litter of pulled roots until men trod on them. The last bird of the day came when we were walking home across a grass field, grazed bare by cattle, pipes in mouth, guns under arms, chatting with the little retinue.

Suddenly the man next me called, "Partridge, sir," and I looked to see where the bird had gone. So he cried, "Here, sir, here." And there, crouching betwen us on perfectly bare grass, though we were not three yards apart, was a solitary bird. I am ashamed to say that I flushed and shot it, in the savage fury of exasperation which a lack luster day had induced. But the deed now seems to me unmerciful.

No one ever will explain why, on certain days, wild creatures will be found tame and lethargic. There was no apparent cause on this day. There had been no furious storm; there was no high wind to deaden scent or sound. It was a bright day, not at all peculiar. Yet partridges, birds of the real wild, seemed insensible to peril, and sat as tightly as ever they did under September suns. With a third gun they would have paid dearly for it. On the contrary, with a third gun in the field they might have been as wild as hawks, for much may be justly attributed to their cunning. There were, too, huge flocks of wary pigeons, an unusual sight, and large congregations of peewits and many flocks of small birds, with few and reluctant pheasants. There was also a new hare—rara avis, if it had but wings. These things may portend something for the weather prophet. But they did not suffice for a respectable bag.

Whisker Pulling Is Frowned on By District Court Judge.

Awards Charles Pasanen $75 for Loss of Decoration.

A stamp of disapproval has been placed on the pastime of whisker pulling.

And because Peter Papovich, Ely policeman, enjoyed himself by twitching a 10-inch trailer which drooped on the right side of Charles Pasanen's face, a district court has figured that Papovich should pay $75 to Pasanen for his entertainment.

The mustache pulling incident which was the basis of a suit for damages which was tried in Judge Fesler's division of the district court occurred at Ely on Sept. 4, last.

Pesanen claims that after he had been arrested by the officer and had been taken to the jail, Papovich grabbed his prisoner by the mustache and pulled off one side. The other trailer was left intact.

The long flowing mustache had long been cultivated by Pesanen and he started suit for damages against the policeman and his sureties, the Maryland Casualty company. Pesanen asked $500 damages.

New Trial Denied.

A new trial of the replevin action brought by Risto Vukosav against John Kenna and Peter McDonald to recover the possession of certain fixtures and furniture in his saloon at West Duluth has been denied Vukosav by District Judge Ensign. An order denying plaintiff's motion for a second trial was filed yesterday. On Feb. 11 last, a jury, after listening to the evidence, returned a verdict in favor of Kenna and McDonald.

Verdict Will Stand.

District Judge Ensign yesterday denied a motion for a new trial made by the defendant in the suit of Martin Raski against the Great Northern Railway company. On Jan. 28 last, a jury awarded Raski $899 damages against the railroad company for the loss of livestock killed by the company's trains. The railroad asked for a new trial of the action.

TRAINMAN SUICIDE; NO REASON KNOWN

Victor Albinson, Resident of Western Canada, Shoots Self.

Victor Albinson, believed to be a resident of Port Arthur or Winnipeg, committed suicide in his room in a rooming house at 431 Tower avenue some time yesterday afternoon or last night. His rigid body was found this morning by Mrs. Miller, the landlady, as she was arranging the rooms.

Albinson registered at the hotel as "John West" but his identity was discovered by John Greiss, a real estate dealer, who knew the man. Financial troubles are not believed to have been the cause for killing himself, for he had in his pockets $45 in cash as well as a deed to property at Port Arthur. In a pocket was also found a card showing that he was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Albinson had laid down on the bed and, with a 38-caliber revolver, shot himself through the mouth. The bullet had penetrated the brain. The body was removed to the Downs' undertaking rooms.

RAIN QUITE GENERAL OVER NORTH DAKOTA

Moisture Came at Proper Time to Help All Crops.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Most sections of North Dakota were visited by a splendid rain late yesterday afternoon and last night. It kept up till 4 o'clock this morning. In some sections the precipitation ranged from one-third to two thirds of an inch. The heaviest fall was at Langdon, but the rain fell at such widely scattered points as Devils Lake, Minot, Bismarck, Edgeley, Lamoure, Wahpeton, Jamestown, Grand Forks, Hillsboro and elsewhere, making it quite general.

Rain Is Timely.

BULLET WOUND PROVES FATAL

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl, Accidentally Shot Two Weeks Ago Dies.

Was Extracting Cartridge From Old Revolver When Accident Happened.

A bullet wound received while trying to extract a cartridge from a revolver at her home, two weeks ago, proved fatal for Agnes Androsky, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Androsky, 205 South Sixty-sixth avenue west. The young woman died at the Duluth hospital at an early hour this morning.

The girl picked up an old revolver that belonged to one of her brothers. Noticing a cartridge in the gun, she tried to remove it. While doing so, she held the barrel of the gun pointed towards her, and as she was about to "break" the gun to get at the bullet the trigger was touched, setting off the charge.

The bullet struck the girl in the abdomen. An operation to get the bullet was performed almost immediately following the accident, but proved unsuccessful.

The funeral arrangements have not been fully completed. It will be held Monday morning from the Polish Catholic church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Fifth street. Burial will be made in Calvary cemetery.

GARNISHEED MAN GETS REVENGE

Has Former Host Arrested for Blind-Pigging at Boarding House.

Garnisheeing a boarder's wages because he failed to pay his board at the proper time may result disastrously for John Ivanc and his wife. Charles Skerbe, the former boarder, assisted by Stanley Milich, secured evidence for the police which resulted in the arrest of the couple on a charge of "blind pigging."

The specific charge is that Mrs. Ivanc had sold Milich three bottles of beer at 15 cents per bottle on Wednesday afternoon and that her husband had sold Milich seven bottles on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Ivanc entered a plea of guilty of selling the beer while her husband pleaded not guilty. Hearing for the latter was set for Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and at that time the court will sentence Mrs. Ivanc. Each was released on bonds of $50. The complaint was sworn to by Sergt. McDermott.

AFTER ASSAILANTS OF TWO GIRLS

The police so far have failed to catch the assailants of 13-year-old Lillian Jago and Myrtle Gillon, 14 years old, who were attacked on Wednesday evening as the girls were going home along South Fifty-ninth avenue west. The police claim that they have a good description of the men or at least one of them, and say this man will be arrested, if found.

Residents in the southern part of the suburbs are much wrought up over the assault and are bending every effort to secure the arrest of the man or men.

HEAD OFF BURGLARY.

Store Proprietor Interrupts Marauder Who Is Trying to Enter.

The sudden appearance of P. Osanna, owner of a general store at Gary, at his place of business shortly after 9 o'clock last night probably prevented a burglary. Mr. Osanna had just entered the store from the front when he heard the crash of the breaking of a window pane in the rear of the store.

Going back into the store he was just in time to see a man running away from the place, evidently having seen Mr. Osanna's approach. The latter notified the New Duluth police but having only a meagre description of the man they were unable to locate him.

Mr. Osanna had come back to the store to ascertain if there had been much damage by the rain storm.

CONTRACTOR LOSES SUIT AGAINST CITY

Jury Disallows King's Claim After Spending Night on Case.

Deciding in a special finding that the action which George R. King, contractor, brought against the city to collect $2,498.76 alleged to be due him under his contract, was prematurely brought, a jury in Judge Dancer's division of the district court, after deliberating for nineteen hours, returned a verdict for the city this morning. The jury took the case about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and did not reach an agreement until shortly before 11 o'clock this morning.

On Sept. 26, 1912, King was awarded a contract for paving and otherwise improving Twenty-seventh avenue west from Michigan to Fifth streets, an his bid of $16,226.98. In his action against the city he alleged that the city engineer had refused to make a final estimate on the work performed, in violation of the terms of the contract. He claimed that there is still due him $2,498.76.

The city claimed that there was no balance due King, and that if there was, the action to recover was prematurely brought. The municipality also charged that the contractor had used insufficient and defective materials, and that it will cost $3,340 to tear up some of the pavement and relay it. No counter-claim for damages, however, was pressed by the city.

ATTACKS MADE ON STEAMERS

Civilian Mexicans Fire at Ships in Harbor of Acapulco.

On Board U. S. S. California, Mazatlan, Mex., May 28, via wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 29.—Reports have reached the American fleet here of attacks on steamers in the harbor of Acapulco by Mexicans. The violence appears to be the work mainly of civilians, who have been guilty of firing recklessly at the ships in the harbor.

Conditions at Acapulco are described in information conveyed to the American admiral as deplorable.

The Japanese merchant vessels, Seiyo Maru and Kiyo Maru, have left Manzanillo, where it was reported they landed munitions of war for Huerta. The Seiyo Maru sailed for Salina Cruz and the Kiyo Matu for Honolulu.

The gunboat Annapolis, which was ordered to the mouth of the Yaqui river after the French colony at Santa Rosalia had advised Admiral Howard that Americans were in danger of an Indian uprising, has reported that quiet prevails in the Yaqui country.

GRAIN RATES AT LOW EBB

Owners Take Cargoes at 3-4 and 7-8 of a Cent Per Bushel.

The outlook in the grain trade on the lakes is now the poorest ever known. With the excess of available vessels for down lake cargoes, rates have been pushed down to ¾ and ⅞ of a cent within the last few days. Carrying grain at less than a cent is said to be a losing proposition for shippers.

Of five charters just sent down the lakes, but one is said to have been at one cent—the remainder being below. A Duluth to South Chicago cargo went at one cent and another from Duluth to Georgian bay and another from here to Buffalo were carried for ¾ of a cent. A cargo from South Chicago to Georgian Bay will pay ⅞ of a cent.

In most cases, however, the vessel owners have refused grain for less than a cent, but others have accepted cargoes rather than put the boats in ordinary.

Pig iron manufacturers are far from optimistic on the immediate outlook. The statement has been made the last few days by a person well versed in the lake trade that if the May pig iron production is anywhere near that of May, 1913, it will require between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 tons of iron ore to supply the furnaces against the business of the next twelve months.

This authority stated that February and March pig iron production was favorably comparable with the production of the same months of last year. With a fair production of pig iron this month, it is predicted there will be some heavier ore buying next month.

Only an occasional ore cargo is reaching the independent ships, as there is not enough ore to keep the shippers' boats going and is not likely to be for a few weeks. Coal cargoes are not freely offered. A shipper who needed a medium sized boat yesterday found three ready for one cargo.

Even lumber boats are finding a shortage of business. Boats that are upbound have not been placed, although it is thought cargoes will be provided when the boats arrive.

NEW SERVICE FOR VESSEL MEN

Daily Bulletin on Weather Conditions Along Great Lakes.

The central office of the weather bureau at Washington announces that beginning June 1 a special daily weather bulletin for the Great Lakes will be distributed by the naval radio station at Radio, Va. It will be issued a few minutes after 10 p. m., immediately after the bulletin for the North Atlantic ocean and the Gulf of Mexico.

The new service will be of great benefit to the navigation interests of the Great Lakes. The distribution will be broadcast and will be exclusively by the radio naval station. Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron will be designated as the Upper Lakes and Lakes Erie and Ontario as the Lower Lakes.

The daily bulletin will consist of two parts. The first part will contain code letters and figures which will express the actual weather conditions at 8 p. m., 75th meridian time, on the day of distribution at certain points along the Great Lakes. The second part of the bulletin will contain a special forecast of the probable winds to be experienced on the lakes made by the United States weather bureau for distribution to shipmasters by naval radio as above during the season of navigation on the Great Lakes—about April 15 to Dec. 10.

The second part of the bulletin will contain a wind forecast. The forecasts and warnings will be in ordinary language and will cover a period of twenty-four hours from time of issue. At the end of the forecasts a statement will be made in reference to the location and movement of any barometric depression that may be likely to affect the winds over the lakes.

SUES COMPANY FOR FIRE DAMAGE

Homesteader Demands $1,260 From Great Northern for Alleged Losses.

Konstant Laurila, homesteader in section 28, 55-19, started suit against the Great Northern Railway company today in district court to recover $1,260 damages for the destruction of his farm buildings and other property on June 27, 1910, when a forest fire swept across that portion of the county and laid waste everything in its path.

Laurila charges that the railroad company is responsible for the particular fire which swept across his farm and destroyed all improvements and considerable timber. He alleges that it started on the railroad right-of-way and that its origin might be traced to a defective spark arrester on a locomotive and the fact that combustible material had been allowed to accumulate on the right-of-way although a drouth prevailed.

COURTHOUSE IS A STORM CENTER

Three Juries Battle All Night Within While Storm Rages Without.

The courthouse was a storm center last evening.

Outside, one of the heaviest rainfalls on record occurred and inside storms raged in jury rooms where three juries were deadlocked in all night sessions.

The thirty-six men and three officers spent the night in the building.

In the case of Charles Pesanen versus Peter Papovich, the jury agreed about 4 o'clock this morning and returned a sealed verdict to Judge Fesler.

The jury in the case of George R. King against the city remained out until 11 o'clock this morning before an agreement was reached.

In Judge Cant's division, where the case of W. E. LeBlanc against R. B. Knox, the jury brought in a verdict under the five-sixths jury law. It was returned sealed to the court this morning.

All of the juries went out yesterday afternoon.

"RED HELL OF REVOLUTION"

Must Not Be Raised By Soapbox Orators, Says Hicken.

Not Bloody Kind, Explains Orator—Can't Even Raise Collection.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken doesn't wont the government at Washington consigned to Hell, even by a street corner speaker, nor does he want the "red Hell of revolution" raised.

Moses Baritz of Winnipeg, Socialist orator, says the commissioner of public safety doesn't understand what is meant by the "red Hell of revolution."

Last night it was reported in The Herald that one of the soapbox orators at Second avenue west and Superior street had urged his hearers to "raise the red Hell of revolution." His hearers didn't seem disposed to raise any kind of Hell, and didn't even raise a good collection when the hat was passed a few minutes later.

This morning, Commissioner Hicken said he would instruct the police to watch the meetings and forbid the use of such violent language by the soapbox orators.

Moses Baritz appeared at The Herald office this morning and cast some reflections on the broad mindedness of Commissioner Hicken. He thought Mr. Hicken didn't grasp the meaning of the word revolution, and said that it did not refer to throat cutting or blood letting, but was a sociological and biological phenomenon which was advocated. He was willing to debate with the commissioner on the meaning of the term, and said he was going to speak again tonight at the same place.

Mr. Baritz also rather doubted the accuracy of the Herald report, but would not flatly contradict it. "I didn't hear the speaker ahead of me say anything about the 'red Hell of Revolution,'" he said, "but he may have said it." A Herald reported vigilently affirmed that he did say it, that he heard him say it, and his friend heard him say it.

Mr. Baritz doubted the commissioner's right to interfere with free speech, and intimated that more violent things have said right on the floors of congress. He thought the people had a right to hear just as strong language as was heard in congress.

Mr. Baritz admitted that anybody who thought that the red Hell of revolution should not be raised, could interrupt him tonight and dispute the matter then and there, but as long as this red Hell was a harmless, bloodless, peaceful, social revolution, and not a French Reign of Terror, he didn't see why the commissioner of public safety had any right, moral or legal, to horn into the controversy from behind the blue-coated arm of the law. There she stands.

It was believed at the time that the heroic action of his playmate, Carl Hanson, 12 years old, had saved his life.

LANGLEY GETS VINDICATION

Crude Flying Machine Is Taken Aloft By Glen Curtiss.

Elmira, N. Y., May 29.—The theory of Dr. Samuel Pierre Pont Langley, who proclaimed to the world that he had solved the problem of the air vessel years before the upper elements had been successfully navigated by a a heavier-than-air machine, was vindicated at Hammondsport yesterday, when Glenn Curtiss, the aviator, went aloft in "Langley's Folly."

The crude flying machine, which fell into the Potomac river when Dr. Langley, its inventor, attempted to fly in it, and which later was consigned to the Smithsonian institution at Washington, remained in the air long enough to demonstrate its practicability.

The old relic was wheeled from its hangar, the pilot climbed into the seat and was away under much the same conditions as would prevail in a flight of the latest model aeroplane. The flight was short but successful.

The Langley machine but little resembles the trim and powerful modern flyers, but the "old junk" came into its own, giving its aged inventor his deserved place among the pioneers of aviation.

AIMED AT PRICE DISCRIMINATION

House Perfects Provisions of the Anti-Trust Measure.

Washington, May 29.—Provisions aimed against price discrimination and against exclusive agency contracts were perfected by the house yesterday in the consideration of the Clayton bill to supplement the anti-trust laws. Scores of amendments designed to alter the measure as framed by the judiciary committee were voted down. Three of the twenty-two sections of the bill were agreed to during the day's debate.

The first section of the bill, dealing with terms and definitions, was passed without objection. The second, forbidding price discrimination between purchasers of the same commodities in the same or different communities, was attacked by Representative Graham of Pennsylvania, who offered several amendments. All were defeated.

The section making it unlawful for persons controlling mines or mine products to refuse to sell to responsible persons, after being amended so as to apply to oil and gas wells, was passed over to allow the judiciary committee to perfect the new provision.

The principal contest of the day was over the fourth section, making it unlawful for wholesalers to lease or sell goods with a condition that the purchaser shall not deal in the goods of competition. Representative McCoy of New Jersey tried unsuccessfully to limit the prohibition to such understandings as are made "with the intent of establishing a monopoly or destroying the business of a competitor."

NO INDICTMENTS TO BE RETURNED

Patmont Unable to Furnish Evidence for Identifying Captors.

Danville, Ill., May 29.—No indictments will be returned by the grand jury before that body adjourns as a result of the story told by Rev. Louis R. Patmont of his being kidnaped at Westville, March 31, during a local option fight, and of his imprisonment by his captors until last Saturday, when he was found in an old farm house near Columbia, Ill.

Rev. Patmont has been unable to furnish any evidence by which his captors might be identified.

The place where he was captured in Westville is half way between the depot and an interlocking tower each but one block distant, yet neither the station agent nor the man in the interlocking tower saw any handcar pass on the railroad tracks the evening he is alleged to have been kidnaped.

TO RAISE STANDARD OF ITS COLLEGES.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (South) voted at its final session yesterday to raise the standard of the colleges in the South controlled by the church. The meeting will meet May 20, 1915 at Newport News, Va.

It was decided hereafter schools must have endowments of $100,000 and an annual income of $12,000 each. The commissioners emphasized their desire to strengthen the church schools, declaring a higher standard meant better instructors and more satisfactory results generally.

WILL PRINT PAPER IN AIR

Duluth Aviator in Novel Aerial Stunt at Billings, Mont.

Papers Will Be Dropped From the Air to Spectators.

For the first time in history a miniature copy of a daily newspaper will be printed 1,000 feet above the ground in an airship at Billings, Mont., tomorrow, Memorial day, when Harry Webster, formerly of Duluth but now an airman on the west coast, will take Raymond Richards, a reporter of the Billings Evening Gazette for a long flight. Richards will be equipped with a small printing press and get out a complete edition including photographs.

Webster's flight and the publication of the "Aerial edition" of The Gazette will be the special feature of the Memorial day program at Billings and the opening of the baseball season.

As fast as the sheets are printed, Richards will drop them from the biplane. Four of them will contain orders for premiums. The premium sheets will be dropped as nearly as possible to the crowd. A sufficient number of copies of the paper will be run off to provide every one in the crowd with a paper.

HARRY WEBSTER.

While the copies from the press are raining down, Webster will demonstrate the latest feats of flying including spiraling from an immense height, volplaning to within a few feet of the ground, and circling aloft at an angle of more than forty-five degrees.

Webster lived in Duluth for several years and left less than a year ago for Los Angeles, Cal., where he took a course in aviation at the Curtiss school. He broke several records in his test flights and his early exhibition flights have put him in the front rank of the aviation fraternity. During this summer he will give exhibitions at parks, fairs and various amusement places and may pay a visit to Duluth in the near future. From his record so far it looks as if he would become one of the foremost aviators in the country.

Clippings from the Billings papers and a letter containing information of the flight have just been received by Fred and Victor Webster of Duluth, brothers of the aviator.

CITY TO INSTALL ANOTHER FOUNTAIN

Comfort Station Also Is Planned for Sixteenth Avenue.

A drinking fountain will be installed by the city at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Superior street within a few days. The city officials have had a number of requests for this convenience, and Commissioner Merritt has made plans to accede to the demands.

A public comfort station for this locality has also been planned. According to the plans of Harry Cleveland, superintendent of parks, the station, if established, will be located on Sixteenth avenue, a short distance above Superior street. It is proposed to locate it in the street, which will probably never be used for traffic, owing to its steep grade. The comfort station will probably be built this year.

West End DIRECTORS FOR GAMES

Miss Culkin Arranges to Organize Play for West End Children.

Systematic Games for Boys and Girls Are Being Outlined.

Organized play under the supervision of competent directors is assured for children of West end and West Duluth. Miss Margaret Culkin has completed arrangements so that this may be realized for the playgrounds at Thirtieth avenue west and at the playgrounds at Fifty-second avenue and Wadena street.

The supervised play at these grounds will be started on June 15. These grounds will be used exclusively for girls during the forenoon and for boys in the afternoon.

Miss Culkin assisted by young women of the city, who have already volunteered their service, will have charge of the play for girls. Classes in infant welfare will be conducted, kindergarten games played, sand boxes provided, basketry classes taught, and other games such as basketball, volley ball and the like will be played.

Miss Culkin will spend part of her time at each of these two grounds. The grounds will be open for the young children every day and with the exception of Sundays the instructors will be present.

The boys will be under the care of Alex McKenzie, a young Duluth man who has had considerable experience in similar work. Under his direction various kinds of games will be played by the boys. These will include various kinds of track team work, baseball, basketball, handball, tennis and other games.

The house on the Thirtieth avenue playground will be provided with awnings and will be used by the various organized classes. Co-operation of the park department and playground association has been assured the social center director.

Later in the summer it is proposed to organize classes for the evenings. These will be for the older boys and girls and especially for young working people. The idea is to carry on the social center work, established during the last year in the school building, in the playgrounds of the city. The outdoor venture will be tried out only in the two grounds in the western end of the city this year and if proved successful, similar work will be taken up at other playgrounds of the city next year.

Farmers Will Meet.

The Farmers' and Producers' club of Hermantown will hold its semi-monthly business meeting Monday evening. Co-operation in farm work, and good roads and bettering of market facilities will be the principal subjects to be discussed by the members.

WILL PRESS VOTE ON CANAL TOLLS

Effort to Keep Bill Continuously Before the Senate.

Washington, May 29.—Administration leaders have announced that, beginning Monday, they would make an effort to keep the tolls exemption repeal bill continuously before the senate until a vote is reached upon the bill, and all the proposed amendments and substitutes.

According to the plan of Senator Simmons, who is leading the fight for repeal, all attempts to lay the bill aside for other measures, will be opposed. If opponents of repeal move that it be sidetracked, temporarily for appropriation or other bills, a vote will be forced on that motion. It is believed that the senate will soon tire of speeches on tolls exemption when this plan is put in operation, and many senators are hopeful that the vote will not be long delayed.

CLAIMS INFECTED CATTLE ARE SOLD

North Dakota Veterinary Accuses Illinois Livestock Dealer.

Bismarck, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Illinois' lax laws relative to the sale of infected cattle is giving North Dakota livestock officials considerable trouble and Dr. W. F. Crewe, veterinarian of the board, is making an investigation with a view to prosecuting some one.

Dr. Crewe has found evidence, he believes, that a livestock dealer in Illinois makes a practice of purchasing infected cattle from other districts, shipping them to Illinois, where he dopes them up with tuberculin so successfully that veterinarians are unable to detect the presence of the disease.

"Doped" Cattle Sold.

The cattle then are sold and shipped to other states and it is maintained that some of the cattle have been shipped to this state.

Under the plan used the dealer compels the purchaser to ship the cattle in his own name and hence the innocent purchaser becomes liable to prosecution under Federal laws governing the transportation of infected cattle.

Dr. Crewe anticipates success in securing evidence that will warrant action by Federal authorities.

Dow Begins Sentence.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—A sentence of from eight to twelve years at hard labor in the state prison, was begun yesterday by Stephen R. Dow was convicted of defrauding the Franklin, Ind., and Algomah Mining companies.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

GOVERNOR IS TARGET OF CLURE'S HOT SHOT

Lee's Campaign Manager in Speech Charges Brewery Control.

Gives Alleged Incidents as Proof of His Assertions.

W. O. Clure of Minneapolis, manager of William E. Lee's campaign, remained in the city last evening instead of accompanying Mr. Lee to Crookston, in order that he might deliver the speech he planned to make yesterday noon at the Commercial club, but which he was requested to leave unspoken there. In the speech, which was given before a small audience at the St. Louis hotel last night, Mr. Clure attempted to prove that Governor Eberhart is brewery-controlled, and related several instances which he claims are authoritatively given him, and which he believes would tend to establish the charge.

It was because the address was distinctively political that the club officials refused to permit its being delivered in the club rooms, the Commercial club being entirely non-partisan, having nothing whatever to do with politics, and being established and maintained wholly for business matters.

The first instance Mr. Clure cited was in connection with the application of citizens of Staples to establish a new county to be called Elliott, taking territory from Todd and Cass counties, and the application of Pine River citizens for the establishment of Clover county to take territory from the same counties. Mr. Clure used the name of George F. Cashman, an attorney of Staples, as authority for his statements in this connection.

Mr. Clure, on the strength of the statements of Mr. Cashman, said that after a hearing by the governor of the opposing delegations in this matter, Cashman was informed that the governor had pledged his support to the Pine River delegation and that the efforts of the Staples men would be futile "unless he could reach some of the state's invisible forces."

After the second hearing, said Mr. Clure, Mr. Cashman, nettled at the governor's apparent indifference, got a letter of introduction to Fred W. Zollman, who, according to Mr. Clure, is "generally known as the chief counsel of the brewery interests and of the Minnesota State Brewers' association." Mr. Cashman, said Mr. Clure, also went to see Louis R. Frankel of St. Paul, secretary of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and stated his case, calling attention to the fact that Staples was a railroad town supporting a dozen thriving saloons, while Pine River had only two small liquor stores, this, according to Mr. Clure, occupying Mr. Frankel's attention chiefly. Mr. Frankel, said Mr. Clure, called up the governor at once told of his conversation with Mr. Cashman and said:

"We are with Cashman in this matter, and you must help us out."

Staples Man Reassured.

The conversation with the governor over, Mr. Clure says, Mr. Frankel assured Mr. Cashman that he would be taken care of. Then, according to Mr. Clure, Mr. Cashman went to Mr. Zollman's office, but as the latter was out the only one to talk to was Edwin M. Parrish, Mr. Zollman's secretary, and after telling about the difference in the liquor business in the two places, was assured by Mr. Parrish that the matter would be attended to and a decision rendered in favor of Staples.

Some weeks later, Mr. Clure declared, Mr. Cashman was notified by a friend that Assistant Attorney General Stevenson was about to file an opinion sustaining the validity of the Pine River petition.

Mr. Cashman went at once to St. Paul, said Mr. Clure, and got Mr. Zollman on the phone. The latter assured Mr. Cashman that Staples would be looked after; that he was to have lunch with the governor on the following day and would then take the matter up with him. On being informed by Mr. Cashman, Mr. Clure said, that that would be too late as the opinion was to be filed the following morning. Mr. Zollman said that the governor was at Lake Minnetonka and added, according to Mr. Clure, "I'll have him come right in."

Later, according to Clure, Mr. Zollman called Mr. Cashman up and, saying that the governor was with him, expressed regret that nothing could be done as the assistant attorney general general had already rendered his opinion. The governor, Mr. Clure asserts, then came to the phone and reiterated what Mr. Zollman said, and also expressed his regret, adding that Mr. Stevenson had refused to withdraw or modify his opinion.

Suppression of Pussyfoot Raids.

Mr. Clure also asserted that the suppression of the famous "Pussyfoot" Johnson liquor raids, and the presidential order restricting "dry Indian territory" were the results of a visit of Governor Eberhart to President Taft, he and Mr. Zollman making that trip together especially to stop the raids on liquor interests.

The speaker also charged that on Sunday and Monday of this week twenty-seven distributing representatives of the John Gund Brewing company of La Crosse were in secret conference in St. Paul, as he says, "discussing the desperate straits of the governor's campaign and planning methods of aid."

"The conference," he added, "was held in response to a cry for help from the Eberhart camp."

George Authier, secretary to the governor, and manager of his campaign, on being told of the statement made by Mr. Clure, issued a formal statement from the capitol branding the Lee manager's statement as a lie and part of a dispicable effort to discredit Governor Eberhart. Mr. Authier says:

"Realizing the sentiment that exists in favor of the primary, the opponents of Governor Eberhart have already inaugurated a campaign of juggling and misrepresentation in order that the people may be lulled into forgetfulness.

"The information that comes to us is to the effect that redoubled efforts are to be made to misrepresent the governor and that legal authorities have been consulted with a view of determining how far the opposition may go and still keep within the law of libel. While it is hardly conceivable that any group of men would resort to methods so despicable, credence is given the story by recent developments in the campaign. The statement is absolutely false as to letter and spirit and was so palpably so that the Duluth Commercial club refused to allow Mr. Clure to misuse the courtesy that it had extended."

BOY IS DROWNED IN LAKE BEMIDJI

Nymore, Minn., Youth Falls Between Logs Thirty Feet From Mill.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Neiman of Nymore, slipped while running over a pile of logs in Lake Bemidji Wednesday afternoon and fell between the logs. He was stunned and drowned before assistance reached him.

Twelve men working under William Sexon, foreman of the logging gang, heard screams, and running to where the boy went down, secured his body by the use of pickaroons. Sexon pulled the body from the water and gave it to John McCormick.

Pulmotor Could Not Save.

Running over logs which were scattered and easy to sink, and carrying the body of the dead boy over his shoulder, McCormick made a fleet trip across the logs and gave the body to C. L. Isted and Dr. Gilmore, who rushed it in an automobile to St. Anthony's hospital, where the pulmotor was used without avail. The drowning occurred thirty feet east of the Crookston Lumber company dock.

BELTRAMI AVENUE MAY BE IMPROVED

Bemidji Thinking of Paving One of Its Thoroughfares.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pavement on Beltrami avenue, from Seventh street to a point opposite the beginning of the state normal site, may be laid this summer, following the appeal of W. B. Stewart to the members of the city council this week. When the normal site in Bemidji was selected, it was verbally agreed that the city would lay pavement from the business district to the site on at least one street. Since Beltrami avenue also leads to the county fair grounds, it is held the most probable.

In consideration of an admission that the securing of an appropriation for the erection of the building will be the hardest work yet attempted for Beltrami county, Mr. Stewart, who is county superintendent of schools, and the city council have taken this precaution that there may be nothing but the election of a properly disposed senator to stand in the way of Beltrami getting the normal school appropriation.

White Way Bids.

Bids this week were received for the construction of a "white way" ornamental boulevard lighting system. The average cost of each post was found to be about $30.

Although advertisements for bids had gone out over the entire country, with specifications for a fire truck, R. G. Browning of Minneapolis, who would be willing to sell a Seagrave car to the city, was the only bidder to appear. The purchase of a truck will probably be made in two weeks.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The presentation of "The Pageant of the Northwest," scheduled for last night, had to be abandoned until tonight because of heavy rain. It will be the concluding feature of the annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Historical society.

The final sessions of the society yesterday were marked with interest. In the teachers' department, Karl F. Geiser of Oberlin, Ohio, was elected chairman; and Howard C. Gill of Milwaukee, was elected secretary and treasurer.

The resolutions adopted by the association express confidence in the outlook for the future success of the organization.

STEEL PLANT SUBURBS

INFLUX TO MODEL TOWN

More Than 100 Modern Houses Ready for Steel Plant Employes.

Seventy-Five Other Residence Buildings Are Being Constructed.

On Monday the big influx of new residents to the Model City is expected to begin. On that day and during next week it is expected that fully fifty families will take possession of homes rented from the Minneapolis Steel company.

More than 100 buildings for residential purposes are now ready for occupancy. These buildings have all been rented or leased to employes at the steel plant. Preference has been given to the chief mechanics and foremen.

The buildings range in size from five to seven rooms. Some of the buildings are apartment houses which are arranged for from two to four families. The rent of the homes range from $15 to $25, according to size.

All modern conveniences have been provided for the buildings. Each house has been piped for water and gas, wired for electricity and has a basement and bath.

While the streets are as yet in poor condition, work of grading and paving is progressing rapidly. It is expected that the principal streets will be fully paved before the middle of the summer.

Seventy-five other buildings for residential purposes are now in various stages of construction. All of these will be completed and ready for families to move into by Aug. 1.

PLAN FOURTH CELEBRATION

Baseball Games, Athletic Contests and Fireworks Suggested.

New Duluth and Gary Will Make Merry on Holiday.

New Duluth and Gary will probably have a joint Fourth of July celebration this year. Merchants of the two suburbs are planning on such an affair and within the next week a meeting of all those interested will be called to decide on the plans.

According to the program being outlined by some of the leading merchants, it is proposed to have one or two good baseball games, athletic events for men, women and children, and some feature such as a balloon ascension, or if possible, an aeroplane flight.

Grounds located midway between the suburbs will be recommended as the place for holding the celebration. At this place it is said a display of fireworks could be given in the evening without danger to any adjoining property. Men back of the proposed celebration say that from $200 to $500 would be sufficient to make the affair a success, and that this amount could be easily raised among the suburbanites.

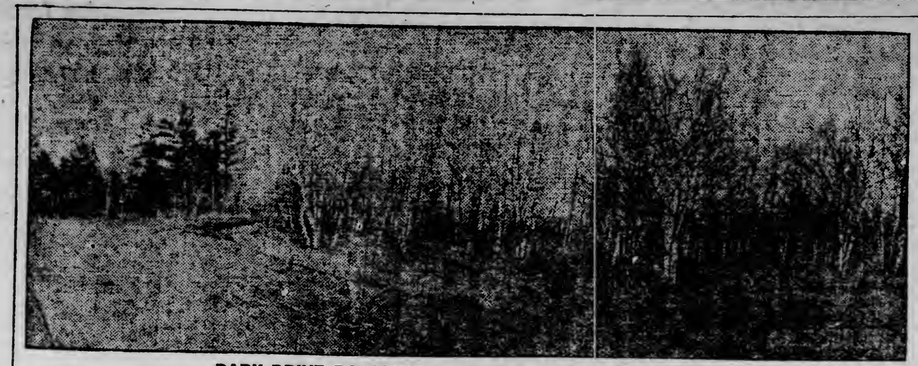
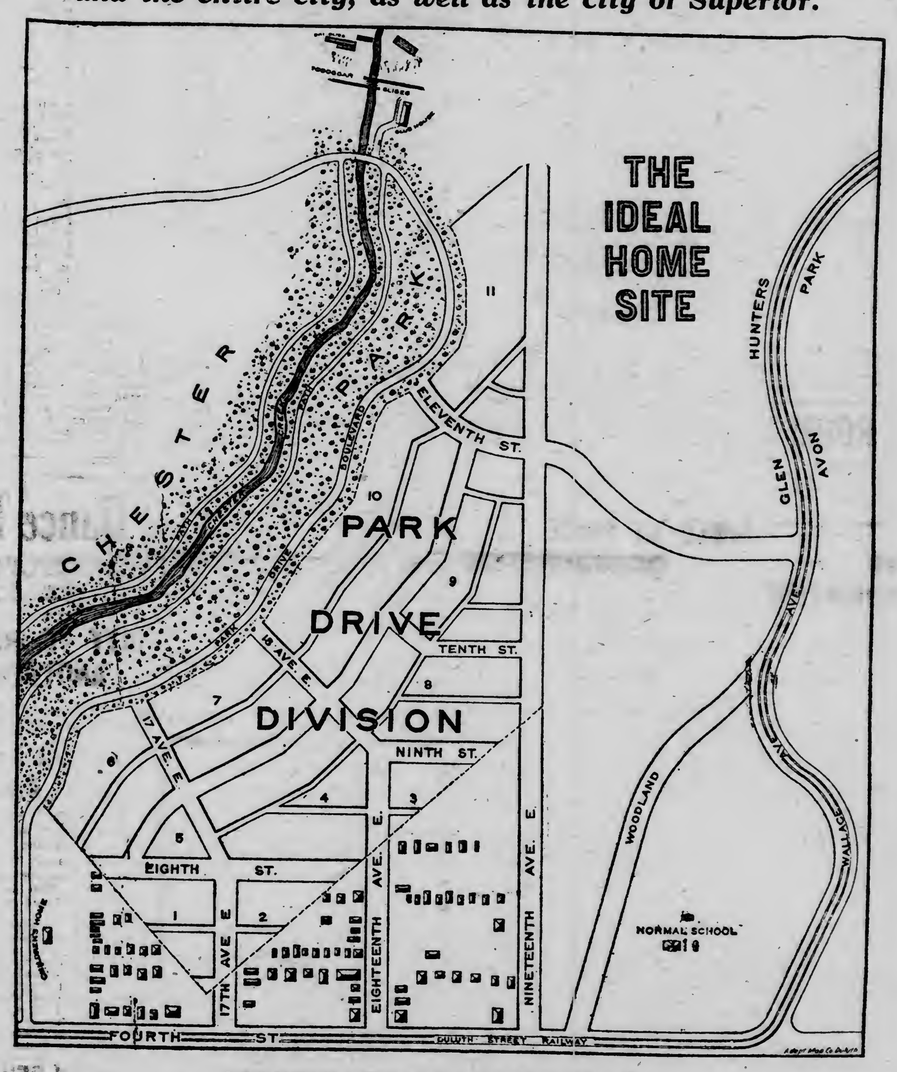
PARK DRIVE DIVISION



PARK DRIVE BOULEVARD ON WHICH MANY LOTS FRONT

This attractive Division is positively the best proposition offered the public in years—it adjoins Chester Park on the East for a distance of half a mile—all lots command a full view of Lake Superior, the harbor and the entire city, as well as the city of Superior.



LOCATION OF PARK DRIVE DIVISION

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

A number of large lots along the entire westerly side of the property front on the magnificent boulevard drive and Chester park. No assessments for maintaining the street on these lots. Every lot is accurately surveyed and plainly marked with iron monuments. Application has been made for extension of gas and water mains through the entire division, the same to be made this summer. All streets and avenues are now being graded and sanitary sewers are to be constructed to drain all lots below Tenth street.

HOW TO REACH PARK DRIVE

Take any car line in the city, transfer at Third avenue west and Superior street to any East Fourth street car. During the busy hours of the day cars run every five minutes. Get off at Seventeenth avenue east and go north three blocks and you are on the property.

COME EARLY---GET THE BEST

This close-in addition completely solves the most serious problem of the homeseeker whose business demands that he be within the easy reach of downtown. Being but a short distance from the car line, and but 10 minutes from the business district for a single fare, a home on one of these choice lots gives the owner all of the advantages of the city with the disagreeable features excluded. Don't let a real opportunity slip by without at least investigating. These offerings are so unusually attractive that they should require no urging or coaxing on our part.

PRICES AND TERMS

Warranty deed. Torrens Title. A special discount of 10% on the first 50 lots sold. These lots will be sold on easy payments without interest until Jan. 1, 1916. 10% discount for all cash, 5% discount for one-half cash; cash payments 10%. THINK SHE IS MISTAKEN

Duluthians Want Impartial Investigation for Minimum Wage Report.

Cost of Living Claimed to Be No Higher Here Than in Twin Cities.

Many public-spirited Duluthians are taking exception to the statement of Miss Eliza P. Evans, secretary of the state minimum wage commission, that the cost of living is higher in Duluth than in the Twin Cities.

They declare that it is casting a reflection upon Duluth which it does not deserve and which is not founded on fact. They assert that an impartial investigation would disclose that Miss Evans is mistaken. They do not think that she is prejudiced against Duluth because she is a resident of St. Paul but that her survery has been too superficial as yet to enable her to ascertain the entire conditions.

Miss Evans is in the city in connection with her position on the minimum wage commission and has been quoted as saying that as the cost of living here is higher than in Minneapolis and St. Paul, the commission should recommend a higher minimum wage for Duluth than for the Twins.

She stated that she had guaged the costs by answering and inserting advertisements in the newspapers. Duluthians say that this is an unfair way of securing this information. They point out that comparatively few employes who would be affected by the minimum wage scale secure their rooms or boarding places through this medium, as it is chiefly the higher-priced rooms that are advertised. They contend that if Miss Evans were to work along practical lines she would get this information by interviewing the employes of various factories and establishments, learning first hand what is being paid for accommodations. They add further that Miss Evans has apparently forgotten to take into consideration, in reaching her conclusion, the great percentage of employes living at home, none of whom would be affected by the alleged high room rents.

These Duluthians are emphatic in the declaration that Duluth is not afraid to face the facts, but that the facts must be facts and not the conclusions of a hasty and superficial inquiry. They are willing to have an investigation made by trained and disinterested persons, from outside the state if necessary. They are confident that the results of such an investigation would not place Duluth in an unfavorable light as compared with the Twin Cities.

When Dr. B. M. Rastall was industrial commissioner of the Commercial club, he made an investigation of the comparative cost of living in several cities, including Duluth and St. Paul. St. Paul may be taken as typical of Minneapolis also. He found that rents in St. Paul averaged some higher than in Duluth, coal and gass for heating and cooking higher also; gas and electricity for lighting, a great deal higher and food nearly the same.

CROP ROTATION IS BECOMING POPULAR

Benefits of Following System in North Dakota Are Shown.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Increasing the fertility of the soil, clearing the fields of noxious weeds, while at the same time increasing the yields and the net profits per acre is possible in North Dakota through crop rotation according to the eighth annual report of the superintendent of the demonstration farms.

The report shows that in the eight years the demonstration farms have been conducted net profits have been made each year except 1910, when a loss was reported of $1.49 per acre. There are now twenty-five of these farms widely scattered over the state.

Farmers Adopting Idea.

The farmers in their immediate vicinity are adopting the same system and are convinced that scientific crop rotation gets results and should be widely adopted.

In 1906 the profits per acre were $3.77; in 1907, $2.15; in 1908, $2.28, in 1909, $4.25; in 1911, $3.92; in 1912, $6.81; and in 1913, $3.11. These figures are net profits after estimating every cost of production.

The hard wheat yields for 1913 were 16¾ bushels per acre, the durum wheat 20 1-6 and the oats 32-38 bushels. The profit on the hard wheats were $3.51, on durum, $6.32; on oats, $1.48; on potatoes, $26.65 per acre.

CONTEST FOR AMATEURS

Trios and Quartets Will Warble at Empress for $20 Prize.

Tonight is the night that Duluth warblers will be given a chance to warble to their hearts' content and also to the content or discontent as the case may be, of the Empress theater patrons.

The quartet and trio singing contest will be held at both shows tonight and from the way in which the seats are selling it looks as though all the friends of the amateurs will be present.

This form of entertainment has been popular in the east, where it goes under the name of a song publisher's contest, but as Duluth is too far away from the song centers, local talent fills the bill. Manager Abrahamson also announces that the quartet or trio which wins the prize will be offered an engagement at the Empress on the regular vaudeville bill. The prize for the best singers is $20 in gold. It is not yet too late to enter the contest and any local trio or quartet, the members of which really believe they can sing, may enter their names at the box office.

Woman's Realm

In an address last night before the conference of the American Library association held in Washington, D. C., Miss Agnes Van Valkenburgh of the New York Public Library school said the novel should "hold the mirror up to nature," adding that many recent works of fiction are like the tailor's triple mirror in which a stout woman sees several reflections of herself, all painful.

Miss Van Valkenburgh made a plea for a fuller consideration of books at library meetings and less exhaustive discussions of the machinery by which books may be circulated. She said as fiction is the largest class drawn from public libraries it is fitting that some consideration be given to it. Essays have been written on the subject of fiction reading, furious battles have been waged over the fitness of certain books for library book shelves and figures have been compiled to show the proportion of fiction the libraries circulate, but little time has been spent in consideration of books themselves, she said. Only such novels have been selected for public libraries as the people were willing to buy as well as to read, for they have all been among the "best sellers."

Miss Van Valkenburgh concluded by saying that even if the quality of the books bought by the public is somewhat discouraging it is worth while for librarians to consider what their parts are in educating the public to an enjoyment of fiction superior to what is popular now.

Musical Tea.

Mrs. Richard Bowden of 1820 East First street entertained twenty guests at a musical tea this afternoon in honor of Mrs. Wally Heyman George of Chicago. The musical program was of an informal nature. A NEW SPRING GOWN

ON THE PARIS BOULEVARD.

Commercial Club Dance.

The failure of the electric lights to do their duty last night did not spoil the pleasure of those who attended the last social meeting of the season of the members of the Commercial club and their families.

The new-fashioned dances were as enjoyable by old-fashioned gas light and still more old-fashioned candle light as they would have been by the most up-to-date tungstens. As the roof of the Commercial building was in good condition the hard rain did not deprive those who attended the meeting of a pleasant evening. The ballroom was decorated in cherry blossoms. La Brosse's orchestra played for the dancing. For those who wished to play, the card and billiard rooms were open. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. J. E. MacGregor, Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury, Mrs. H. B. Haroldson, Miss Lucille Bradley and Miss Marjorie Ferguson. Among the dancers were:

Mr. and Mrs. F. Z. Barthe, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Scanlon, Mr. and Mrs. G. Roy Hall, Col. and Mrs. H. V. Eva, Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Wahl, Miss Jean Cochrane, Miss Mary Bradbury, Miss Stewart of Portland, Or., Miss Katherine Guthrie, Miss Overland, Miss Fitzsimmons, Miss Rhea McManus, Miss Lucy Nightingale, Miss Myrite Pierce, Miss Gates, E. B. McKenna, H. H. Strassburger, H. H. Talboys, A. C. Kienly, George A. Merritt, Ford McNarry, Harvey Sleepack, O. E. Amtsbuechter, E. F. Burg, A. G. Messer, Kirby Jones and Oscar Bjorge.

Larson-McCauley.

Miss Olga Larson and William J. McCauley were married Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Judge Gilpin. The bride's gown was of white charmeuse. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ole Holter, 5028 Glenwood street. Mr. and Mrs. McCauley will make their home at 313 Second avenue west.

Decker-Hanson.

Miss Dorothy Decker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Decker, and Edward Hanson will be married Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on the Hermantown road. Miss Stella Goering will be the maid of honor and Edward Decker will be the best man.

W. R. C. Tea.

After the business meeting of J. B. Culver corps, No. 69, W. R. C., held yesterday afternoon at Memorial hall, there was an informal tea in honor of Mrs. Esther Stitt, a past president of the organization, who will leave tomorrow for a three months' visit in Portland, Or., and other Western cities.

Brotherhood Meeting.

The Brotherhood of Lakeside Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the church this evening. Supper will be served at 6:45 o'clock and will be followed by a stereopticon lecture by Congressman C. B. Miller on the "Filipinos and Their Islands." The public is invited to this lecture.

Meeting Postponed.

The "Memories of the War" meeting that was to have been held last evening at 7:45 o'clock at Pilgrim Congregational church was postponed on account of the rain. It will be held next Thursday evening, June 4.

Aluminum Shower.

Mrs. Walter Hilber of 4229 Cook street entertained at an aluminum shower Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Nan Holmes, whose wedding will take place next month. Games were a feature of the evening. The first favor, a hand-painted plate, was won by Miss Ida Nelson. Favors were also awarded to Miss Edith Christy, Miss Hildur Wallin and Miss Holmes. Cupids and hearts were used in the decorations.

A. building at 2 o'clock for Oatka club house where they will have supper. Those who can not leave at 2 o'clock will join the picnickers later. Each girl will take her own lunch; the Y. W. C. A. will furnish coffee and something else, but what the other thing is will be kept for a surprise. After supper the crowd will go down on the Point, build a bon fire on the beach and have a sociable time around it.

"TOM THUMB WEDDING"

The lightning and heavy rain of last evening kept away many who expected to attend the "Tom Thumb" wedding given by the children of Lester Park church. Most brides have to be resigned to whatever kind of wedding day falls to their lot, be they fair or rainy, but the "Tom Thumb" bride has the advantage of them, as she has another wedding day today and will walk up the aisle this evening with all the more assurance after her experience of last evening. The wedding will take place in the church at 7:30 o'clock.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Baldwin Players in "Alias Jimmy Valentine."
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Many persons who will attend the presentation of "Madame X," the thrilling melodrama which the Baldwin Players will offer Sunday matinee and all next week at the Lyceum, will be mystified at the three loud raps that precede the rise of the curtain upon each act.

The explanation of this curious rapping is, however, very simple. Mr. Baldwin is merely maintaining the characteristic French atmosphere of the play by following an age-old custom on the Parisian stage. There, where the theater orchestra is not so usual a matter as here, it is the habit to announce the readiness of the actors to proceed by having the stage manager take a heavy bludgeon and slowly and measuredly strike the floor of the stage. The spectators understand, and at once cease their chattering and pay attention to the traffic of the boards.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" will continue for the balance of this week at the Lyceum theater, where the Baldwin Players are crowding the theater at every performance with delighted audiences. There will be a holiday matinee Saturday, Decoration day, at 2:30 p. m., and the final performance Saturday night. There will be no increase in prices for either matinee or night performances Decoration day.

DANCE BY CANDLELIGHT.

Royal League Members Have Unusual Experience at Their Party.

Dancing under unusual circumstances was enjoyed last night by those attending the monthly dancing party given by Zenith council, Royal league, at the Knights of Pythias hall. The guests had just begun dancing when the electric lights went out.

For a short time the members of the lodge made use of a magic lantern which cast its glow over the hall, but this lasted only a short time and then some of the members went out and purchased candles. Several of these were placed about the hall and for the first time in the lives of many of those present they danced by candlelight.

ALFALFA POPULAR IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of the rapidly growing interest in dairying in North Dakota, there is a great deal larger interest shown in alfalfa this year than ever before. The livestock and dairy men want both corn and alfalfa to bring up the milk production to the highest point.

Investigations conducted under the auspices of the North Dakota experiment station show that the average yield of alfalfa in this state has been two tons per acre and that the feeding value of two tons of alfalfa is equal to 110 bushels of oats.

PROMOTERS ARE HEARD.

Outline Proposed Anoka Line to Brainerd People.

Brainerd, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before the Chamber of Commerce M. A. Dittberner, B. D. McDaniel, fiscal manager, F. A. Jacobs and C. E. Hansing, representatives, outlined the route their proposed railway, the Minneapolis, Mille Lacs & Northern, will make from Anoka to Brainerd. A standard gauge railway will be constructed, shortening the distance thirty-five or forty miles between Brainerd and Minneapolis, and the time from five to three hours. Gasolene-electric cars would be operated as now run on sixteen miles of the road from Anoka to Minneapolis. The route is now practically assured to Ogilvie and surveys are being made from there to Aitkin and to Brainerd. The support of Brainerd people was asked.

AGAINST SECULAR USES OF SUNDAY

Presbyterians Refuse to Approve of Uncommercialized Sports.

Chicago, May 29.—A plea that the ban against uncommercialized games and sports on Sunday be lifted fell on deaf ears today when the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, adopted the report of the committee on Sabbath observance which disapproved of all secular uses of Sunday.

Rev. Thomas W. Smith of New York, and Rev. Henry L. Brown of Chicago pleaded that workingmen be given an opportunity for recreation on Sunday and vainly sought to amend the restriction against all sports and games on Sunday by substituting "commercialized" for the word "all."

The report disapproving of all unnecessary travel and Sunday excursions was adopted after a spirited debate.

The report also condemned the Sunday newspaper and advocated Saturday half holiday.

A resolution indorsing the national administration for its effort to avert war with Mexico was adopted.

"DUKE OF CHINOOK" AT GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—D. R. McGinnis, founder of the Grand Forks Chamber of Commerce in 1880, was here yesterday. OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Thrift Is a Great Character Builder.

The American Society of Thrift! That has an encouraging sound and a progressive one, as well, if it does carry us back to old-fashioned days, when thrift was more the fashion.

Such a society is the idea of a group of people interested in the future of this country and its citizens a century hence. The keynote is the conservation of all things, an art we seem to have forgotten or lost, though it is certain we once possessed it in good measure in several sections of this great country.

Thrift used to be a virtue highly prized and in which good folk, high and low, took considerable pride. Once people derived the same sort of satisfaction in making things serve and last that the average type of American citizen now enjoys in telling about what he spends recklessly and wastefully. Thrift is still a virtue, praises be. The difference is that fewer and fewer are the people who recognize it as such.

In this country its practice is almost wholly regulated to two classes of people. The real aristocracy of this country, whether rich or poor, descendants of ancestors who bred this sterling virtue in the very bone of their progeny, and the better class foreigners who come to these shores in the determination of improving conditions for themselves, given the opportunity, are its only ardent supporters.

You will smile, perhaps, to read that some very great ladies, whose names figure every day in leading social affairs, are just as thrifty in the conduct of their homes as their mothers and grandmothers before them. It's a trait inbred—and one of the best—that thus far has not escaped the blood, and which, it is hoped they will continue to confer upon their offspring.

Never do we hear this class of men and women boasting and making vulgar display of wealth or power or allowing waste. Philanthropic, charitable, generous and lovers of the good things of life they may be, but never will they commit the sins of wastefulness and extravagance.

Thrift is a fine trait of character, and its practice in its true sense, a splendid character builder.

THE MENACE OF UNCERTAINTY.

Nothing can be more certain than that there are business practices in this country that are against public policy and fatal to economic justice.

Nothing can be more certain than that laws must be passed prohibiting these practices and putting business on a stable basis of honesty and fairness.

Nothing can be more certain than that until the precise nature of these laws and regulations are disclosed, a state of uncertainty will exist that will hang over business operations like an impending sword of Damocles.

Nothing can be more certain than that the effect of this uncertainty is paralyzing to enterprise and industrial activity.

Therefore, the quicker reasonable regulatory laws are shaped up and enacted, the better for business, and the better for the country.

If the seething resentment of practices that have created the demand for laws regulating business is permitted to grow, yet is kept confined by the failure to act, disaster is certain—as certain as that a boiling kettle hermetically sealed will explode.

Yesterday a delegation of manufacturers called on President Wilson to urge him to postpone action on the trust question until more opportunity is given for investigation and business readjustment.

To these amazingly shortsighted individuals, the president made a reply that ought to be convincing to every thinking mind.

He said that in his judgment nothing was more dangerous for business than uncertainty; that it had become evident through a long series of years that a policy such as the Democratic party was now pursuing was absolutely necessary to satisfy the conscience of the country and its perception of the prevailing conditions of business; and that it was a great deal better to do the thing moderately and soberly now than to wait until more remedial forces had accumulated and it was necessary to go much further.

Nobody but a Socialist who hopes that the present condition of business anarchy will continue until society blows up and collapses in final ruin, can possibly disagree with that sane and sensible view.

There is nothing more menacing, more terrifying, more paralyzing to business than uncertainty.

Uncertainty will prevail until reasonable trust regulation laws are enacted.

The president is trying to get such legislation enacted at this session of congress.

Every sensible business man will cease prolonging uncertainty by resisting the inevitable, and will cooperate in hastening the settlement of the economic problems that vex the land.

THE EFFICIENCY PLAN.

After many months of hard and self-sacrificing work, the efficiency and economy commission is laying its plan before the people of this state.

This plan should be studied carefully by every citizen, and if the conclusion is, as we are sure it must be, that it is wise and will be helpful, the legislature that meets in January should be instructed to enact it into law.

It is a significant thing that the final vote of this commission was unanimous.

It is doubly significant when it is remembered that the commission embraced men from every section of the state, men from every walk of life, men of every type of political thinking, men of all parties. It would have to be a pretty persuasive plan that would gain the unanimous support of such a commission. Moreover, besides its widely representative character, the commission included in its membership some of the strongest men in the state, and it had the help of some of the best equipped specialists in this country.

Three things the commission set out to do, things that this state vitally needed, and these three things it has done:

First, to reorganize a system of government that had been built up by degrees, without reference to any plan, during half a century or more, so that it would work more efficiently and more economically. That a system of aimless growth, under which a bureau or department created in response to temporary need would persist forevermore, and under which new functions and new bodies were created without regard to older ones or to any common purpose, would produce inefficiency and waste, was as inevitable as that fruit should follow seed.

Second, to create a budget system by which expenditures could be correlated and systematized and subjected to scrutiny in such form as to make it possible for somebody to know that when a dollar is taken out of the treasury it will be taken out for a legitimate and useful purpose.

Third, to provide a merit system so that state employes shall be hired and kept because they are worth hiring and keeping, and not because they or their friends have political pull.

Really, though, it's all much simpler than that. These three purposes, which the commission has admirably achieved, are actually but one: to put public business on a business basis.

A private business is co-ordinated to serve the purpose of that business, its expenditures are handled by the budget system, and its employes are hired and kept on merit.

This state's business has not been handled on any of these lines, and the commission's plan is to have it handled that way.

In short, what the commission has sought to do is to put the state's business in order as you would want your business to be. And the state's business is YOUR business.

BE CAREFUL ABOUT PRESUMPTIONS.

The secretary of the state minimum wage commission, which is investigating conditions here as a part of its work, has announced through the press her belief that minimum wages will have to be higher here than in the Twin Cities because living cost is higher.

If living cost is higher here than in the Twin Cities, then of course wages ought to be higher.

But if we were a state employe engaged in so delicate a work as this, we should not announce such conclusions as this until we were perfectly sure of them.

Frankly, we do not believe that living cost is higher here than it is in the Twin Cities. We know that some people think so, and we understand that the secretary of the minimum wage commission showed that she was one of these when, on her first visit here and before any investigation had been started, she expressed such an opinion.

Manifestly, so far it is a presumption, not an established fact. We do not believe it can be established as a fact.

And as it is bad advertising for the community to be charged with an undue cost of living, the charge ought not to be made unjustly or on presumption.

WORRIES THAT CAN BE AVOIDED.

From now until harvest time susceptible persons will be afflicted with a wide variety of sad tales about desolating things that are happening to the growing crops.

Those most familiar with grain-growing and grain-marketing are as a rule the least susceptible to these sad stories, most of which are like the troubles that never happen.

For instance, there is the Hessian fly. The Hessian fly has lately been destroying crops in the Southwest—some actually in the fields, but mainly in the market reports put forth by those concerned in putting grain prices up.

The Hessian fly is one of the many worries that can be avoided—the fly itself, that is, not the story; that goes on forever, so long as marketing has a speculative tinge.

The Hessian fly is bad for crops. There is no possible doubt about that. But the Hessian fly also shows a bad farmer. There is no possible doubt about that, either.

In point of fact, you have to pamper the Hessian fly to make it dangerous. If you fail to check reproduction of the fly by early plowing; if you keep the same field in wheat year after year without a break; if you fail to have a good seed bed to enable the grain to get ahead of the fly: then you invite disaster from the Hessian fly.

And Hessian fly damage mainly is confined to fields to which it has been invited by carelessness and neglect.

A good many of our troubles in life are like the Hessian fly in the neglected grain field.

Just So.

Buffalo Express: The apparel oft proclaims the man; its scantiness, the woman.

HE WEARS THE BUTTON ON HIS COAT.

Hats off! They pass with measured tread;
Their step is slow. Make bare your head.
If president or king passed by
Your eager shouts would rend the sky.
These men are kings and heroes all.
We pause—the shining roll we call;
On each the seal of honor set.
He needs no other coronet—
He wears the button on his coat.

'Tis true his coat is old and worn—
A flag is honored most when torn—
The very plainness of his dress
May mark his undeserved distress.
His rags, as eloquent as wounds,
In silence speak with trumpet sounds.
Not scorning, but a brother's need,
A healing of his scars, they plead—
He wears the button on his coat.

This bronze is neither bought nor sold;
No price has it in market gold.
Of cannon forged, its origin
Was fire and smoke and battle din.
Like fife and drum and bugle call,
Like whistling of the Minnie ball,
Like human lips oft tried with pain,
It speaks a language stern and plain,
This somber button on the coat.

How fade the pomp and rank of war!
Dishonor is the only bar
To this day's equal comradeship—
The heart outspeaking through the lip.
Not age, not wealth, nor chance of birth,
Nor other ministries of worth—
One claim, alone, our right to ask,
"For country's weal, shared he the task?"—
Then place the button on his coat.

The silent army! O'er their graves
The dear old flag in beauty waves.
Spring flowers their sweetest fragrance shed,
Love's votive off'ring to our dead,
Shall altar fires, unfed, grow cold?
Shall love lose heart by waxing old?
Forbid! The rather let us vow
To ever honor him as now
Who wore the button on his coat.

A Nation's Great Loss

Editorial in the Chicago Tribune.

As a nation the United States has suffered a severe loss in recent years. It has lost the phrase "I cannot afford." When the housewife today finds an article she needs too expensive for her to purchase she does not say so. She hems and hedges, but does not come out with the frank and convincing statement: "I cannot afford." She thinks she cannot afford nowadays not to afford.

To be poor nowadays is not only inconvenient, but, contrary to the proverb, it is becoming a crime. A man holding a fairly good position and living up to every cent of his salary in a fairly comfortable apartment must not say that he is satisfied with his home. He must pretend that he really wanted something better, but could not get it and consequently "compromised" on this "dingy thing"—although he knows that the apartment is not dingy and that he could not afford anything more expensive. He must talk glibly about $60 and $75 flats when he knows that even the $30 a month rent he is paying is scraped together with the greatest of difficulty. He must talk in this manner, for to admit his true station in life would at once bring down the contempt of his neighbors upon him, though they are probably no richer than himself, and merely know how to talk big, as the phrase goes.

And the poor shop girl, too, falls in line. To her chum she confides with tears in her eyes that the making of the new dress will cost her $9—a sum which it will take weeks and possibly months to save from her meager wages. But to the girl next door, who praises her dress, she states with assumed modesty that the making of the garment cost her "only $9."

On the surface there may seem little harm in these vain exaggerations and conventional lines. But there is real harm in them. This desire to appear richer than one is, this being ashamed of acknowledging one's true economic station, is the cause of many tragedies. It has sent many bank clerks to jail. In far too many cases this fear of one's neighbor overcomes one's fear of human and divine law and sends men out to rob and plunder and cheat in order to be able to wear silk hose and to step on velvet carpets.

The Wanderers.

Over the sea our galleys went,
With cleaving prows in order brave
To a speeding wind and a bounding wave—
A gallant armament;
Each bark built out of a forest tree
Left leafy and rough as first it grew,
And nail'd all over the gaping sides,
Within and without, with black bull hides,
Seethed in fat and suppled in flame,
To bear the playful billows' game;
So, each good ship was rude to see,
But each upbore a stately tent
Where cedar pales in scented row
Kept out the flakes of the dancing brine,
And an awning droop'd the mast below,
In fold on fold of the purple fine,
That neither noontide nor starshine
Nor moonlight cold which maketh mad,
Might pierce the regal tenement.
When the sun dawn'd, O gay and glad
We set the sail and plied the oar;
But when the night wind blew like breath,
For joy of one day's voyage more,
We sang together on the wide sea,
Like men at peace on a peaceful shore;
East sail was loosed to the wind so free,
Each helm made sure by the twilight star,
And in a sleep as calm as death,
We, the voyagers from afar,
Lay stretched along each weary crew
In a circle round its wondrous tent
Whence gleam'd soft light and curl'd rich scent,
And with light and perfume music, too!
So the stars wheel'd round, and the darkness past,
And at morn we started beside the mast,
And still each ship was sailing fast!

Now, one morn, land appear'd—a speck
Did trembling betwixt sea and sky—
"Avoid it," cried our pilot, "check
The shout, restrain the eager eye!"
But the heaving sea was black behind
For many a night and many a day,
And land, though but a rock, grew nigh;
So we broke the cedar pales away,
Let the purple awning flap in the wind,
And a statue bright was on every deck!
We shouted, every man of us,
And steer'd right into the harbor thus,
With pomp and pacan glorious.

A hundred shapes of lucid stone!
All day we built its shrine for each,
A shrine of rick for every one,
Nor paused till in the westering sun
We sat together on the beach
To sing because our task was done;
When lo! what shouts and merry songs!
What laughter all the distance stirs!
A loaded raft with happy throngs
Of gentle islanders!
"Our isles are just at hand," they cried,
"Like cloudlets faint in even sleeping;
Our temple gates are open'd wide,
Our olive groves thick shade are keeping
For these majestic forms," they cried.
O, then we awoke with sudden start
From our deep dream, and knew, too late,
How bare the rock, how desolate,
Which had received our precious freight;
Yet we call'd out—"Depart!
Our gifts once given, must here abide;
Our work is done; we have no heart
To mar our work," we cried.

—Robert Browning.

Altitude and Energy.

Youth's Companion: Two members of the Academie des Sciences have made an interesting study of the effect of high altitude upon muscular effort. By repeated observations, they found that at sea level a squirrel confined in a rotary cage made 6,700 turns of the wheel a day. They then took the animal to the summit of Mont Blanc, at which height (15,781 feet) it made only 900 turns. When they brought it down to sea level again, it made 5,000 turns. The experiment shows that the fatigue felt by mountain climbers is not caused wholly by the exertion of climbing, although that is important. The case of the squirrel, which was carried without any exertion of its own to the summit of a lofty mountain, shows that the lessened atmospheric pressure and the smaller supply of oxygen are enough in themselves to diminish muscular energy. Observations on men, horses and mules in the Cordilleras of the Andes support this conclusion.

Quick Change.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois browses about second-hand book stores by the hour whenever he can spare the time, trying to flush odd phrases and little-known facts about little-known subjects. No strange fact is too humble for Sherman to utilize in a speech sooner or later when the occasion is just right.

Once, when he was a member of the state legislature in Illinois, there was a bill up providing for the expenditure of money to erect a handsome monument to preserve the memory of the brave citizens who fought the Indians in a certain little Illinois village at the time of a historic massacre.

Sherman had no particular objection to the monument, but before letting the bill pass he desired to know more about the Indian massacre. So he went to the libraries and began to burrow down into the historical sections. He didn't stop digging until he unearthed several musty old histories almost as old as the state itself. One of these, with saffron pages, seemed to Sherman to contain the most plausible account of the Indian attack. It said that there was not much of a fight on that occasion, for the reason that all the white people ran when they saw the Indians coming. This seemed plausible to Sherman, because, as he explained, it was exactly what he would have done if he had been there. He got up and made a speech in which he quoted the passage from the history about the retreat of the people whose bravery was to be commemorated. Then, having had his joke, he sat down and voted for the bill to erect the monument.

Representative Robert Crosser of Ohio, the Congressman Who Never Gives Tips, changed his hotel a little while ago, and the waiters, not knowing who he was, started in to show him attention.

The first waiter hovered about him so closely that Crosser could scarcely consume his victuals for thinking how disappointed that waiter would be when he learned the true situation. So he arranged to have that waiter shifted to another assignment. The next waiter made less fuss over Crosser, but nevertheless he showed that he had hopes of a stipend at the end of the week. Crosser was almost sorry that he does not believe in tipping.

"He'll hear that I was born in Scotland," thought Crosser, "and then he'll recall the jokes that have been told about Harry Lauder. He'll think that I don't tip because I'm too stingy to tip."

In order to convince the waiter that it is a matter of principle rather than the money involved, Crosser went to the marts the next day, bought a large box of 10-cent cigars and handed them to the waiter.

But he will die before he will place so much as an old-fashioned 3-cent piece in the man's palm.

When Vice President Marshall was down in Florida making a speech recently a member of the reception committee pointed to some festoons of bunting and flowers that were draped artistically across many of the business blocks and dwelling places.

"What do you think of the decorations in your honor?" he asked Marshall.

"Are they in my honor?" inquired the vice president, incredulously.

"Certainly."

"Well, I'm glad to have that assurance," remarked Marshall. "Ever since the experience I had down in Arizona I have been extremely suspicious about such decorations. I got up and prefaced my speech with profuse thanks to the good townspeople for going to so much trouble to decorate their thriving little city on my account. After I had finished the speech I found out why so many persons smiled when I gave my vote of thanks. The decorations were there because they were about to have a county fair."

Only once within easy recollection of any member of the house has Representative Phillip P. Campbell, the handsome and urbane standpat member from Kansas, been robbed of the calm poise and equanimity that is his.

The one time when Campbell allowed his associates to take his goat from him was in the course of his speech regarding the Mexican near-war resolution.

After stating his reasons for objecting to the wording of the resolution as then drawn up, he was about to say, substantially:

"If we must have war, I'll stay right here and vote to appropriate the needed funds just as long as anybody."

He began: "If we must have war, I'll stay right here—"

Then he paused to clear his throat. The pause was fatal.

The entire house, as one man, applauded and kept right on applauding.

And for the life of him, old Phil Campbell couldn't see the joke.

Lines to the Washerwoman.

Lady, when you say you'll come
Tuesday morn to do our washing,
Tell us if there isn't some
Way to know if you are joshing.

When you promise to be here
Toiling at our tubs and wringers,
And we think you are sincere,
Tell us, do you cross your fingers?

When we show you round our place,
And you vow you'll come and clean it,
How, we ask you to your face,
Can we know you really mean it?

You with promises are glib,
This we do not say to grieve you,
But so many times you fib,
Tell us when we can believe you.

Lady, when we rise at six,
Just to get the water boiling,
We are in a sorry fix
When you dodge your day of toiling.

All your failures leave us glum,
It's a shame to waste a day so,
If you do not mean to come,
Why on earth do you not say so?

Keeping Up With Minnesota Editors

Press Comments on Current Events.

An Apology.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: We take it back. We have intimated that Mr. Lindbergh had accomplished nothing in eight years in congress. We learn, with pleasure, that he secured a postoffice for his brother at Crosby and another for his sister at Melrose.

A Sure Winner.

Princeton Union: Plain, unassuming Henry Rines is making no great splurge in his canvass for state auditor, for he has not the means at his disposal to subsidize venal newspapers and employ an army of strikers. But he is making good headway and is a sure winner.

So Would the Head of the Ticket.

Fairmont Sentinel: There isn't a better or more worthy man upon any ticket in Minnesota than Prof. C. M. Andrist, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor. He stands for the right things and if elected would be a mighty power for good.

Quite Possible.

Warren Register: Secretary of State Schmahl has no opposition for renomination. Some say that is Julius' luck, but it is more than possible that the kind of administration he has given the public has had something to do with it.

But Many Citizens Won't Come back.

St. Peter Herald: War with Mexico will be avoided if possible, but if it does come it will not be without compensations to those who participate in it. Millions of dollars of American wealth will be squandered and some thousands of valuable American lives will be lost, but many other thousands of our young men will go to the front and return unscathed. They will enter a hard school, but they will learn obedience, they will be impressed with a proper respect for lawful authority, and they will be taught self-reliance. Those who measure up to the responsibilities that will be thrust upon them, who meet the acid test of fitness, will be better men and better citizens for their experience.

Plenty of Them.

Perham Enterprise: Some rabid jingo newspapers have already conquered, annexed and assimilated Mexico. The good, hard common sense of the country is back of the president, however, in his attempt to maintain the dignity of the nation without preventing Mexico from working out its destiny. Democratic institutions were not designed for the government of dependencies and a turbulent ward like Mexico would be anything but a help. We have enough problems right at home.

There Are Lots of Them.

Red Wing Eagle: Victor Murdock, the Bull Moose bell wether in the national house of representatives, says the Democratic tariff bill has not done one thing that the Democrats promised it would do. We have always known that there was a great variety of men in congress; but we never suspected, until reading this statement, that imbeciles also got there. No sane person would make a statement like that.

Getting Ready for a Boom

New York Herald: There are signs on every side that the period of retrenchment, economy, doubt and gloom has ended and that the country is about to enter upon an era of expansion and prosperity.

The prime factors in this are the assurance of continued easy money and the prospect of record-breaking crops. If the decision of the interstate commerce commission—generally expected by June 1—gives the railways the long-awaited advance in rates this will hasten the pace of the procession which has already started on its forward march.

What are the evidences of this? Well, bank clearings are larger than a year ago, although prices of the commodities exchanged are lower—an evidence of increased volume of business. The same story is told by recent comparative increase in the earnings of a number of the railways. Pittsburg tells of greater purchases of basic pig iron—the inevitable forerunner of greater demand for finished steel products. Fall River notes an improved inquiry for cotton textiles. And so runs the better feeling through the whole cycle of industries.

As a result of the hand-to-mouth policy that has long governed the buying of consumers from the largest corporation to the humblest individual supplies of commodities are at the lowest ebb. The markets for securities as well as those for commodities have been liquidated. Weak spots have been uncovered and eliminated and the business of the country is on rock bottom. With brilliant crop prospects and the initiation of a banking system that will insure continuance of easy credits what is there to prevent a boom?

Jerome Wasn't Jagged.

Philadelphia Dispatch: At a social session the other night they were speaking about the difference of opinion as to what may be considered an intoxicated condition, when J. Clyde Oswald, president of the National Editorial association, told of an incident that happened in the Southwest.

The sheriff and one of his deputies were riding down the road one day, he said, when they came across a man lying flat on his back in the burning sun. By his side lay an empty bottle, which seemed to sufficiently explain the situation.

"Jerome is jagged," remarked the sheriff, who recognized the man. "Just take him up to the jail."

"Hold on there a minute!" suddenly interposed a man who was standing by. "Jerome ain't jagged."

"He isn't!" scornfully returned the sheriff. "What makes you think that?"

"'Cause he ain't," declared the other insistently. "I jes' seen one of his fingers move."

Our Empire Overseas.

The World's Work: How many citizens of the United States know that they own territory overseas, counting Alaska as non-contiguous, that is almost equal in area to the entire extent of what was the United States in 1817, or that, in varying degrees, they control the destinies of nine millions of "foreigners" or "colonists" living in these dominions, a population almost as numerous as that of Mexico, greater than that of all Scandinavia, and about twice as large as the population of Chile.

Impossible, of Course.

The Bystander: "Quick, quick, my dear—everybody else is in the lifeboat. The ship is sinking!"

"Wait a moment, I cannot be seen like this. The life-belt makes my coat pucker."

Little Green Tents

The following gem, commemorating Memorial day, was written by Walt Mason in the Emporia Gazette last year:

"The little green tents, where the soldiers sleep, and the children play and the women weep, are covered with flowers today; and between the tents walk the weary few, who were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away. The little green tents are built of sod and they are not long and they are not broad, but the soldiers have lots of room and the sod is part of the land they saved when the flag of the enemy darkly waved the symbol of dole and doom. The little green tent is a thing divine; the little green tent is a country's shrine where patriots kneel and pray; and the brave men left so old, so few, were young and stalwart in '62, when they went to the war away."

Envious of Jimmy.

Philadelphia Telegraph: Congressman James T. McDermott of Illinois smiled the other night when the conversation at a social session turned to great accomplishments. He said he was reminded of the envy of little Willie Smith.

Little Willie rambled into the house early one evening and, sinking into an easy chair, heaved a great soulful sigh. Naturally his mother questioned him.

"I jes' wish," answered the youngster, sighing again, "that I was Jimmy Boyle."

"Why, Willie!" wonderingly exclaimed the mother. "Why do you wish that? Jimmy has none of the nice things that you have. Neither is he so large, nor so strong, and besides—"

"That's all right, mamma," interjected Willie, "but I jes' wish I was Jimmy, all the same."

"And then there is your bicycle," continued mother, "and your sled, and you don't have to go out in the cold to work like Jimmy does."

"That's all right," with yet another sigh, "but Jimmy can wiggle his ears."

WEST DULUTH AND ITS YOUTHFUL ROBBERS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Time after another we read in the West Duluth news how stores are robbed and that by boys who prove themselves to be grown men. Most of them stand nearly six feet in their stockings and the only time they call themselves not men is when they stand before one of our uptown judges.

Every time these thefts take place we West Duluthians make a protest. We call in the police force. We say they are not worth their salt if they cannot catch the robbers. In the last two years a number of stores have been broken into within a few blocks. Windows have been shot out and people nearly killed, but do you or I see anyone in jail? No. Again I say justice is sleeping and robbers walk free.

Only last week a game was played that probably was more bright than those preceding. Three men (I call them so because they are too big to come in the boy class) deliberately broke into a store on Ramsey street, filled their pockets, took a 125-pound cash register, carried it four blocks, broke it open and smashed it, took $30 and threw the register in a pool of water. Now, dear readers, was not that robbery? The police of West Duluth got busy and for their work they certainly deserve great credit. The men were landed in jail. In jail to be let out in two days. Of course the young men got fatherly advice—advice that only a wise judge can give. They were told to walk the straight and narrow path. The undersigned fully believes in the same, but not to the extent of our judge. He forgot to tell the boys: "Dig up out of your pockets the $30 you stole. Give it back to the store keeper. You broke the cash register, costing $75; go now and earn the money to pay for that. When that is done promise to behave and you really are free." I might be mistaken but nothing was said about restoring the loss. If so let us know. Now it's up to the judge to see that the loss is fully paid. Otherwise the respect of people for the law cannot be kept. We shall have more stealing, more robberies, to be sure, if the boys are not made to feel they have to pay.

Trusting for a square deal in this case, I am,

ONE WHO WAS ROBBED LAST SUMMER.

Duluth, May 28.

It appears that nothing was said in court at the time the boys were arraigned about repayment of any money taken. No appearance was made by Mr. Frost at the time. The court, of course, does not attempt to collect money for others in a criminal proceeding. It is understood, however, that the attorney for the boys, at the time they were paroled, agreed with the county attorney that they would make good any loss sustained by Mr. Frost.—The Editor.

CUPIDITY RESULTS IN JAIL SENTENCE

Stefan Piloss Could Not Resist Sight of $63 "Roll."

Stefan Piloss, alias Stefan Pilo, will spend ninety days at the joint county and city work farm because he yielded to a temptation to rob his roommate, Joe Semcyrsryn, after the latter had insultingly told him he would give him a dime if he "would go and hang himself."

Piloss, having in mind the H. C. of L. and the advanced price of hemp, deemed 10 cents grossly inadequate and later in the evening while Joe was peacefully sleeping, Stefan extracted a roll of $63 from his roommate's "jeans." The men were rooming together at the Montreal hotel on the night of the robbery, March 22.

Semcyrsryn awoke and found Piloss gone and his roll missing. The police were immediately notified and a search was made. He was caught at the interstate bridge while attempting to cross to Superior.

When arraigned in police court, Piloss tried to convince the judge that the affair was all a joke on Joe and that he, Piloss, did not intend to keep the money. The story, however, did not convince the court and Stefan was bound over to the May grand jury, which indicted him for grand larceny in the second degree.

When brought into district court under the indictment yesterday, Stefan confessed his guilt to Judge Bert Fesler, who admonished him to refrain from such indulgences in the future and to keep out of trouble. To impress it more favorably on his mind, the court sentenced Piloss to ninety days at the work farm.

SOLDIERS' HOME INMATE IS LEPER

Said to Have Contracted the Disease in the Philippines.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—Bernard D. Bennett, aged 39, a veteran of the war in the Philippines, who came from Hot Springs, S. D., to the soldiers' home in West Allis about two weeks ago, is said to be suffering from leprosy.

There is consternation among the inmates of the home, who have been exposed to the disease from their contact with the patient. Maj. Z. Roberts, physician of the home, others on the home medical staff, and Dr. Foerster are agreed in their diagnosis.

Maj. Roberts said this is the first case of leprosy that he has ever seen. It is said that Bennett contracted the disease in the Philippines. He is isolated.

"Bennett's skin shows traces of the disease and he is weak from its ravages," said Dr. Roberts. "He is not in the worst stages."

CITY WORTH $9,000,000

Financial Standing of Municipality Is Shown for First Time.

Auditor Lists Assets and Liabilities, Current and Fixed.

The city of Duluth is worth more than $9,000,000, above all liabilities, according to a complete report of assets and liabilities which has been prepared by City Auditor B. J. Campbell.

He declares that the city is to be congratulated upon its excellent financial condition.

The statement will be used as the foundation of for the installation of the city's new centralized accounting system, which will be based on values accrued and liabilities incurred instead of being a record of cash receipts and expenditures.

The report is accompanied by a balance sheet which is as simple as such a formal array of figures can be made. On one side it shows all the city's assets, divided into fixed and current assets, and on the other it shows liabilities against fixed assets and current liabilities.

The statement has entailed a vast amount of work and from it citizens can, for the first time in Duluth's history, get a fairly adequate and intelligent idea of the city's standing, financially and otherwise, at the beginning of the present year. It shows the value of all city property, including buildings, lands, streets, sewers, water and gas plant and the various kinds of equipment, with allowances for depreciation. Against these fixed assets are shown the liabilities, being bonds and condemnation awards. The fixed assets aggregate $13,687,758.59 and the liabilities against them amount to $5,749,859.76, leaving a balance of $7,937,898.83 in favor of the fixed assets.

The current assets include cash on hand, taxes and accounts receivable, assessments in the hands of the city treasurer, assessments certified to the county auditor, etc. These amount to $2,053,070.33. The current liabilities include unpaid balances on contracts, vouchers payable, outstanding tax certificates, permanent improvement revolving fund bonds and certificates, cash loans for water and gas extensions, guarantee deposits, etc. These aggregate $773,546.41, leaving a balance of $1,279,523.92 in favor of current assets over current liabilities.

The sum of the balances in favor of fixed and current assets is $9,217,422.75, which represents the worth of the city on Jan. 1, 1914, over and above all liabilities. The auditor classifies it as the city's "proprietary interest."

The balance of the auditor's report comments upon and shows in greater detail various items which are summarized in the balance sheet, and he also makes a number of pertinent recommendations. The following extracts from the report give the most interesting of them:

Surplus.

"The proprietary interest of the city, as shown in the statement, is $9,217,422.75, and it contains as a part thereof the 1913 tax levied last October, upon which the city's finances for 1914 are being administered. It does not include, however, the miscellaneous current year's receipts, which were included in the financial program outlined in the budget at that time, as they are distinctly an income pertaining to the year 1914. This surplus will necessarily be affected by any future increase or diminution of the values belonging upon either side of the statement that may hereafter be brought to light. The statement as a whole is being used as the foundation for a central accounting system, and in succeeding years it will be possible to present comparative figures which will indicate the city's financial improvement from year to year by the increase or decrease of this proprietary interest, which in turn will be explained by statements of income and expenditures showing the reason for such increase or decrease by corresponding surplus or deficit of income over or under the expenses incurred during the fiscal period. When it is considered that the current assets show a substantial portion of this surplus as being contained therein, and that it is not all of a fixed asset nature, the city finances in my opinion are in a very satisfactory condition, and the city is to be congratulated upon the showing presented by this report.

Streets, Roads and Bridges.

"The valuation shown of $5,266,760.45 was arrived at from data furnished by the city engineer and represents the following situation:

	Miles.	Cost.	Present Value.
Bridges and street improvements	264.680	$6,230,709.50	$4,699,444.18
Cement and tile sidewalks	120.98	588,811.75	567,316.27
Totals	385.669	$6,826,521.25	$5,266,760.45

"From the above it will be seen that there has been deducted the following sums for depreciation and disappearance of values:

Bridges and street improvements	$1,537,265.52
Cement and tile sidewalks	21,495.48
Total	$1,558,760.80

"The city engineer states that in his opinion the above figures are as fair and equitable conclusions as can be reached except by a great amount of field work, and they have accordingly been adopted by this department as its basis for opening these accounts.

Sewer System.

"In a like manner the value of this asset has been established, the details of which are as follow:

	Miles.	Cost.	Present Value.
Sanitary sewers	119.23	$1,188,758.26	$1,053,728.39
Storm sewers	23.29	581,615.87	489,438.32
Totals	142.52	$1,770,369.12	$1,543,191.71
Add, Building			$ 50.00
Equipment as per inventory			7,242.45
Grand total			$1,550,484.16

"It will readily be seen from the above that the engineer has deducted depreciations totalling $227,177.42.

Contingent Liabilities.

"These consist of various sums claimed to be due by individuals, firms or corporations on sundry suits against the city for various claims or reasons, in a total amount not at this time ascertainable; there has been no systematic record ever kept of such matters in the city attorney's office, and it is my belief that there should be required to be kept in that office hereafter, a complete continuous docket of all cases against the city and their various stages of prosecution; also that a retiring city attorney be required to turn over all papers in his possession connected with city affairs, to the finance commissioner or the attorney succeeding him, as soon as possible upon leaving office. This has not been done always in the past and it results in city papers reposing in many lawyers' private offices today, which naturally makes it difficult to learn the exact condition of affairs connected therewith.

"There is also a non-ledger liability of the accrued interest on gas and water deposits; the amount of this is not readily obtainable at this time and is merely mentioned in order to note its existence in this report.

Depreciation.

"It may very properly be stated at this time that so far as I can learn no attempt has ever been made to provide for any depreciation through the tax levy of each year, and yet this is certainly one of the city's legitimate expenses that should be provided for in the budget.

"Limitation of taxation rates seems to be at present the principal obstacle to such provision, and in the event of a revision of the charter authority as to levying of taxes, this matter of depreciation should receive the attention that it deserves.

Retained Percentages.

"There is a considerable outstanding liability of this nature, the final payment of which is contingent upon various requirements being fulfilled by the contractor, such as replacement of streets to proper condition, etc. These have not been shown in the books of the department upon the theory that as they did not increase the expense or loss of the period (being capital expenditures) it was unnecessary to show the liability. The fact makes, however, that the funds of the division are virtually pledged for the payment of these retained percentages and the books do not indicate the pledge. In my opinion these percentages should be entered in the records, at least at the end of each fiscal year, in order to express the liability to which the otherwise free funds are subject.

"These conditions are also true as to uncompleted portions of contracts on which no estimates have been granted or percentages retained, and they should be treated similarly.

As to Other Departments.

"The absence of detailed balance sheet reports from all divisions is the reason why I am not in a position at this time to comment on specific differences which doubtless exist in all departments to more or less extent.

"In my opinion all departments should be required to render readable reports, accompanied by a balance sheet showing the assets under their control and the obligations against the same, which figures should correspond to those shown by the auditor's office."

PAGEANT IS BEAUTIFUL

Production at St. Louis Presented on Largest Stage in World.

Cast of 7,500 Persons Participates in the Great Spectacle.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—The pageant and masque of St. Louis, which was given here last night in commemoration of the founding of this city 150 years ago, required for its production probably the largest stage in the world and a cast of 7,500 persons.

The production was in two distinct parts—the pageant, by Thomas Wood Stevens, head of the school of drama of the Carnegie institute, Pittsburg, Pa.; and the masque by Percy MacKaye.

The pageant began shortly before sunset and continued until dark. After a short intermission, the masque was given under electric light. The pageant was a series of thirty living pictures, portraying important events in the history of St. Louis. Fifty-six hundred men and women took part in this presentation.

Mound-Building Era.

The pageant opened with a scene depicting the mound-building era of St. Louis, which is on the site of many of the old mounds. The movement began with long lines of men and women bringing earth in baskets and building a mound in which they buried the chief of their tribe. The immense stage represented the site of the present city of St. Louis. Between the stage and the hill to the south on which the spectators sat was a lagoon, 150 feet wide, representing the Mississippi river. The spectators were asked to imagine themselves as seated on the bluffs on the Illinois shore and looking across the Mississippi river to the site of St. Louis as the history of the city passed before them. As the mound builders buried the chief of their tribe, buffalo hunters approached and persuaded them to give up their mound-building ways.

Indians then appeared on the stage—the year now was supposed to be 1539—and gave characteristic dances and war scenes. Then came a representation of the expedition of De Soto with his Spanish gold seekers. Father Marquette, the French missionary then came up to the pageant stage—the city site—in a canoe, and after him La Salle and fifty-four traders and Indians.

Thus far 1,150 persons had appeared on the stage in the few scenes already portrayed. The movement ended as an Indian prophet foretold the future of his race.

Founding of the City.

The next movement opened with the portrayal of the founding of the city by Pierre Laclede, the French settler, who was represented as planning the town and leaving his 14-year-old son, Chouteau, to build it. Gradually the town grew as the French settlers came in, and then the Spanish troops were represented as coming to take possession under the first Spanish governor. The dedication of the first church was re-enacted.

In 1780 Indians attacked the settlement, and this attack was portrayed on the stage tonight. A school mistress appeared on the stockade and fought with the men in repulsing the Indians.

The movement closed with a representation of the transfer of St. Louis to the United States. On one day, according to the historians, St. Louis was under three flags—Spanish, French and American. The raising of the three flags and the lowering of two, leaving the stars and stripes, was portrayed in the pageant tonight. A watchman then appeared on the edge of the stage—supposed to be the river bank—and foretold the growth of the city.

Under the American Flag.

The last movement of the pageant portrayed the history of St. Louis under the American flag. First came the starting from St. Louis of the Lewis & Clark expedition to the Northwest by way of the Missouri river; then a portrayal of the day of fur traders and settlers bound for the West. About 2,000 persons appeared in this scene; then came a re-enactment of the scenes when Gen. La Fayette visited St. Louis in 1824; the return of a battery from the Mexican war; the coming of the German immigrants in 1849; and the reproduction of the torch light procession that marched through the streets of St. Louis in 1865 at the announcement of peace between the North and the South.

The Masque.

After a brief intermission, the electric lights on the stage were turned on and the masque—a symbolic interpretation of the history of the city—began. The masque opened with the dream of Cahokia, who represented the spirit of the mound builders' civilization. He awoke to find his empire gone and himself mocked by heat, cold, wild nature forces, buffalo, and wild cat, forest and flood. He asked the stars if there were no hope, and was told that the Mississippi river would bring a white child who should restore civilization. This child struggled with the forces of nature, but they retreated as the discoverers approached, who named the child St. Louis.

St. Louis, leading on pioneers, miners and rangers, struggled with the forces of nature, and finally fought the spirit of gold and the war demon. Then came representations of vice, plague, despair and rebellion, all the children of Gold. St. Louis then called on other cities to help him, and envoys sent by the mayors of other American cities appeared on the stage to represent those cities in the symbol of a league of all to conquer Gold.

An elaborate musical setting has been arranged for the masque by Frederick S. Converse, and there was much incidental music in the pageant. A hidden chorus of 500 and a band of 100 took part in the production.

Throughout the pageant the actors and actresses were gowned in costumes historically accurate. All the actors were citizens of St. Louis, who gave their time voluntarily to the production of the spectacle.

A Natural Amphitheater.

The stage on which the pageant and masque were given was built over the boating lagoon at the foot of the hill in Forest park on which the City Art museum stands. This hill was the site of the cascades during the Louisiana Purchase exposition, and it is a natural amphitheater. It rises steeply from the lagoon, and from any point on this hill a commanding view of the stage could be obtained. Forty-two thousand seats were placed on this hill, and back of these was room for thousands more who preferred to bring camp stools or to stand. It was stated that more than 60,000 persons could view the pageant at one time from the hill.

The stage was 520 feet wide at the rear, and it had a semi-circular front of 880 feet. The stage was 200 feet deep, the background being a great screen 50 feet high and 300 feet long. On the stage were two towers 40 feet high, and within these was the mechanical apparatus used to control the lights. Within one of these towers was a telephone station of the stage manager. So stupendous a scale was the production that the calls to actors were sent by telephone.

Freed on Technicality.

Chicago, May 29.—Frank M. Henning, for several years cashier of the Farmers' bank of Schaumberg, Ill., was freed today on a technicality from a charge of having embezzled $42,000 from the Schaumberg bank. A verdict of not guilty was returned in the trial at the direction of Judge McKinley, who declared the indictment was faulty.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

IN Maine, several cities have municipal coal yards. The constitutionality of the statute empowering any city or town to maintain permanently a yard for selling at cost to its inhabitants coal, wood and other fuel has been upheld by the supreme court. Some private corporations objected to the cities doing this work and brought suits and injunction proceedings. A great many cities think they can't do this and that because they have no law authorizing them to do so. The judge's rescript upon these Maine decisions is interesting. He says, "We do not regard it (the act) as a departure from previous legislation, but in line with it, although perhaps one step further. The direction, however, is the same, and the advance is caused by the development of a new want which has called for a new exercise of legislative power, not an exercise of new legislative power, and such an advantage is both legitimate and commendable."

The city itself would be the biggest customer of a municipal coal yard in Duluth. Last year the city officials were trying to get a reduced price by contracting at one time for the season's supply. The business was turned over to one company but the city didn't derive any benefit from the arrangement. For any saving that was made the city might as well have continued buying in small lots. The investigation showed that the cost of coal was the same at all companies and that the price per ton was the same as if one ton were purchased, or a carload.

HALF-BREED IS NOT AN INDIAN

Federal Judge So Rules in Case of Liquor Selling.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—A half breed Indian is not an Indian under the United States statutes, as interpreted yesterday by Judge Geiger in the Federal court.

The ruling was handed down in the case of five Shawano saloonkeepers charged with selling liquor to an Indian, the alleged Indian being Frank Lyons, a half blood.

The contention was raised by the defense that under all Federal statutes no person could be held for selling liquor to a half breed, the law reading "Indian."

Judge Geiger accepted the construction placed on the statutes by the attorneys for the defense, and took the case from the jury, ordering an acquittal from the bench.

MANY UNDER ARREST ON MURDER CHARGES.

Canon City, Colo., May 29.—With the arrest of eleven more strikers and strike sympathizers yesterday, twenty-three are now being held without bail as a result of the indictments returned by the Fremont county grand jury, charging murder and rioting in connection with the attack on the Chandler mine in which William King was killed.

All arrested yesterday are charged with first degree murder.

Milwaukee Brewers Take Action in Patmont Abduction Case.

Milwaukeke, Wis., May 29.—The Milwaukee Brewers' association, believing the abduction of the Rev. Louis Patmont, temperance lecturer of Milwaukee, from Westville, Ill., in March, should be investigated and the guilty persons punished, has taken steps with that end in view.

The Milwaukee organization has requested the Illinois Brewers' association and the United States Brewers' association to start an investigation. It is pointed out that numerous conflicting reports have been set afloat in connection with the case, and that the guilty parties, whoever they may be, should be apprehended and punished to the full extent of the law.

LIGHTS GO OUT AND CARS STOP DURING HEAVY STORM

Three Cables of Power Company Struck in Rapid Succession.

Basements Are Flooded and Streets Damaged—Theaters in Darkness.

Yesterday's heavy rain storm caused considerable property damage throughout the city and at 9:13 o'clock in the evening lightning struck the transmission lines of the Great Northern Power company, putting the entire city in complete darkness. It was two hours before these cables were repaired and the lights were again turned on.

During the day and night 2.42 inches of rain fell in this city, according to Weather Forecaster Richardson. He said this morning that the precipitation is not a record one, but that Duluth went through a very heavy rain storm from early morning until late at night. Many local residents were of the opinion that the storm equaled that of six years ago, when two children were washed off the porch of their home and drowned, but according to Mr. Richardson, the rains yesterday were not as bad, nor the precipitation as great.

Not a single serious accident was reported throughout the day or night, although the property damage was heavy.

According to Thomas B. Hawkes, treasurer of the Great Northern Power company, there are three transmission lines serving Duluth and Superior from the company's power plant at Thomson. One of these goes through Superior and the other two are connected direct to Duluth. At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon one of the Duluth lines went out, having been struck by lightning, slightly impairing the service for a few minutes. About an hour later the other Duluth line was struck by a lightning flash, but the lights were on again after a few minutes, the cables coming from Superior being put in use for all the service.

Third Cable Hit.

At 9:15 o'clock last evening lightning struck the third cable line from Superior, thus completely shutting off all electricity from the city of Duluth. The other two lines had not yet been repaired and workmen were immediately rushed to the cable line at Grassy Point and to the connection at Rice's Point. It took two hours to repair the Grassy Point line and at 11 o'clock the power was again connected and the lights throughout the city were turned on.

Street car traffic was halted during the time the power was off and Duluthians were either compelled to walk home or take taxicabs. Owners of these machines this morning declared that last evening proved to be one of the most profitable in the history of automobile traffic in the city of Duluth. All the motion picture theaters were compelled to close after waiting for a short time, although the Empress managed to present its vaudeville program, using the two large gas lamps over the stage. None, however, were able to present their motion picture numbers, because of the power being off.

The heaviest damage as a result of the storm is reported by the McClellan Paper company of 10 West Michigan street, where the basement floor was flooded last evening by nearly two feet of water. L. E. Welty, manager of the company, said this morning that the water damaged the stock to the extent of about $1,000. The salvage corps was called, but the water has been coming in all night and at noon there was still one foot of water in the basement.

At the public works department about fifty complaints were received this morning from all parts of the city regarding overflowed sewers, basements and streets. At Woodland and Lakeside the rains did considerable damage to the streets and sidewalks, also destroying a large number of gardens and lawns. At Proctor the floods literally washed away several sidewalks, sewer covers and the flower beds that had been arranged by the D., M. & N. Several stores were also flooded. All the creeks in the suburbs are reported as overflowing.

Mrs. May Emmett, proprietor of the East End Millinery store, 705 East Fourth street, suffered a complete loss of her stock as the result of the water breaking through the rear wall of the building and flooding the first floor. She estimates her damage at $800.

Keene's Creek Overflows.

The heavy waters rushing down Sixty-first avenue west almost toppled over the incline station at Grand avenue. The building is now reported to be leaning over and on the verge of collapse as a result of the floods and overflowing of Keene's creek, which runs alongside the incline tracks at this point. Nearly all the creeks in the city, especially Miller's at Twenty-sixth avenue west, running through Lincoln park, and Kingsbury in Fairmont park, are this morning reported overflowed.

The basement in the West Duluth public library was last night discovered by the janitor to have been flooded with about four inches of water, while the new Catholic school at Fifty-seventh avenue west and Kinnear place also suffered damages as a result of the floods which swept through the principal streets. In that end of the city the waters rushed in torrents down Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth avenues, flooding Grand avenue, so that the water reached the height of the sidewalks and in many cases ran over into the basements of the buildings along this main thoroughfare.

Nearly all the sewers were flooded throughout the city, but these were repaired during the night and this morning conditions are about normal. In many instances the waters washed sand and gravel onto the street car tracks, especially at Garfield avenue and Superior street and all along East Ninth street and East Fourth street. This greatly impaired the street car service for a time after the power was turned on again last night. All along West Fourth street there are large piles of sand and gravel washed down the avenues during the night by the heavy rains. At Third avenue east, between Superior and First street, a large hole was torn in the pavement by the rushing waters.

No Serious Accidents.

Not a single serious accident resulted because of the storm, there being no reports at police headquarters or at the West Duluth station. There were no calls for the fire department, with the exception of the salvage corps, which was called to the McClellan Paper company late last evening.

Candles and tallow dips were called into service last evening and the grocery stores in the outlying sections did considerable business. Those who were fortunate to have gas in their homes or stores were not inconvenienced to any extent but in many instances families were compelled to remain in darkness for nearly two hours, being content with the lighting of matches whenever necessary. Storekeepers down town are all supplied with gas, while the larger hotels have their own electric generating plants.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuousity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your drug stores keep these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror. —Advertisement.

CARRANZA IS TOO LATE TO TAKE PART IN THE NIAGARA CONFERENCE

laration that he accepted mediation in principle, on his condition that international questions alone should be discussed.

Gen. Carranza is unwilling that the question of a new provisional president should be discussed at any international conference. He holds that the occupation of Vera Cruz, which directly gave rise to the mediation proceedings, concerns all Mexican factions as well as the Huerta government and that the Constitutionalist chief should have a voice in adjusting differences which caused the American troops to enter Mexico.

Restates His Position.

In his latest communication he restates his position and places before the mediators the question of whether or not they will consider him in adjustment of the international side of the Mexican situation.

The mediators held in their first communications with Carranza that the international and internal questions were inseparable and asked that an armistice be agreed upon between Gen. Huerta and Gen. Carranza.

To this Gen. Carranza refused to agree and the mediators withdrew their invitation.

Carranza Is Too Late.

When the mediators learned of the arrival of the Constitutionalist agent, it was said, the negotiations had proceeded to a point where the Constitutionalists no longer could hope to have a voice in them. It was said the mediators gladly would have received a representative of Carranza, if he had accepted their offer when it was first made, but the invitation extended originally was withdrawn because of the refusal of Carranza to declare an armistice and because of his desire to be informed in advance of the opening of the conference, just what points would be taken up.

Conferences at Standstill.

Conferences here are at a standstill, awaiting replies from the Washington and Huerta governments on the plan of the mediators for the settlement of the Mexican question, which is now before them.

Even after the negotiations here had proceeded well on their way, a Carranza representative would have been received if the Constitutionalist leader had agreed to conditions met by the American delegates and Gen. Huerta's representatives.

The mediators are maintaining secrecy in the present stage of their proceedings, but it is understood here that even the names of those who will compose the new provisional government in Mexico have been selected. None of them will be made public, however, until all the machinery is ready for the transition from the Huerta regime.

Discussed by Cabinet.

Washington, May 29.—Plans for Mexico's pacification practically agreed upon at the Niagara Falls conference were up for discussion today in the cabinet. With assurances that the international phase promised a satisfactory solution, interest grew today in the attitude that Carranza might take. It was reported he had sent his representatives here an announcement of his position toward the work of the Niagara conference. The Constitutionalist agent, however, declined to discuss it.

Further information on the reported landing of war cargoes at Puerto Mexico by the Hamburg-American steamers Bavaria and Ypiranga was being expected from Rear Admiral Badger.

Will Not Alter Stand.

El Paso, Tex., May 29.—The campaign to the South almost has been forgotton, so absorbing has been the international mediations at Niagara Falls. Gen. Carranza continued today his telegraphic correspondence with his agent at Washington, Rafael Zuburan Capmany.

The prediction expressed in Washington dispatches, that Carranza finally would consent to enter the negotiations as a fourth party, was not reflected by Constitutionalist officers here or by advices from the South. Carranza, his followers pointed out, always has been persistent in his expressed policies and his public utterances on the subject of exterior interferences in the internal affairs of his country would not permit him, they believed, to alter his stand, for political reasons at least.

It was said, however, that Carranza might be disposed to deal with the present mediation body, even containing as it does the Huerta spokesmen, if the matter at discussion referred purely to international and not the internal questions.

Zacatecas to be Captured.

Durango, Mex., May 29.—The capture of Zacatecas City by the Constitutionalists is a matter of but a few hours, according to announcement today from Gen. Carranza's headquarters. Carranza himself went into Zacatecas state a few days ago to give verbal orders to Gen. Panfilo Natera and other commanders for the assault on the state capital.

The town of Zacatecas, situated in the very heart of the republic, is garrisoned by 3,000 troops under Gen. Medina Barron. A general movement of Constitutionalist troops toward the state of Zacatecas already has taken place and several towns have been captured, the most important of which is Fresnillo.

The Bavaria's Case.

Washington, May 29.—Secretary Garrison said today Gen. Funston had neither sought nor received instructions for adjusting the situation arising from the arrival of the German steamer Bavaria at Vera Cruz without manifest. Gen. Funston has so far made no report of the incident.

"In the circumstances," said Secretary Garrison, "I am not inclined to attach any importance to the matter. I consider it merely a detail of port routine and one that probably will be settled by the captain of the port."

Mr. Garrison said all Gen. Funston's reports on the landing of arms at Puerto Mexico from the Bavaria and the Ypiranga were based upon information furnished by persons arriving in Vera Cruz from Puerto Mexico.

Gen. Funston reported that the total sick of the army numbered 64 with 14 injured and wounded, the ratio being 1.93 per cent. Among the marines there are 76 sick, the percentage being 1.5 per cent.

Federal Officers Executed.

Nogales, Ariz., May 29.—Thirty-five Federal officers captured by the Constitutionalists at Tepic were executed May 24, according to a message received here from Gen. Alvarado Obregon, the Constitutionalist commander.

Gen. Obregon's message says that Rear Admiral Howard, the American naval commander on the Pacific coast, telegraphed to the German consul at Tepic to intercede for the lives of the Federals "for the sake of humanity," but Obregon answered the execution of officers was necessary to prevent them making trouble in the future. The Federals were taken to the cemetery and shot in squads.

Women Lose Their Lives.

Amargos, Coahuila, May 29.—Thirty-five women camp followers lost their lives with 300 Federal soldiers in the battle of Paredon and fifty-seven Federal officers were executed after the battle. Among those who fell before the firing squad were Gen. Munoz, a nephew of ex-President Porfirio Diaz, Gen. Orsono and nine colonels.

ONE THOUSAND LIVES ARE LOST

icy, the temperature today was not low enough to increase the suffering of the survivors.

MANY OF CREW SAVED.

The vast majority of the saved were members of the ship's crew. Early estimates here indicated that not more than sixty passengers were saved. Besides Capt. Kendall, the first and second engineers and the ship's surgeon were rescued. The captain was too overcome to give at first any extended account of the disaster. He had sent a wireless to his line after the vessel struck, saying:

The story published by La Patrie indicating that all the passengers of the Empress of Ireland had been saved has not been substantiated.

The estimates of total loss of life range from 678 to over 1,100. Among the 350 persons reported rescued are twelve women.

Twenty-two of the rescued died from their injuries after reaching shore.

The Empress of Ireland was valued at $2,000,000 and, with her cargo, valued at $250,000, was fully insured.

At low tide today the top of her funnels could be seen. She is lying in the channel. It is thought by navigators that it may be possible to raise her. At present the wreck is a menace to navigation.

Distinguished Passengers.

The Empress of Ireland, in command of Lieut. Kendall, royal navy reserve, sailed from Quebec at 4:20 yesterday afternoon for Liverpool. There were 77 first, 208 second and 504 third-class passengers, which with the crew, made over 1,200 souls on board. Among the names on her passenger list is Sir Henry Seton-Karr, a barrister, whose travels and big game shooting have taken him into many corners of the world. Other passengers who left Montreal yesterday to join the Empress of Ireland at Quebec were Laurence Irving, the actor, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, his wife, Miss Mabel Hackney, and two other members of Mr. Irving's company. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Neville. Mrs. Irving's maid, Hilda Hageston, was also in the party. A large number of members of the Salvation Army, bound for their international conference in London, were also aboard.

First Word of Disaster.

First news of the disaster reached Quebec shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. It came from the Marconi station at Father Point to the marine department agent here and announced that the Empress of Ireland had collided with an unknown ship thirty miles east of Father Point and was sinking. The Marconi station had heard the "S. O. S." signals of distress and reported that the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail tender Evelyn, which were at Father Point, had been dispatched to the rescue.

The wireless people reported that they had been in communication with the Empress of Ireland but a short time when the messages suddenly ceased. This led to fears that the steamer had sunk and this afterwards proved true.

Incorrect Report.

Nearly an hour after the first messages were received Father Point reported that it was the Hannover, of the North German Lloyd line, which had been in collision with the Empress of Ireland and that probably both steamers had been lost. This added gravely to the disaster as the Hannover was known to have over 1,300 immigrants aboard bound from Rotterdam for this port.

The report about the Hannover, however, fortunately proved to be an error and Father Point announced that it had learned that it was the collier Storstad that collided with the Empress of Ireland and that both vessels had gone down soon after the collision.

At 6 o'clock this morning reports that survivors were being landed at Rimouski were received here. It was stated that the Eureka and the Lady Evelyn had landed 350 persons but that more than 800 were still missing and were probably drowned.

Capt. Kendall Well Known.

Capt. Kendall won renown as the man who first detected Crippen, the murderer, on the steamship Montfort.

Capt. Kendall, in conveying the intelligence to Capt. Walsh, that the Empress had gone down, said:

"Ship gone."

A special train was dispatched from here at 8:30 to Father Point to bring back the survivors.

The Empress of Ireland, carried a crew of 650 officers and men, making, with the passengers, a total of 1,437 on board.

All Passengers Picked Up.

A message received here by the Candian Pacific offices from Rimouski said, "All the passengers have been picked up by the boats of the Lady Evelyn and Eureka."

A similar message was received by La Patrie, a French newspaper, from a Rimouski correspondent. He said that 400 survivors had been landed and that the Lady Evelyn and Eureka were going back to pick up the remainder of the passengers who were in the water.

The foregoing information does not agree with previous dispatches in the matter of loss of life. From the wording of the Canadian Pacific message it could not be determined whether "all the passengers" meant all those on board the Empress of Ireland, or simply all those who were able to make the lifeboats.

The collier Storstad has 360 survivors from the Empress of Ireland on board, according to an announcement made by the government signal service.

Leave to Pick Up Others.

The text of the message received by La Patrie from Rimouski reads:

"Lady Evelyn and Eureka docked at Rimouski with 400 passengers. Captains both reported that all the passengers were saved in the lifeboats of the Lady Evelyn, Eureka and Empress of Ireland. As soon as passengers are disembarked both steamers will leave for the scene of the wreck to pick up other passengers."

Arrangements have been made by the Canadian Pacific railway with the Allen line to send the survivors to Liverpool on the Alsatian, which arrived at Quebec today.

The Sunken Vessel.

The Empress of Ireland was a twin screw vessel of 14,191 tons. She was built in Glasgow in 1906 by the Fairfield company, Ltd., and was owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway company. She carried a full wireless equipment.

The Storstad registered 6,028 tons. She was built by the Armstrong, Whitworth company, at Newcastle in 1891, and her owner is the Dampsk Aktieselk Maritime, of Christiania, Norway. She is a single screw vessel and is loaded with coal. She carries a crew of fifty men.

The disaster recalls the accident to the sister ship of the ill-fated vessel, the Empress of Britain, which two years ago rammed and sank the collier Helvetia in almost the same spot, that the collision took place this morning.

Account of Disaster.

Rimouski, Que., May 29.—The Marconi company's operator here gives the following account of the sinking of the steamer Empress of Ireland and the collier Storstad:

"The Empress of Ireland was rammed this morning at 1:45 by the Storstad, twenty miles out from Father Point. The Empress sank within ten minutes. The 'S. O. S.' signal sent out was received at Father Point and the government steamers Eureka and Lady Evelyn were dispatched to the distressed vessels' assistance. The Empress of Ireland was unable to get many of the boats out.

"Capt. Kendall was saved, being picked up on some wreckage by a lifeboat thirty minutes after his ship had foundered. Both wireless operators, assistant pursers, chief engineers and chief steward were saved. Chief officer and purser are among the missing.

New York, May 29.—Charles Becker was today sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison during the week beginning July 6, for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

When he received the sentence, Becker appeared calm. He even turned to friends in the courtroom and smiled.

The prisoner was taken to the sheriff's office and allowed five minutes with his wife. Prior to the sentencing, Martin P. Manton, Becker's lawyer, cited ten reasons why death sentence should not be pronounced.

He said that an appeal would be filed next Monday. This will act as a stay of execution, and a year may elapse before the court of appeals hands down its decision.

THE venerable Darby O'Brien and the White Sox will return to the habitat of the home lot and open the domestic series on Decoration day by playing two games with the Superior team. Superior will also be the guests of the management on Sunday and Monday. Following Superior come Grand Forks, Fargo, Winnipeg and Winona and then Fargo again. In our stay at home we get two visits of the Fargo team. After the second invasion of the Cantillonites comes a trip across the bay to Superior, then comes Virginia and then the team leaves for the road, opening the foreign invasion at Fort William, which is in an isolated part of Canada.

This will give the triumphant Sox twenty-three games on the home lot, barring the vagaries of the weather. In that extended space of time there will be opportunity for Darby O'Brien and his cohorts to make the climb from the present lowly position in the pennant procession to a higher place upon the ladder of percentage.

The Spectacular Lamarin.

THIS Lamarin, or La Marine, or whatever his name is, comes near to being the publicity sharp of all the wrestlers in the world, and it must be said here in justice to the knights of the mat that most of them are adepts at the game of gaining mention.

Lamarin is the large and stalwart chap who wrestled in this city some two seasons ago. On the mat he has methods all his own. He bites, swings freely with either hand, and doesn't hesitate in the least about using his knees at the slightest opening. So much for the primitive and unrestrained mat tactics of the French invader.

Before taking to the wrestling game Lamarin was in grand opera. Up in Canada, where the patrons of the sport are often temperamental and emotional Lamarin sometimes assists in the entertainment by singing snatches of grand opera between falls.

Besides all this stuff the many-sided Lamarin paints some and is an amateur sculptor. This is the large and buoyant person who caused so great an emotion in the confines of Montreal by heaving Zbyszko out of the ring and onto the sharp edge of the press table. The Pole was in the hospital and Lamarin in jail for several days, according to some of the reports that reached these parts.

And now Lamarin, the roughest sailor of the wrestling seas, asks the indulgence of his fellow countrymen while he once more wreaks some more vengeance on the placid Pole.

Montreal is one of the last stands of the old rough and tumble hockey game, such as ruled supreme in the early and more primitive days of the Copper country, and it is a tame and uneventful wrestling match where someone is not bitten or gouged or man handled.

EARLY GAME CALLED FOR

League Ruling Compels Dooks to Play Morning Decoration Day Game.

A ruling of President Burmeister will prevent the playing of two games tomorrow afternoon at Athletic park between Duluth and Superior. Decoration day being a holiday it is one of the league pool days and being a pool day two games cannot be played for a single price of admission.

The first game will be played in the morning, starting at 10:30, and the afternoon game will be played at 3 o'clock.

Winding up the series with the Fort William aggregation today, the Dooks will reach here barely in time to play the morning game with the Red Sox. The ruling of Boss Burmeister has made it rather inconvenient for the locals, but nothing remains but the carrying out of the ruling.

Monty Woods, the choir leader of Bottineau, N. D., is expected to occupy the mound in one of the games.

FALLING CHAMPS LOSE A GAME TO FARGO.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—The Cantillons ivercame the lead of the visitors and won the game of yesterday by the score of 7 to 5, after it looked as if Myers had the hitters of the local team hooked. For five rounds the domestic stick wielders did not get anything approaching a hit from the snaky curves of the foreign mound artist. In the sixth Myers was found for three runs and the following two rounds brought two scores each to the shoe of the locals. With two on the paths in the eighth De Rose cracked one on the nose for two bases.

RAIN SPOILS THE FISHING

Trout Streams Are Overflowing After the Heavy Downpour.

Among other unpleasant accomplishments the precipitation of last night spoiled the plans of a large and nearly assembled multitude of local fishermen.

The streams are turgid, and turgid streams are not the kind the fisher of trout likes. The streams are today overrunning their banks and are filled with debris and floating obstacles. Under present conditions the trout fishermen will find the angling very bad.

As Decoration day is one of the big red letter days in the fisher's existence, and as it marks the starting of the fishing season for many in these parts, mild profanity over the inconvenience caused by the rain will be largely participated in by the followers of the late and well known Isaac Walton.

Scores of lakes in the vicinity of Duluth will be visited by Duluth fishermen tomorrow. A large number of Duluthians are planning to go to the Brule, while many of the other well known streams will be visited by others.

Infielder Orr Released.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—William Orr, substitute infielder of the Philadelphia Americans, was released yesterday to the Sacramento, Cal., club, from which he was purchased by the Athletics two years ago. Orr was hurt last season and Kopf has been used this year as utility infielder.

No Race to Bermuda.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—The annual Philadelphia-Bermuda motor boat race, scheduled to start from here on June 6, has been declared off. All the boats entered with the exception of the Dream, winner of last year's race, had been withdrawn.

K. O. for Soldier Kearns.

New York, May 29.—Al Reich, former national amateur heavyweight champion, knocked out Soldier Kearns of Brooklyn in the sixth round of a ten-round match here last night. Young Mike Donovan, local middleweight, knocked out Jack Denning.

Army and Navy Play.

West Point, N. Y., May 29.—The army baseball squad left last night for Annapolis to play against the Navy Saturday afternoon. Since 1901, twelve games have been played between the army and navy, of which the former has won nine. The navy team has not won since 1908.

MEDAL PLAY FOR GOLFERS

An 18-Hole Handicap to Be Contested on Northland Links.

An 18-hole medal play contest will be the feature of the holiday sport on the links of the Northland Country club, tomorrow. M. B. Cullum is the captain of play and one of the best opening day contests in the history of the club is expected.

All of the members of the two opposing teams have been carefully chosen from the best players of the club, so that the game is expected to prove close and interesting.

In addition to the medal play event of tomorrow, there will be a new system tried out for the determining of the par of the various golf courses throughout the country for the playing of the Tom Morris cup.

The average of the five best scores turned in tomorrow at the various clubs will be used in determining the par of the various courses. Of these five best scores the average stroke per hole will constitute the par of the course and this par will be played against by the local golfers when the Morris memorial play is contested.

This system is considered more fair than the old system, as various courses differ very materially.

RAIN DELAYS MEET.

Only One Event in Minnesota-Dakota Conference Contests.

Huron, S. D., May 29.—A heavy rain, flooding the track after the 100-yard trials had been run, prevented the conclusion of the preliminaries of the Minnesota-Dakota conference track and field meet yesterday. The weather cleared somewhat last night and it was announced that an attempt would be made to run off the preliminaries, semi-finals and finals today.

The best time in the 100-yard preliminaries was 10 1-5, made by Cass of South Dakota Wesleyan.

INCREASE CAPACITY OF POWDER PLANT.

Washington, May 29.—Increase in the capacity of the government powder factory at Indian Head, Md., so that all smokeless powder used by the navy in times of peace may be manufactured there, would be provided for by an amendment to the navy appropriation bill, adopted yesterday by the senate.

Objection from Senator Hughes, who said he was "selfishly interested" because of the location of large powder plants in New Jersey, led to a general attack on the Du Point Powder company.

John A. Sinclair, respondent, vs. Atlas Lumber Co., et al, defts, Samuel E. Matter, appellant—

Order reversed.

PHILIP E. BROWN, J.

St. Louis County.

James B. Bradshaw, et al, appellants, vs. L. Eldridge Barber, respondent.

A commercial credit guaranty couched in general terms, without express limitation as to time, amount or place, but executed for the purpose of enabling the person whose credit was guaranteed to procure goods for a particular business located at a certain place, construed and held, under the facts of the case, not to extend to the credit of such person after she had ceased to do business at that place and while she was conducting a business of the same kind subsequently established in another state.

Judgement affirmed.

PHILIP E. BROWN, J.

Norman County.

John F. Melberg, respondent, vs. Wild Rice Lumber company, a corporation, appellant.

The evidence in this case is insufficient to sustain a finding that the driver of a team was negligent in permitting them to get beyond his control or in failing to direct their course so as to avoid collision with plaintiff.

Order reversed and a new trial granted. PER CURIAM.

Martin County.

In re petition of Joseph Miller for a writ of habeas corpus, Joseph Miller, appellant, vs. W. S. Carver, respondent—

The provision of Section 3142 G. S. 1913 forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquor within one-half mile of a town or municipality which has voted no license is constitutional, but the half mile zone which may thus by vote of the adjacent town or municipality become closed against the saloon cannot embrace any territory within a village or city.

State of Minnesota, respondent, vs. Albert F. Gieseke, appellant—

Thomas E. Stewart, et al., respondents, vs. National Council of the Knights and Ladies of Security, appellant—

1. Contract stipulations limiting the time within which an action may be brought thereon when not unreasonable are valid, though the period fixed be at variance with the statutory limitations.

2. Where, in an insurance contract, such a stipulation is coupled with a further provision by which after the loss occurs the right to commence the action is suspended for an indefinite period, the duration of which depends upon some action to be taken by the insurance company, and over which the insured has no control, the limitation period commences to run from the time the suspension of the right to sue has terminated.

Order affirmed. BROWN, C. J.

Lyon County.

John Tholkes, appellant, vs. Evo De Cock, et al, respondents—

1. Public officers are answerable to private persons for injuries resulting from the negligent performance of their ministerial dutles.

2. The rule applies to township highway officers.

3. Defendants, township highway officers, in the repair of a road within their district, removed a culvert extending across the same, and negligently and carelessly left the ditch resulting from the removal of the culvert open and exposed over night, without lights, guards or warnings of any kind, and plaintiff, while traveling along the road unaware of the dangerous condition thereof as negligently left by such officers, was injured; it is held; that defendants are liable for the injuries thus occasioned, notwithstanding the fact that the town of which they were officers is not liable.

Order reversed.

BROWN, C. J.

Crow Wing County.

W. D. Washburn, Jr., respondent, vs. Gregory company, appellant—

Where mineral interests in real estate are owned separately from the interests in the surface, such mineral interests are land, taxable as such, and should be taxed separately from the surface interests.

A tax certificate based upon tax proceedings in which the property is described by its government description, without mentioning a mineral interest owned separately from the surface, does not cover such mineral interest.

Order affirmed. BUNN, J.

Hennepin County.

Nancy B. Glidden, appellant, vs. Second avenue Investment company, et al, defendants. Second Avenue Investment company, respondent—

The owner of a building leased a portion of it and in the lease covenanted to furnish heat to the tenant. It thereafter sold the property to one who assumed all its obligations under the lease, and the tenant recognized the grantee as landlord. The original lessor was not thereafter liable to employes of the lessee for damages for personal injury resulting from negligent failure to properly heat the premises.

Judgment affirmed. HALLAM, J.

Hennepin County.

F. R. Noonan, respondent, vs. Charles H. Lamson, et al, defendants; F. Lindsey Spear, appellant—

1. Where a party is served with a short notice of an interlocutory motion, his remedy is by timely application to the trial court to vacate the service or to be relieved from default. No remedy having been sought there, the point is not available on appeal.

2. The time of notice of settlement of a case prescribed by statute may be shortened by an order to show cause.

3. The court may extend the time for settlement of a case after the time has once expired, whether the case is to be settled before the judge who tried the case or, in the event of his disability, before another judge.

4. Where the judge who tried the case has quit office, another judge in the same district may hear and determine a motion for a new trial.

5. A party may make a motion for a new trial after judgment entered if, without fault or laches on his part, he has no reasonable opportunity to make it and bring it to a determination before judgment, and if he use reasonable diligence in doing so afterwards. The determination of the question of reasonable diligence is in the sound discretion of the trial court. The trial court did not in this case abuse its discretion.

In making a motion for a new trial after entry of judgment it is not necessary to make a formal motion to set aside the judgment. The granting of a motion for a new trial will, in effect, vacate the judgment.

Order affirmed. HALLAM, J.

Hennepin County.

Nancy B. Glidden, appellant vs. Second Avenue Investment Co., et al, defendants; Second Avenue Investment Co., respondent—

The owner of a building leased a portion of it and in the lease covenanted to furnish heat to the tenant. It thereafter sold the property to one who assumed all its obligations under the lease, and the tenant recognized the grantee as landlord. The original lessor was not thereafter liable to employes of the lessee for damages for personal injury resulting from negligent failure to properly heat the premises.

Judgment affirmed. HALLAM, J.

Beltraml County.

Charles Major et al, respondents vs. V. M. Owen, appellant.

1. Plaintiffs, alleging title in themselves, brought an action to determine adverse claims to a city lot. The legal title was in defendant. Evidence that plaintiffs were the equitable owners of the lot was excluded as inadmissible under the pleadings, and judgment was rendered that defendant was the owner thereof. Held: That such judgment did not bar plaintiffs from asserting their equitable rights in a subsequent action.

2. While the action to determine adverse claims was pending, a railway company appropriated the lot for railway purposes through condemnation proceedings, and paid the compensation therefor into court. After judgment had been rendered in the action to determine adverse claims, defendant filed a certified copy thereof in the condemnation proceedings, and thereupon the money deposited by the railway company was paid to him by order of the court. It does not appear that the equitable rights of plaintiffs to this money were presented to or passed upon by the court when making such order. Held: That the order does not bar plaintiffs from enforcing such equitable rights in the present action.

Judgment affirmed.

TAP LINES CASE IS IMPORTANT

Under Supreme Court's Decision Steel Corporation Will Not Lose Big Annual Revenue.

The recent decision of the United States supreme court in the tap lines case is considered important to the United States Steel corporation in that it lays down a principle applicable to dealing with the railroad owned by it.

Experts contend that the Steel corporation would not lose the $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 annual revenue as had been estimated through a possible ruling by the interstate commerce commission relative to privately owned lines.

It is conceded that most of the corporation railroads, including the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, the Duluth & Iron Range, Bessemer & Lake Erie, and the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, would be declared common carriers and as such entitled to share in through and joint rates in proportion to the actual service rendered by them. Losses of revenue would come about only in the cases of tracks located within the limits of the various manufacturing plants.

Commenting on that phase of the decision, the Wall Street Journal says: "The Steel corporation has a number of small lines which probably would be classed as "plant facilities," and the Jones & Laughlin Steel company and Republic Iron & Steel company also have roads of this kind. These lines would be allowed spotting charges for specified work done by them, which would otherwise be done by the trunk lines, but other revenue would be cut off. Just how much of their present revenue would be lost it would be difficult to estimate in advance.

"The Steel corporation has roads which would come under the classification of 'plant facilities,' which own fifty miles or more of track, own their own cars and locomotives and are operated apart from the steel manufacturing end. These roads would of course be retained even under an adverse decision on account of the saving which they can effect in a large plant.

"While holding that the commerce commission erred in deciding that many of the tap lines were not bona fide common carriers, but mere devices for obtaining rebates without violating the letter of the law, the supreme court was careful not to impair the authority of the commission to govern the divisions of the through rates between the tap lines and the line carriers. In fact, the court sustains the commission in its position that tap lines, industrial railways, plant facilities, etc., are to be held down to a fair compensation for the service they actually perform as part of the entire service for which the published tariff rate of the line carrier is meant to pay."

Catarrh is Often Deep Seated

Local Congestions May Indicate Much Internal Inflammation.

Just because catarrh affects the nose and throat, few people realize how deep-seated it may be until it creeps into the bronchial tubes and settles down into the lungs. The way to treat catarrh is to recognize the fact that it is in the blood.

And there is only one blood purifier that can be safely used. It is S. S. S., the most powerful, the most searching, the most assimilative blood remedy known today, for it is not a mineral, but a vegetable remedy.

The medicinal components of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritive properties of the grains, meats, sugars and fats of foods. Any local irritating influence in the blood is rejected by the tissue cells and eliminated by reason of the stimulating influence of S. S. S.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infests the entire system. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. For special advice on any blood disease write Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Co., 532 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Carefully avoid any and all substitutes for S. S. S. There is nothing "just as good."

FIRM TONE TO BUTTER

Cold Storage Facilities on Lake Freighters Will Swell Movement.

Fruits and Early Vegetables Are Coming Freely From the South.

The development of firmness in butter is a feature of the local produce market today. While prices are on the same basis as a week ago at 26 and 27 cents a pound for the best creamery products an advance is expected within the next few days. With the opening of the storage season, heavy inquiry in car lots from Eastern buyers is reported on this market. This is due to the fact that the European markets are strong and with quotations in this country lower than those ruling in London, plus storage and freight, American operators feel free to contract for supplies. A notable feature as indicating the trend of the market is that buyers are desirous of contracting on quotations based on the day of shipment, and not on what they may be at delivery.

B. M. Ruse, sales manager of the Bridgeman-Russell company, is confident that a greatly increased trade in butter and eggs will result here this season through the providing of cold storage facilities on some of the package freight carriers running between Duluth and Buffalo. That service will be inaugurated next Monday, June 1, by the steamer Rochester of the Western Transit company. The initial shipments of both butter and eggs promises to be heavy.

Egg Prices Unchanged.

Quotations in eggs are also unchanged at 20@21 cents a dozen. The situation is, however, stronger in storage eggs and weaker in current deliveries, as the latter are now beginning to show the effects of heat to a marked degree. While receipts are still fairly liberal, they are falling off to a certain extent, and that condition is thought likely to become more marked within the next week. Egg prices are now a cent higher than a year ago, and storage supplies are about the same as they were then.

There have been no changes in cheese figures and a firmer tendency is reported in that market. It is thought that low marks in quotations were struck two weeks ago.

Strawberries a Feature.

Supplies of fruits and vegetables are gradually becoming more liberal, but prices do not as yet show much variation, according to the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company.

Strawberries are the feature in fruits. Supplies from Missouri will continue to arrive here next week as the season down there was extended through rains having given the plant a fresh start. Prices will not be any lower, however.

California cantaloupes are offering for the first time this season. The fruit is said to be of a fine quality. Florida pineapples are now coming to hand freely, and their sale is increasing. With warm weather prevailing in most parts of the country, the market in lemons has been advanced. Grapefruit is also higher.

Home grown lettuce and radishes are being marketed in larger quantities and their prices are slightly easier. Beets, carrots and radishes are arriving here in carlots from Mississippi, and California green top celery is also being offered.

New potatoes from Louisiana are cheaper and they are commanding a fair sale. Old potatoes are firm with the market in them being rapidly cleaned up.

Meat Market High.

Meats are selling on the same basis, as a week ago all the way through the list with this market firm, due to the light receipts of livestock at packing points. No change in the situation is expected by the trade for several weeks yet as agriculturalists will be fully occupied with their farming operations. Chicago packers estimate that the receipts of cattle for May will figure up as the smallest for the period since 1886 and the run of hogs the lightest since 1887.

No changes have come about in poultry prices either. Receipts of live poultry continue light and frozen supplies are being gradually worked down.

STORAGE COMPANY MUST LIST PROPERTY.

The Northern Cold Storage & Warehouse company must either furnish City Assessor Scott an itemized list of its personal property in this city before June 6 or appear in court on that day and show cause why it should not be compelled to do so.

Judge Cant yesterday afternoon, on the petition of the city assessor, signed an alternative writ of mandamus directed against the company and requiring it to list its property in accordance with the law, so that the assessor may be the better enabled to make out his assessment rolls.

The city assessor in his petition to the court states that the storage concern owns or controls personal property in excess of $250,000 and it is necessary that it be listed properly in order that assessments made be made in accordance with the new classified assessment law.

The city attorney and his assistants will appear in court, if necessary, for the assessor.

IS GIVEN STILL ONE MORE CHANCE

Sigrud H. Thompson Again Paroled After Making Tearful Plea.

When Sigrud H. Thompson was brought before Judge Dancer in district court nearly a year ago and confessed to the crime of forgery, he was placed on parole by the court for one year under a state's prison sentence with the understanding that should he violate the terms of his release he would stand a good chance of being taken without further ceremony to the penitentiary, there to serve from one to ten years on the indeterminate plan.

Since that time, Thompson has been in trouble on two different occasions with the Minneapolis police. He was arrested the first time for grand larceny charged with a theft from a cash register. Thompson is well connected at Minneapolis and after his relatives had interceded in his behalf, the authorities agreed to allow him to plead guilty to a drunkenness charge and he was put on parole under a workhouse sentence.

While under a double parole, Thompson, it was claimed, "touched" a woodsman for his watch. When the authorities attempted to pick him up on this charge he was not to be found. On April 1 last, Col. F. E. Resche, local probation officer, received a letter postmarked Minneapolis which bore unmistakable evidence of having been mailed from Milwaukee to a third person at Minneapolis and remailed to Duluth.

Col. Resche notified the Minneapolis authorities to look for Thompson in Milwaukee and he was found and brought back to Minneapolis for trial on the charge of stealing the watch. The complaining witness in the case could not remember in which saloon his timepiece had been stolen and Thompson was acquitted. He was then commited by the court for breaking his parole on the drunkenness charge and sent to the Minneapolis workhouse.

When the local court officer learned of his conduct at Minneapolis, he was brought before Judge Dancer again. Thompson begged the court for another chance. After listening to his tearful plea, the court decided to give him one more chance. The conditions of his parole are the same as before except that he must not leave the state.

Thompson's wife secured a divorce from him in Judge Cant's division of the district court last Saturday, on the grounds of cruelty. The offense for which Thompson was sentenced was that of forging the name of his father-in-law, Nicholas Christopher, to a $65 check, which he passed on Arthur C. Goering, cashier for Frerker Bros.

Frank Horgan Loses in Suit to Recover on Cashed Time Checks.

Holding that the failure of Frank Horgan to give written notice to the defendants that certain labor checks had been assigned to him prevented him from recovering, Judge Bert Fesler in district court yesterday, on the motion of attorneys for Patrick McDonnell and the National Surety company, dismissed five actions brought by Horgan to collect money on labor checks which had been cashed by the latter in his saloon.

Horgan claimed that after he had cashed a number of the labor checks for employes of McDonnell, the latter became bankrupt before he had a chance to redeem. Suit was brought against McDonnell and his sureties.

DANNY'S IGNORANCE.

Popular Magazine: The Boston Americans were playing the Nationals in the Bean City one afternoon. Tris Speaker knocked out a long fly that fell between right field and center.

Danny Moeller, the speedy right fielder of the Nationals, went after it, crying out for the guidance of Milan in center:

"I have it! I have it!"

As soon as Moeller had caught the fly a disgusted Boston fan remarked: "That guy don't even know his own language. What he should have said is: 'I've got it!'"

DULUTH SCHOOL CHILDREN PAY HOMAGE TO VETERANS

Members of G. A. R. Visit Schools and Make Patriotic Addresses.

Story of the First Minnesota Told at the High School.

School children of Duluth today paid homage to the surviving veterans of the Civil war and to those who lost their lives in the battles between the North and South, with songs of praise, battle hymns and patriotic readings and recitations.

Exercises were held this morning and afternoon at every school in the city, Civil war veterans and representatives from the other military and auxiliary organizations having been detailed to the various schools by the officials of the Citizens' staff.

The pupils at Central high school gathered in the large assembly hall at 9 o'clock this morning and for two hours listened to addresses by the G. A. R. veterans, who told of their experiences during the war, to Andrew Nelson, member of the school board and representative of the Citizens' staff sent to the high school, and to a program of songs by the Central choral society.

Principal Leonard Young presided at the exercises, which opened with the singing of "America" by the entire school. Comrades S. F. White and W. R. Strickland of Gorman post, G. A. R., followed with short talks, after which the choral society, directed by Prof. A. F. M. Custance, sang "Memorial Day March" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." C. E. Holt and J. Kimball of Culver post gave short talks and the following numbers were then rendered by the choral singers: "Rest, Heroes, Rest," "The American Flag," and "Fling Out the Banner."

The First Minnesota.

The principal address was made by Andrew Nelson, who gave considerable praise to the First Minnesota, which distinguished itself more than any other regiment in the Civil war and which Mr. Nelson compared with the Greek army at Thermopylae.

"The First Minnesota," said Mr. Nelson, "went to the front with over 1,000 men and returned to this state with about fifty men. That's the record our men made in the Civil war, men who fought and bled for the cause of righteousness and justice, men who died for their country. Not even the Greeks at Thermopylae, with the great armies of the world arrayed against them, ever fought so bravely and well.

"Our regiment left the state with over 1,000 men and returned with fifty. When the men were called to Gettysburg, there were but 265 remaining and after fighting was over and the roll was called, 247 had been killed or wounded.

"Nowhere in the world do the men of a country so valiantly fight for its honor and glory as do the soldiers and sailors of America. Let us call the roll of the first four men killed at Vera Cruz but a month ago. There was Frank Fowler, an American; George Poinsette, a French-Canadian; Daniel Haggerty, an Irishman, and Samuel Weisenberg, a Jew. There you have a most cosmopolitan list of men killed fighting for the flag of the United States. There you have exemplified the saying of Sammy Weisenberg's father on the day his son was buried with military honors in Chicago, 'One nation for all races and creeds.'"

Representatives of the other military organizations and auxiliaries at the Central high school exercises were: E. B. Dunning, Citizens' staff; J. H. Norton, W. J. Works, J. B. Calverly and W. E. Pugh, Sons of Veterans, and Mesdames Jenswold, Gearhart, Morgan and Freimuth, Women's Relief corps.

At the close of the exercises Charles Helmer sounded taps. He was assisted by Mrs. Donna Bibiette Flaaten, who sang while Mr. Helmer played.

At West Duluth.

Similar exercises were held at the Duluth Industrial high school, where the principal feature was the delivering of impromptu addresses by Otto Blais, Harry Randall, Page Cashin, Otto Olafson and John Davis. The boys were called upon by Principal S. A. Foster to make a few remarks and their addresses were all commented upon by the veterans, who followed them. Those who were present as guests were: Comrade Daniel G. Cash and Sam Anderson, Gorman post; M. W. Bates and Austin Moody, Culver post; Richard M. Funck, Citizens' staff; L. S. Larson, Diggles camp; J. B. Gibson, Camp McEwen; Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Mires and Mrs. Mustonen, Woman's Relief Corps.

The school orchestra furnished the music for the morning and recitations and readings were delivered by several of the pupils. Clifford Little delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Rev. W. Grant Fritz of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, gave the invocation.

At the normal school and the parochial school, similar exercises were held this morning, while the various grade schools throughout the city observed Memorial days this afternoon. Comrades McKeon Smith of Culver post spoke at Cloquet this morning, while Comrades James Meyers and James Carman of Culver post were the representatives at Virginia.

If the weather is favorable tomorrow, the parade will be held on schedule time, the line of march starting from in front of the Armory, Second avenue east and First street, at 10 o'clock. Should it rain, the parade will be discontinued and the programs will be held at 10:30 o'clock at the Auditorium and at the Orpheum for the school children, who are to participate in the parade.

Line of March.

The line of march will be down Second avenue to Superior street, west on Superior street to Fifth avenue and up the avenue to First street and then east to the Auditorium. A feature this year will be the review of the parade to be made by all the G. A. R. veterans. They will line up in their automobiles on Fourth avenue west above First street, forming a reviewing stand. After viewing the line of march the veterans will fall in at the end of the line and continue on to the Auditorium. The Loyal Temperance legions, including the W. C. T. U., it was announced today, will march in the parade.

The children participating in the parade will be given tickets for the Orpheum theater, where a special program of music and addresses will be rendered under the direction of T. F. Upham and Norman McLeod of the Citizens' staff. At the Auditorium, Mayor Prince will preside and Rev. W. W. Lawrence of the Glen Avon Presbyterian church will give the invocation. M. H. Boutell of Minneapolis will deliver the Memorial day address and Abbott Mac Washburn will deliver the Lincoln Gettysburg address.

Following the program at the Auditorium luncheon will be served to the veterans and members of the Citizens' staff at Memorial hall by the several auxiliary organizations. The ceremony of decorating the graves will take place at 2:30 o'clock and the exercises for the dead sailors will be held on board the U. S. S. Gopher at 3 o'clock.

Miss Laura Davies, who will be in charge of the Loyal Temperance legions, has requested all the members to meet at 9 o'clock in front of the First M. E. church.

Chisholm, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred C. Lang, village engineer for five years tendered his resignation to the village council Wednesday evening and it was accepted. Ray J. Kapphahn was appointed to the position. Mr. Lang will remain as consulting engineer for the village temporarily. Mr. Lang has become a member of the Coons Contracting company and will assume his new duties the first of the month.

Contractor R. F. O'Brien, who is doing the heating and plumbing at the Detention hospital will be given two days to finish his contract, according to a resolution passed. His failure to do so will result in the village finishing it at his expense.

Village Attorney Edward Freeman was instructed to procure the necessary help to have the books of the municipal court carefully checked, it being the intention of the council to determine the reason that the receipts are falling off as indicated by the annual report of accountants.

Dr. W. R. Schmidt, chairman of the board of health recommended that all persons on sewer lines not connected be compelled to connect at once.

A number of bids which were not up to expectation of the council were laid over to the next meeting to encourage more competition.

The contract for painting the detention hospital was awarded to Thomas Peterson of Hibbing for $490. Four local men bid but their bids ran as high as $590.

Duluth Gets Contract.

The Standard Salt & Cement company of Duluth secured the contract for supplying the village with sewer pipe against two competitors.

LAY IN RAIN FOR SIX HOURS

John Carlson's Wooden Leg Breaks on Poor Farm Road.

Is Finally Found and Carried to Duluth Heights.

The breaking of his wooden leg caused John Carlson to lie for six hours in a ditch during yesterday's drenching rain, on the road from Duluth Heights to the poor farm.

Carlson started from Duluth Heights about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, for the poor farm where he was going to seek shelter. He had taken the car to the Heights, and it was raining when he started, but he had no friends on the Heights and decided to try to reach the farm. When he was about half a mile from the Heights his wooden leg broke, and he was unable to repair it. Unable to walk, he lay down by the side of the road to wait for assistance. The storm increased in violence, and became almost a cloud burst. Carlson who is not in robust health, lay shivering, exposed to the full fury of the storm. The road was deserted, and no help was in sight. Finally after about five hours, a man passed on his way to the Heights, and Carlson called for assistance. The pedestrian was unable to do anything alone, but volunteered to bring assistance from the Heights. He went to C. A. McEwen's store, and Mr. McEwen and five other men from the Heights started to Carlson's aid. They succeeded in carrying him to Mr. McEwen's home, where he was given dry clothing, food and a warm bed. This morning he appeared to be none the worse for his experience, and he was given a "lift" to the poor farm by a farmer headed that way.

BY WARROAD SCHOOLS.

Fine Display of Work of the Pupils Is Made.

Warroad, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A very successful exhibit was held at the high school building Friday of work in sewing, basket weaving, brass work, water color drawings, etc., done by different grades. A few of the surrounding country schools were also well represented. County Supt. Mrs. Olsen acted as chairman of the meeting and a well chosen program was rendered. Miss Roena Schaner, representing the W. C. T. U., spoke very forcefully on the need of teaching "The Effects of Alcohol on the Mind and Body," in all schools. Miss Schaner is a native of Missouri and has had a great deal of experience in school work. Prof. Brown and Miss Lightner, both spoke in a few well chosen words on the need of co-operation between the home and school. Mrs. S. V. Helliwell's subject was "What the Parent Expects of the Teacher," which was well handled and expressed the thoughts of all parents present. Miss Gibson's paper on "What the Teacher Expects of the Parent," showed different ways in which parents could better fit their children for the study and thus greatly aid the teachers in their work. Miss Olsen, domestic science teacher at the Crookston agricultural school, gave a general talk in which she touched on home economics, home decorating, home sanitation, etc. She delighter her hearers throughout, being both instructive and entertaining.

PROGRAM OF THE PROGRESSIVES

Will Remain in the Field as a Political Entity.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 29.—The program of the Progressive party in the campaign this fall, as outlined thus far, is understood to be as follows:

1. No amalgamation with the Republican party as such.

2. Fusion ticket in cases in which candidates who accept the policies of the Progressive party are nominated, where the naming of two candidates of this description would split the liberal vote.

3. Insistence on policies rather than party names, and an endeavor to consolidate in every state the voters who approve of the principles of the Progressive party.

4. In New York state the probable indorsement of the Republican candidate for governor, provided he is a man personally acceptable to the Progressives and is willing to approve their platform unequivocally.

Colonel Will Not Talk.

While Col. Roosevelt declined to commit himself publicly last night to this program, it was learned from an excellent source that the Progressive leaders had virtually decided to adopt tentatively the foregoing plan of action.

Col. Rosevelt last night met five New York state Progressives. They are T. Douglas Robinson, Progressive state chairman; Francis W. Bird, New York county chairman; Chauncey Hamlin, Buffalo leader; Former Senator Frederick M. Davenport and Judge William L. Ransom. At this meeting the New York state situation was gone over at length. It was pointed out that if the Republican party should nominate a man of the type which the Progressives approved, they would gain nothing by putting a ticket in the field.

The situation in New York, it is understood, is typical of what may be done in other states. In each case it is planned to lay the emphasis on candidates and policies rather than on party labels.

There is little doubt that the Progressive party will remain in the field as a political entity.

MOOSE ATTENTION

All members are requested to meet at the Great Eastern hall Saturday morning, 9 a. m., May 30, to take part in the Memorial Day parade.

SMASH WINDOWS OF THE PALACE

Two Suffragettes Evade Sentries Outside of Buckingham Palace.

London, May 29.—Buckingham palace is to be no longer exempt from the window smashing raids of the suffragettes. It leaked out last night that between 11 and 12 o'clock Wednesday night two militants succeeded in evading the sentries outside the palace. Entering the quadrangle, they began throwing stones at the windows and had smashed two of them, when the sentries seized them and took them to the palace police station where they gave their names to the police.

The master of the royal household refused to prosecute them and they were released after a few hours' detention.

At a meeting of the Women's Social and Political union last night when Mrs. Manzell told of what the two women had succeeded in doing, the audience burst into cheers which lasted several minutes.

His testimany was given before the general courtmartial that is trying Lieut. K. E. The defendant entered a general and specific plea of not guilty.

Other witnesses, includingg Maj. Patrick J. Hamrock, Capt. T. Z. Linderfelt, Lieut. L. B. Elliott and Sergt. P. N. Cullen, eye witnesses and participants in the Ludlow battle, testified.

PHYSICIAN ABSENT; HEARING POSTPONED.

A postponed hearing in a contested case under the workingmen's compensation law which came on for hearing before Judge Bert Fesler in district court this morning was continued for a second time owing to the unavoidable absence of Dr. E. L. Tuohy, one of the important witnesses in the case.

The hearing was on the claim of Paul Persovich against the Iroquois Iron company, who alleges that by reason of an accident which he sustained while employed in one of the company's mines on the Cuyuna range, he has been incapacitated for work. For this he asks compensation in accordance with the law.

Persovich asserts that a timber in one of the drifts of the mine fell on him striking him across the breast and that shortly after the occurrence he developed a difficulty in breathing and with the circulation of his blood. On May 2 last, at a hearing before Judge Fesler, three physicians testified that they found the man suffering from an enlargement of the aorta.

IF SKIN ITCHES AND BREAKS OUT APPLY SULPHUR

Get Ounce of Bold-Sulphur Cream and Heal Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

For years, common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections, by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin.

The moment you apply it to an itching or broken out skin the itching stops and the healing begins, says a noted dermatologist. Just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt and remarkable results, even in aggravated Eczema that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

While not always estabilishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which should be applied to the irritated or inflamed parts, like the ordinary cold creams. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the eruption is accompanied with itching.

FAIR WEATHER FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Memorial day weather, it is promised, will be fair and cool, ideal, in other words, for the day.

The weather on Memorial day is important not only for the purposes of the parade, but for those who remember their dead—whether veterans or others—and who go to the various cemeteries to decorate the graves. Almost everybody who has loved ones buried in the city's cemeteries visits there some time during Memorial day if the weather permits and plants flowers and flags on the graves.

If the weather of tomorrow is what is promised it will be ideal for the purpose.

A year ago tomorrow was a most beautiful day.

TWELVE THOUSAND MINERS TO STRIKE

Will Leave the Pits in the Kanawha Coal Fields.

Charleston, W. Va., May 29.—Twelve thousand miners will leave the pits in the Kanawha coal fields tonight. According to the action taken at the convention of the United Mine Workers here yesterday afternoon, they will not return until the operators agree to collect all union dues through their offices. The vote declared that all work should cease June 1, but as the mines are closed on holidays and Sundays, the miners accepted the strike date as meaning that no work would be done after tomorrow. A committee was appointed to draw up the strike order, and it was sent to the farthest parts of the Paint and Cabin creek districts last night.

ASKS MONOPOLY OF BUSINESS NAME

H. W. Brigham Demands Injunction Against Competitor, I. K. Thorvellson.

Duluth is not a large enough city to support two companies doing business under the same trade name, in the opinion of Hurley W. Brigham who yesterday afternoon secured an order from District Judge Cant requiring his competitor, Ingvald K. Thorvellson, to come into court Monday morning and show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued restraining him from operating further as the Interstate Mercantile company.

Brigham claims that he and his former business partner, Henry Tourville, selected this name for their business and that it has been wrongfully appropriated by Thorvellson, who assumed the name for his store on Dec. 16, 1913, after he had rented a storeroom which had been previously occupied by Brigham and Tourville at 1727 West Superior street. Brigham claims that there is confusion in the mail delivery and that he lost considerable business through Thorvellson's action.

The plaintiff and defendant are both engaged in the business of selling dry goods.

DAM IS HARD ON HAY MEADOWS

Four Damage Suits Are Brought Against Trout Lake Company.

Charging that their meadows have been flooded and their crops destroyed by reason of the fact that a dam is being operated at the head of the Vermilion river or outlet of Vermilion lake, four homesteaders have come into district court with claims against the Trout Lake Lumber company ranging from $400 to $1,362 and a request for an injunction restraining the company from further maintaining the dam.

In district court before Judge Cant this morning a jury was drawn to try the four actions jointly. The same facts are involved in each case, the only difference in each suit being the amount of damages asked. Joseph Bracco is seeking $1,362 damages; Ole P. Gruber, $900; Alfred Wadman, $700, and John Aronson, $400. All have farms and hay meadows abutting on Vermilion lake near its outlet, where during the spring of 1912 the lumber company built and maintained a dam. It is claimed that the dam caused the water to rise several feet and as a result the property of the settlers was flooded.

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MUCH ITASCA LAND NOW BEING CLEARED

State Reclamation Scheme in Blackberry Getting on Nicely.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much land is being cleared in this vicinity in unusually large tracts. Among the latter is the land being cleared by the state reclamation board, and the lands being cleared by Niel McKinley of Blackberry, and William Johnson of Amboy, Minn., adjoining the McKinley land.

The job being done by the state reclamation board comprises sixty acres, and is located in the southern end of the town of Blackberry. There are twenty acres on each of three forties of state land. The work is under the supervision of Supt. A. J. McGuire of the state farm, a member of the state reclamation board, and is in charge of R. W. Engstrom. Mr. Engstrom has a dozen men and two teams. Almost twenty acres have been cleared, and the work of brushing the balance has been commenced. The work is being done by day labor, and it is the idea to get a line on cost of doing such work. The land is cut-over pine lands with immense pine stumps and numerous large down timber, and will be quite expensive clearing.

These three tracts of land are to be sold by the state to actual settlers.

Clearing Eighty Acres.

Niel McKinley at his farm in the town of Blackberry, is showing his faith in this section. He let contracts for clearing eighty acres, which he will put under cultivation as soon as it is ready, part of it being now ready and in crop for this year.

Alongside of the land Mr. McKinley is clearing, William Johnson of Amboy, is having forty acres cleared. Mr. Johnson has seventy-seven acres altogether, and he intends to build on his land before next season, when he will move up and make his home on the land.

NEW ROAD WILL BE GREAT BOON

Nashwauk, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday, McWilliams, Latvalla & Lake, a local contracting firm, was awarded the contract for the construction of the Buck Lake-Carpenter road for $33,000.

The road will be twenty miles long and will open for settlement some of the best timber and agricultural land in Itasca county. The contractors will commence work as soon as camps can be erected and all supplies and labor will be secured at Nashwauk. It is expected that the job will last two seasons.

Nashwauk to Celebrate.

Preparations for making the Fourth of July the greatest in the history of Nashwauk are proceeding with great enthusiasm and the committee in charge of this celebration expects to make a report soon. It is already arranged that a magnificent display of fireworks, races, ball game and industrial parade are to be some of the chief attractions.

Most of the civic organizations and the lodges in the village have signified their intentions of taking part and the Commercial club will probably stage a big automobile parade and the children be given a free joy ride. Large posters are being prepared to be circulated throughout the surrounding country, and it is expected that many visitors will be here Independence day.

KEEWATIN VILLAGE WORK.

Many Idle Men Are Now Being Given Employment.

Keewatin, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council is employing the largest force of men in the history of the village and many important permanent improvements to the streets and alleys have been made. Several new streets have been opened up. A new road to the garbage grounds is being constructed and the streets and alleys have been given a general overhauling and now presents a most neat and clean appearance.

Owing to the lack of work in the mines the village council has decided to do the paving work by day labor, which will insure the citizens residing in the village work for the remainder of the summer. The contracts for paving material will be let Monday and work will be commenced as soon as the material arrives. A competent foreman will be engaged and none but local men will be hired to do the work. The citizens of Keewatin are highly satisfied with the way the council is doing things, and if it wasn't for the large number of men being employed by the village many families would suffer for the wants of the necessities of life as work is scarcer this year than it has been for many years.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Sheriff Carson made an easy catch at 10 o'clock this morning when he captured two Finns, who had robbed a saloon at Floodwood at 4 o'clock this morning.

The authorities at Floodwood discovered the robbery early this morning and at once telephoned descriptions of the two men suspected. The sheriff's office here soon got a line on them. Deputy Sheriff Carson watched the tracks and when a long freight came through he saw two men who answered the descriptions and nabbed them. He took them to the jail and in company with Deputy Sheriff Gunderson searched them and found a revolver, several watches and a whole pocket full of silver. The Floodwood authorities were notified and the men were taken to Floodwood this afternoon.

RAPS GREAT NORTHERN.

Virginia Commercial Club Scores Road for Its Service.

Virginia, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club last night panned the Great Northern for its alleged poor service between here and other range towns and decided to circulate petitions among all towns affected asking the railroad commission to look into the charges.

A good roads campaign was also inaugurated. Letters will be sent to members of commercial clubs in the various towns urging them to request their county commissioners to improve all the roads between the range villages, and particularly to urge the improvement of the Sand Lake road.

Want Vacant Lots Cleaned.

The club is makng a strong attempt to have the vacant lots in the city cleaned up and a recommendation has been made to the city council asking for the co-operation of the health department in this matter.

A plan is being tentatively discussed by which the younger element of the city will be asked to aid in the cleaning up of the open ground.

The suggestion is made that children should be paid a bonus of a cent a dozen for all the old tin cans that they can find lying around on vacant lots and other premiums may be offered for the removal of all unsightly articles.

TO START ROAD WORK.

Stuntz Ready to Begin on Chisholm-Hibbing Road.

Hibbing, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Town of Stuntz is ready to start Monday morning on its share of the concrete road between Hibbing and Chisholm," declared Town Clerk Benoe this morning. "The town officers are anxious to have this work done and will be ready to push their share through in as short a time as possible." The village officers have already signified their willingness to start work as soon as the indications point to a completion of the road at the other end.

"It now remains to secure a definite expression from the village of Chisholm and the town of Balkan. The Chisholm Commercial club has committees busy creating sentiment and it is expected that some action will be taken at early meetings. The road is a necessity and the work should be started at once so as to be completed this summer.

The stores, in accordance with a proclamation issued by the council, will close from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at both programs.

Mr. O'Connor of Grand Forks, N. D., who will deliver the address in the afternoon, is a speaker noted not only in the West, but with an enviable reputation in the East, where he has won many debating honors and delivered many brilliant addresses. His speech will be one well worth hearing and he should be accorded the courtesy of a packed house.

The grounds are to be wonderfully beautified and the officials are anxious to have the work completed as soon as possible.

The contract for a cement mixer was let to R. B. Whitaker of Minneapolis. The council instructed the recorder to call for bids for 9,000 barrels of Portland cement and 20,000 square yards of wire netting for reinforcement. This material is to be used in the paving work that is to be started. Bids were also called for the $125,000 refunding bonds.

A committee of ten was appointed by the council to prepare plans for a Fourth of July celebration.

INQUIRE ABOUT ELY.

Ely, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—This district, because of its great wealth in timber and agricultural possibilities, is receiving considerable attention from outsiders. James Moonan, station agent for the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, also secretary of the Burntside Outing company, has lately been receiving a number of inquiries relative to the prospects here and the possibilities here. These letters came not alone from Minnesota, but from neighboring states. This last week brought one from the representative of a large lumber company of Wisconsin relative to conditions here.

QUITS BUHL JOB.

Buhl, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—That neither robbery nor assault was intended by the young men who were frightened away from the Great Northern depot by citizens after Miss Hannah Anderson, night operator, had screamed, but that the men were harmless "mashers," according to a close friend of the young lady's.

"The story that Hannah actually had a tussle with two husky young men and threw them out is absurd," said the friend. "The men had seen Miss Anderson earlier in the evening and as she is a mighty pretty girl, had followed her to the station evidently in an effort to get acquainted. They tapped on the window in attracting her attention and when she started to draw down the shades said some very unmannerly things to her. She screamed and a young man came running down from a nearby pool hall. The men fled. The publicity that the assault and robbery story has caused has been very disagreeable to Miss Anderson."

Miss Anderson, who has only been in Buhl for two weeks, has resigned her position and returned to her home at Nashwauk.

PEOPLE WITH THIN BLOOD

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually and stealthily that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected much more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of diseases caused by thin blood. With pure and wholesome food these blood-making pills afford the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed. A former sufferer from anaemia says: "I was emaciated and did not have a particle of color. I had severe headaches, had no ambition and could just drag around." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly restored appetite, flesh and health. A full statement of this case with directions regarding diet will be found in the booklet, "Building Up the Blood," sent free by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Tomorrow the high school nine will play at Eveleth.

The Hooligans will play tomorrow and Sunday at Tower.

The Sluggers will go to International Falls tomorrow for a game there, both Memorial day and Sunday. The border team is always strong and this year is apparently no exception. It is doubtful if Tedisco will be in shape to twirl and Grady, Booth and Williams will be used. The lineup will be practically the same as that against the Woodlands last week. Thiebert will accompany the team as utility man.

RAIN EXTINGUISHES VERMILION FIRES.

Ely, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday the first drenching rain of the season fell. The forests were getting extremely dry and smoke from forest fires could be seen in several directions. The worst fires of the present week were reported in the Birch lake district and a large number of men from this city were taken under the direction of the forest rangers to fight the flames. The rain yesterday practically extinguished all the fires.

Winton Commencement.

Winton, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commencement exercises here took place Wednesday evening and nineteen diplomas in all were given out. Prof. Wernlund has had a very successful year and wishes that he had decided to stay with us another year, but has all plans made to attend school next year.

Improving Road.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The township of Grand Rapids is doing a good job of road work where the road from Laprairie crosses the Great Northern track in front of the hospital. This road is a part of the Duluth-St. Vincent state road, and aside from being a bad railroad crossing, the spot being fixed has been a narrow, muddy stretch of road, and it is being widened and graded up so that it will be in good shape.

Hibbing, Minn., May 29.—A definite proposition from Manager H. S. CASH WHEAT HOLDS FIRM

Market Is Strong in Near Options With Good Eastern Inquiry.

Flaxseed Closes Higher on Steady Bidding By Crushers' Interests.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 29.—The near wheat options were strong at the close. May wheat closed ⅛c up; July ⅛c up and September ¼c off. May durum closed unchanged and July unchanged.

Oats closed unchanged at 38⅝c for on track. Rye closed unchanged at 59@61c and barley unchanged at 55@59c for choice grain.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed at 37⅝c and July at 38½c.

Prices on Minneapolis July wheat closed at 90⅝c bid and calls at 91⅜@91½c.

Wheat prices were firm throughout today's session in the face of generally bearish crop reports. The May and July options did not move either way during the first three hours' trading, but the September option eased off fractionally.

A fair Eastern inquiry was reported by operators, and a considerable tonnage will be reported out of stocks within the next few days. With current milling requirements to be provided for between now and the marketing of the crop, the cash situation is regarded as exceptionally strong. A decrease of 2,000,000 bu in stocks is shown here during the last five days, and in addition nearly 500,000 bu has been loaded on steamers but not yet reported out of store. This will reduce supplies of spring wheat in the local elevators down to about 3,700,000 bu.

The black rust rumor over which the advance was engineered at yesterday's close, failed to develop into any importance. It met with denial from some crop reporters in the winter wheat territory this morning. Advices were favorable all around with the exception that dry conditions exist in sections of Ohio. Bumper crops are regarded as assured in practically every portion of the Southwest and Middle West states. It was intimated that the cutting of wheat has been started in some sections of Oklahoma, and that generally speaking the crop is well advanced elsewhere. News from over the Northwest also continued encouraging.

With the exception of a run of 173 cars to Chicago, receipts at the leading American markets were light today. The May option opened 1c off down there this morning, and it was intimated that some of the shorts had been enabled to make a settlement in their outstanding contracts.

May wheat opened unchanged at 93⅜c and remained at that figure up to the final hour. July opened unchanged at 93⅜c and also did not move. The July opened unchanged at 85⅝c and sold off ¼c.

There was continued strong Eastern demand for durum and its quotation advanced ⅝c to 90⅜c in the May option, while July was unchanged at 90c.

Flax Sells Higher.

Fair buying by crushers in small lots materialized in flaxseed today, and with light offerings, moderate advances were recorded in all options at the close.

The foreign markets were firm. Buenos Aires closing ⅝c up and Antwerp ⅝c up.

May flax opened and closed ⅝c up at $1.59¾ nominally; July opened unchanged at $1.59½ and closed ⅝c up at $1.16¼ bid; September opened unchanged at $1.60⅞ and closed ⅝c up at $1.61⅝, and the October option opened unchanged at $1.59 and closed ⅝c up at $1.59⅝ bid.

At Winnipeg, May flax closed at $1.38½ and July at $1.40 bid.

Thomas F. Milligan of the Monarch Elevator company of Minneapolis, is here on his vacation. Like many others Mr. Milligan spends his vacation by consorting with grain men and talking business.

The Kensington is loading out 225,000 bu oats at the Globe elevators, and the G. L. Craig 58,000 bu spring wheat, 100,000 bu durum and 44,000 bonded wheat at the Consolidated elevator today. The steamer Albright will also come under the spouts for 220,000 bu spring wheat to be shipped to Chicago to fill an order received by Stephen H. Jones.

At Minneapolis the cash demand was just fair. No. 1 northern blue stem sold at 1¾ to 3½c over July and velvet chaff at 1½@1¾c over July. There was no change in the flour trade. The demand was limited.

Broomhall estimates world's shipments exclusive of North America at 8,400,000 bu against 8,112,000 bu last week. Of this Europe will take about 7,600,000 bu. Total shipments last week were 13,608,000 bu, and last year 14,176,000 bu. Arrivals into the United Kingdom were about 2,800,000 bu. Australian wheat shipments were 1,132,000 bu and Indian shipments 736,000 bu. Estimates for next week are 1,300,000 bu wheat.

B. W. Snow is authority for the statement that no fears of damage need be expected from black rust in winter wheat and that it is entirely a minor affair. The black rust does not become a factor unless the season is late enough that the third cycle of spores to develop, and the crop this year is slightly earlier than normal.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—"Wheat—Firmer American cables yesterday together with dearer European offers, stimulated shorts to cover, and the opening was ¼d higher. Following the opening, there was a further gain of ⅛@¼d on lighter Indian offers, improved demand for American winters at higher prices, and a forecast of lighter world's shipments, other than from America with predictions of a large percentage of these destined to the continent. Continental demand shows signs of renewed activity, and cargo offers are firmer. At 1:30 p. m., the undertone was firm ⅜@½d higher. Corn opened under pressure of realizing induced by the heavy feeling in Buenos Aires and values were ½@¾d lower. Following the opening, there was a further break of ⅝d in July with realizing on a rumor that a cargo of Plate had been diverted to Liverpool and the fact that there were no shipments to America this week. At 1:30 p. m., the market was irregular, July ⅝d lower, and Sept. ¼d lower."

An Argentine cable said that the weather there is fine but warmer, and warm weather is predicted. Cool dry weather is needed. The outlook for the new wheat crop there is fine. Corn arrivals are very light, and the quality is poor.

Argentine wheat shipments this week were 560,000 bu, as compared with 1,176,000 bu last week and 1,384,000 bu last year. Oats, 320,000 bu, against 440,00 bu last week and 2,320,000 bu last year; corn, 1,082,000 bu, as compared with 1,718,000 bu last week and 5,899,000 bu last year.

Lecount wired Baker's Chicago correspondent from Wichita, Kan.—"Prospects over the territory recently covered are as nearly perfect as wheat ever grows. The crop is all headed with enough moisture to mature. The crop in the east third of the state is more or less affected with fly, but the loss from that cause will not be felt if the balance of the standing grain matures properly. I do not expect severe hot winds, as there is so much vegetation and moisture, and consider the possibility of black rust very remote as there is generally wind here. A wonderfully large crop is almost assured."

It being Decoration day, the Duluth board of trade and all the American grain exchanges will be closed tomorrow.

Modern Miller says: "Wet weather in Texas has retarded wheat cutting, but more favorable conditions prevail. Oklahoma cutting will be general next week with faborable weather, with the high estimate of yields reduced. All reports from Kansas are favorable and a record production is promised. In Illinois army worms and Hessian fly have cut the prospects fully 25 per cent. There are increased reports of deterioration in Indiana, but some districts have had favorable rains. In Kentucky, Tennessee and Southern Indiana dry weather and high temperatures have been unfavorable for maturing wheat. The general prospect indicates the largest winter wheat crop ever harvested, but materially below the high estimate of a month ago."

ARE PARTLY RECOVERED

Early Declines in Stocks Are Followed By Some Advances.

Leading Issues at Best Figures in the Final Dealings.

New York, May 29.—In the main, stocks were inclined to sag during today's early operations, which were of a more than ordinarily restricted character. The only active issue to show underlying strength was Missouri Pacific, with a gain of a point for the stock and as much for the convertible bonds, implying a satisfactory outcome of the note extension plan. Canadian Pacific, selling ex-dividend, lost a little more than a point, despite the reported transfer to one of its steamships. United States Steel, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and metal shares declined material fractions.

Although there was no pressure to sell, stocks moved toward a lower level as the session advanced. To the average speculator the Federal government's attitude in the matter of anti-trust legislation and railroad investigation was regarded as somewhat disconcerting.

St. Paul softened in sympathy with its new financing and New Haven's weakness came from obvious causes, as also did that of Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central. Of all the better known issues, Reading alone held fairly steady despite weakness in Lehigh Valley, its affiliated property. More gold for Europe was under negotiation.

Bonds were easy.

Conditions were unchanged during the mid-season except for substantial gains in a few specialties, including Beet Sugar, which rose 2 points on reports of an advance in the raw product. London sold moderately but persistently here, chiefly of Steel, total sales aggregating perhaps 10,000 shares. Forecasts indicate a fairly large loss of cash by the local banks for the week.

The market closed steady today. In the final dealings prices of leading issues rose to their best. The recovery, it may be assumed, resulted more from covering of short contracts than from any definite information.

QUIET TRADING IN COPPER STOCKS

After showing weakness during the greater part of the day, mining stocks turned firm at Boston in the late trading, and closing prices were practically up in some issues. A weak factor came in congestion in the copper metal situation, and the intimation that the Anaconda Copper company has started a period of curtailment in outputs amounting at the present to 3,000,000 pounds of copper a month.

Butte & Superior closed 25 cents up at $26.63; Alaska Gold a fraction up at $27.63; Calumet & Arizona 38 cents off at $66.63; Greene-Cananea 25 cents up at $33.25; North Butte unchanged at $26.50; Shattuck 25 cents up at $25, and Amalgamated Copper a fraction off at $72.87. Granby sold ex-dividend $1.50 at $81.

Keating was a strong feature in the Duluth curb list, selling at $1.50. Calumet & Sonora sold at 75 cents; Calumet & Corbin at 28 cents. Florence at 15 cents and Savanna at $1.50.

A circular letter has been issued to shareholders of the Giroux Consolidated Mines company by E. A. Wall of Salt Lake City, Idaho, inviting them to join him in an action brought in the Federal court of the state of Delaware. In this it will be sought by the plaintiffs to withdraw the holdings of the Giroux and Butte & Ely shareholders from the Consolidated Copper Mines company.

Paine, Webber & Co. had the following wire from New York: "Beyond some business done yesterday in Europe on a basis a trifle better than the New York equivalent of 14¼c a pound, the copper market is stagnant. Metal offering here freely by large sellers at 14¼c for electrolytic delivered thirty days."

Copper exports for the week ended May 28 were 3 939 tons, an increase of 667 tons. For the month to date, they were 30,777 tons, a decrease of 3,702 tons, and from Jan. 1, 183,012 tons, an increase of 21,013 tons.

Old Dominion has declared a quarterly dividend of $1 per share, payable July 7. Books close from June 19 to June 29, both days inclusive.

TWO TEAMS MAKE GOOD.

Some Positions Shifted in W.-I. League During Week.

Green Bay, Wis., May 29.—The Oshkosh and Madison clubs of the Wisconsin-Illinois baseball league this week stuck to the top positions by dividing honors with their opponents. The Wausau team got half of its games and the Appleton team won two and lost one game. Green Bay and the Twin City clubs made the best showing by winning three and losing one game each.

The poorest showing was made by the Racine club, which dropped three games and went from third to fifth position as a consequence. The Rockford club won one of its three contests and is last place. Madison, Oshkosh, Wausau and Green Bay have fallen off in batting during the week, according to official figures, while Appleton, Rockford, Racine and Twin City show a slight improvement in stick work.

Wins "Ladies' Derby."

Epsom, Eng., May 29.—J. B. Joel's brown filly, Princess Dorrie, today won the Oaks stakes, known as the "Ladies' Derby." Lord Carnarston's Wassilissa was second and Sir John Thursby's Torchlight, third. There were twenty-one starters.

BOND ISSUE FOR STREET CAR LINE

$300,000 First Mortgage Bonds for Brainerd Street Railway.

At a meeting in the Alworth building this morning the directors of the Minnesota Central Railway company took action of much importance to Brainerd and the other principal towns on the Cuyuna iron range. The board authorized the issue of $300,000 of 20-year first mortgage gold bonds, to be used in the construction and equipment of the Brainerd street car line and for the acquisition of real estate in the city of Brainerd and also outside the city limits in Crow Wing county. The bonds are to bear interest not to exceed 7 per cent, the rate to be fixed by President Reid and Treasurer Ferrier after consultation with various financial interests.

Under its Brainerd franchise the company must begin active construction work not later than Sept. 15 next, but indications are that the company will begin work before that time, or as soon as it has marketed the bond issue. Five miles at least must be built in the city of Brainerd, and the line in Brainerd will form part of a continuous interurban line covering the Cuyuna iron range and having a total length of forty-two to forty-five miles. Among the towns which will be connected with Brainerd by the electric line are Deerwood, Crosby, Ironton, Riverton, Cuyuna, Manganese and Iron Mountain. Later an extension will be built from Brainerd to Barrows.

SATURDAY WILL BE HOLIDAY

All Stores in City Will Close—Open This Evening.

You'd better buy your groceries and meats tonight, for there will be no chance tomorrow.

The much-mooted question as to whether or not the stores of the city would close all day tomorrow has at last been settled. Nearly all the merchants will shut up shop for the entire day.

The only reason for doubt was that Memorial day, falling on Saturday, it was believed it would be inconvenient to householders, owing to Sunday, another closed day, following, to close all day. However, pressure was brought to bear on those who objected to closing, and it has finally been decided that instead of closing for only a few hours during the parade, the stores will close the entire day.

They will remain open tonight until the usual hour of closing as on Saturday, and householders will do well to lay in their supplies.

COMMENCEMENT AT EAST GRAND FORKS.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seven graduates will receive diplomas at commencement exercises here tonight: Thomas Ryan, Walter Nelson, Anna Brundin, William Kaufmann, Lawrence Mero, Florence Carney and Esther Skinner.

Ten pupils will receive diplomas from the high school normal department.

Buy a Home

For Yourself Instead of the Landlord

$20.00 a month rent amounts to $240.00 a year; $2400.00 in ten years. You've paid the landlord full price for his house in ten years, but he still owns it; all you have is the rent receipts.

For a small payment down and $20 or less per month you can buy a home and own it, clear of all encumbrance, in less than ten years.

SAD SIGHT AS HARVEST OF RESCUE SHIPS IS LAID ON PIERS AND SHEDS

DULUTH PAYS TRIBUTE TO CIVIL WAR HEROES

CHEERS AND BARED HEADS GREET THEM

Perfect Weather for Best Memorial Parade in City's History.

Auditorium and Orpheum Theater Crowded for Morning Exercises.

M. H. Boutelle of Minneapolis Orator of Day—Decorating Graves.

Duluth today paid homage to the surviving heroes of the Civil war, and its loving tribute to the memory of those who have passed away.

Commemorative of those young men who gave their lives in the battles between the North and South and in honor of the veterans of the Civil war, whose gradually thinning ranks forecast the day when the last veteran will have joined the great majority, Duluth's observance of Memorial day this year showed more loyal fervor and patriotism than any similar celebration in past years.

Greeted by perfect weather, the Grand Army veterans appeared again before Duluth. As the years go by and the old soldiers one by one join the army beyond, those remaining seem to become the more loved and honored. Rapidly their ranks are thinning, but the appreciation of their deeds seems to increase in inverse ratio.

The parade this morning was probably the largest and most representative Duluth has ever turned out. The officials in charge and marshals of the day led and were followed by the school children of the city. The Grand Army veterans brought up the rear in automobiles.

As the veterans passed along the crowded streets, they were greeted by hand clapping and shouts of welcome. Rich and poor, young and old alike, paid homage to the men who valiantly fought for the glory of the North. And with bared heads, the hoary soldiers of '61 nodded and smiled on this day, the happiest of the year for them.

The Parade.

Every patriotic organization in Duluth participated in the parade, which started at 10 o'clock this morning.

BRITISHERS GIVEN SHOCK

King George Sends Sympathy to the Canadian People.

President of France Gives Expression to His Sorrow.

London, May 30.—The British public, which went home last night believing that the greater part of the passengers on board the Empress of Ireland had survived the disaster in the St. Lawrence, was shocked this morning to learn that the loss of life exceeded 1,000, and that many of the victims were from the United Kingdom.

King George early in the morning sent a messenger to the European manager of the Canadian Pacific railway expressing his sorrow and regret at the disaster and the great loss of life. The lord mayor of London, upon learning of the extent of the disaster, decided to open the fund toward the relief of the widows and orphans of those passengers and crew who had been lost.

Great crowds besieged the London and Liverpool offices of the company and anxiously scanned the lists of the rescued.

King George's Sympathy.

King George today cabled to the duke of Connaught, governor general of Canada:

"I am deeply grieved over the awful disaster to the Empress of Ireland, in which so many Canadians lost their lives. Queen Mary and I both assure you of our heartfelt sympathy with those who mourn for the loss of relatives and friends."

MAN ATTACKED BY A ROOSTER

Flies Into His Face and Tears With Its Sharp Spurs.

Houston, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Postmaster F. Schonlau of this village was so severely injured by a rooster yesterday that he is confined to his home under the attention of a physician.

Schonlau was stooping over in his hennery when the bird flew into his face, tearing him with its sharp spurs, and repeatedly struck him on the face, neck, arms and legs.

Schonlau was finally obliged to flee from the coop and to call a doctor to dress his wounds. Last night the rooster was captured while asleep and today furnished the family a chicken dinner.

ABIDE BY DECISION OF THE MEDIATORS

Attitude of Huerta Delegates on Constitutionalists' Request.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 30.—The South American mediators are confronted today with the problem of whether or not they will permit Constitutionalist representatives to enter the conferences here. The issue has been raised through the sending of a note from Gen. Carranza by a special messenger, Juan F. Urquidi, in which the Constitutionalist chief expresses surprise that the mediators proceeded with the negotiations without replying to his telegram asking what points would be discussed in the mediation.

The Huerta delegates know only unofficially of the presence here of Mr. Urquidi, but they expected today to be formally advised of the nature of the communication he brought. On the subject of Constitutionalist representation, the Huerta delegates have decided among themselves that they will abide by any decision the mediators may make.

PRESIDENT IS AT ARLINGTON

Attends Memorial Day Exercises at the National Cemetery.

Not Willing That His Absence Should Be Misconstrued.

Washington, May 30.—President Wilson today changed his plans to attend the Memorial day exercises at Arlington national cemetery. Secretary Tumulty made a statement explaining that the president "was not willing that his absence should be misconstrued."

In announcing the president's decision, Secretary Tumulty said:

"When the invitation was extended by the committee representing the Grand Army of the Republic of the District of Columbia, the president informed the committee that he did not think the occasion would be opportune for the delivery of an appropriate address and because of this felt he must decline the invitation, agreeing, however, to attend memorial services at a later date.

False Construction Placed.

"Evidently a false construction has been placed upon this action and therein lies the reason for the change in the program.

"The president was not willing that his absence should be misconstrued."

MORE THAN HUNDRED OF SALVATION ARMY SANK WITH THE SHIP

Exhausted Survivors of the Disaster Arrived at Montreal.

Sergeant Fowler Says Captain Stuck to Post to Last.

Montreal, May 30.—Exhausted survivors of the Empress of Ireland disaster, wearing misfit clothing supplied by the people of Rimouski, arrived in Montreal today. In the party was a remnant of the Salvation Army band, more than a hundred of whom perished. The survivors included: Messrs. McIntyre, Measures, Greenaway, staff Capt. McAmmond, Lieut. Keith, James Johnston, Maj. and Mrs. Atwell, E. Green, Capt. Spooner, little Grace Hannagan, Miss Bales, all of Toronto; Mrs. Cook and Band Serg. Fowler, Vancouver, and Miss Wilmot of Winnipeg.

"I was looking through the port hole in my cabin amidships," said Band Serg. Fowler, "when I saw a big black shape loom up out of the darkness. It seemed only a few feet away.

Grinding Sensation.

"Then came the jolt; it could not be called a crash because it was more of a grinding sensation. Before I realized what had happened my cabin began to fill with water. I groaned out of the cabin and up the main companionway. I saw a girl with a baby in her arms and a little child following her. The girl begged me to put a life belt on her, so I stopped long enough to do this."

By the time Fowler had reached the deck, he said, the ship was listing badly and the passengers had to cling to the rail to keep from going over the side. Fowler jumped.

Bodies Bumped Into Him.

"I went down and down until I thought my lungs would burst," he said. "Bodies bumped into me. Once a man threw his arms around me and I had to fight to break his grip. I swam several hundred feet and was SCARED BY DISASTER; CANCEL THEIR TRIPS.

London, May 30.—A number of passengers who had booked berths on trans-Atlantic steamers sailing today cancelled their trips at the last moment as the result of the disaster to the Empress of Ireland.

HEAD OF THE COMPANY THAT OWNS STEAMSHIP

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Steamship Lines.

EIGHT LOST FROM LITTLE VILLAGE

Leading Business Men of Minnesota Town Perish on Ireland.

Houston, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eight from this little village of 200 people, including several of its leading business men, were lost on the Empress of Ireland. A telegram from the company's office at Montreal says they took the steamer and their names are not in the list of saved. The Houston victims are:

Andrew Carlson.
Ulf Johnson.
John Gustafson.
Mrs. Alvin Carlson and four children.

THREE HUNDRED BODIES FROM SUNKEN STEAMER HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

Figures Compiled By Canadian Pacific Railway Show That 1,032 Persons In All Perished.

Thrilling Stories Told By Survivors of Scenes When Empress of Ireland Went Down.

Quebec, May 30.—More than 1,000 persons lost their lives when the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Ireland sank in the St. Lawrence early Friday morning after the liner had been rammed by the Danish collier Storstad.

Figures compiled by the Canadian Pacific Railway company, and made public today, indicated that 1,032 persons in all had perished. Their list follows:

First class passengers saved, 18; second and third class passengers saved, 131; crew saved, 206; total, 355.

The number of passengers carried by the Empress of Ireland: First class, 87; second class, 133; third class, 715; crew, 432. Total, 1,387.

RECOVERING BODIES.

With the survivors safe in Quebec, where their wants and sorrows are being given every possible care, attention was turned today to Rimouski, where efforts to recover the bodies of victims were in progress.

Up to an early hour today more than 300 bodies had been laid there.

The dead were piled in tiers, making it possible to scrutinize the bodies for purposes of identification. Few have so far been recognized. There appears to be many foreigners among the dead, judging from passports found on the bodies.

Women and children are plentifully represented in the grim pile, among them one mother with her child pressed closely to her breast.

SIGHT IS HEART-RENDING.

Those who witnessed the scene at Rimouski, where the sad harvest of the rescue ships was laid on the piers and sheds, say that the sight was heart-rending. Many of the dead stared heavenward with wide opened eyes, some with horror in them and others with an air of puzzled surprise. There was but little attempt to cover the corpses and for the most part they lay practically as they had been taken out of the water, some half dressed and others nearly naked.

The tender Lady Grey has been designated as a funeral ship and is expected to reach Quebec late today wih the bodies of the dead so far recovered. An army of carpenters and undertakers who worked all last night are still busy converting one of the large freight sheds on the harbor front into a temporary morgue for the reception of the bodies.

The Storstad Arrives.

The collier Storstad which rammed the ill-fated Empress af Ireland arrived here shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, accompanied by the wrecking steamer Strathcona and anchored in midstream. A press boat went out but newspapermen were refused permission to board. It was learned, however, that she had saved many of the Empress' passengers.

The Storstad is badly damaged, having a hole some fifteen feet square in her bow.

The Storstad left for Montreal with the wrecking steamer Strathcona shortly after 5 o'clock, presumably after receiving orders to that effect. She is making slow progress owing to the damaged condition of her bow.

Only Five Boats Launched.

From the accounts of the saved it seems that soon after the ship was rammed she careened until her deck stood at right angles to the water. She slid slowly into the water and it was only possible to launch five boat in the brief interval before she finally sank.

Capt. Kendall was on the bridge when the collision occurred. When the steamer sank he was washed away,

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

WAS MISTY BUT NOT FOGGY WHEN THE CRASH OCCURED

Capt. Kendall Laments Collier's Failure to Hold Her Bow in the Rent Opened in the Liner's Side.

Rimouski, Que., May 30.—The government boat Lady Evelyn, laden with more than 300 dead from the steamship Empress of Ireland, steamed away from Rimouski today for Quebec, where, in an improved morgue the victims of the disaster, will await identification.

Capt. Kendall of the Empress, still crushed by what has occurred, was a little better this morning. He still suffers from injuries sustained, but has not contracted pneumonia as was reported. To friends with whom he has talked, he lamented bitterly the failure of the collier Storstad to hold her bow in the rent she had opened in the liner's side.

It appears that it was misty but not actually foggy when the crash occurred. The Empress had passed Rimouski at 1:30 a. m. and was on her course. Capt. Kendall was on the bridge and ordered the ship slowed down. Then he made out the lights of an approaching steamer. He whistled and the steamer answered, indicating that the signal had been understood. The vessels were far apart when these signals were exchanged. As they came nearer the Empress' engines came to a full stop, but she drifted under her momentum. Then Capt. Kendall, it is said, ordered "slow astern." The Storstad kept on her way towards the liner.

One theory expressed is that Capt. Anderson of the Storstad tried to cross the bow of the larger boat. At any event her nose missed the bow of the liner and she plunged into her just amidships. It was not a severe shock but the wound inflicted was at the spot where the double hull and bulkheads were of no avail.

opening the exercises for the day. The military battalions all participated, while the school children and the many fraternal organizations from all parts of the city were well represented in the line of march that started from in front of the Armory, continued down to Superior street, west to Fifth avenue, up the avenue to First street and then east to the Auditorium.

N. L. Upham, chaplain of Culver post, and the oldest Civil war veteran in Duluth, was at the head of the parade as the honorary grand marshal of the day. He is 81 years old, and on his horse presented a stately figure, leading the long line of men, women and children. His staff consisted of the four next oldest Grand Army men in Duluth, who are J. H. Baker, 79 years old; John Dimond, 79; C. E. Bostwick, 79, and William Carnathan, 80.

Behind the veterans came Col. F. E. Resche of the Third regiment, Minnesota National Guard, grand marshal of the parade, and his staff, consisting of Capt. R. M. Weaver, M. N. G., chief of staff, and Lieut. Col. H. V. Eva, M. N. G.; Capt. S. F. White, G. A. R.; Capt. S. W. Clark, G. A. R.; Maj. E. D. Peek, U. S. Engineer corps; Lieut. Thomas W. Gunn, U. S. A.; Capt. C. C. Salter, Sons of Veterans; Col. Joseph Gibson, U. S. W. V.; Lieut. E. G. Hanson, U. S. W. V.; Col. A. H. Paul, I. O. O. F.; Capt. D. E. Case, Citizens' staff; Col. John Uno Sebenius and Col. M. M. Gasser.

A troup of police followed, leading the long line of marchers. First came the state military and naval forces, led by the Third Regiment band, and then followed the citizens' staff, government and city employes, with the speakers and entertainers of the day in automobiles at the rear of this division.

The third division, with Capt. C. C. Salter in command, included the Loyal Temperance legion and the representative fraternal orders of Duluth. Then came the school children from nearly every school in Duluth, all of them marching in well-drilled order and under the leadership of captains and lieutenants selected from among their own number. They competed for the two flags that are to be awarded to the two best appearing schools in Duluth, the city having been divided in two sections, with the Point of Rocks as the center.

Children in Competition.

The children also entered large floats in the parade and these are all worthy of commendation. The Ely school float, showing a Red Cross tent, with the nurses in charge, and followed by a number of girls dressed as Indians and the boys decorated with American flags, was generally and favorably commented on by the large crowds watching the line of march.

The fifth and last division was led by the G. A. R. drum corps, with Asa Dailey in charge. Then came the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish War veterans, and lastly the Grand Army veterans in automobiles.

When the line of march reached Fourth avenue west and Superior street, the G. A. R. veterans were motored from their position in the line to Fourth avenue and First street, where they were lined up on the avenue to review the parade. After watching the marchers go by, the veterans fell in at the end of the line and continued on to the Auditorium.

The line of march for the parade follows:

Decorating the Graves.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the ceremony of decorating the graves was held at the various cemeteries. Asa Dailey of Gorman post, was in charge and the veterans, who were taken to the cemeteries in automobiles, distributed the flowers and wreaths that had been left early this morning by Mr. Dailey and his assistants. A special memorial service was held over the grave of each of the sixteen veterans who died during the last twelve months.

The final exercise of the day will be the memorial service on board the U. S. S. Gopher in honor of the sailor dead. A special feature this year was the service in commemoration of the young men who were killed recently in the attack on Vera Cruz by the American marines and sailors. The weather was ideal for the service and it was expected to be one of the most impressive held during the day.

MEMORIAL DAY ADDRESS

M. H. Boutelle's Tribute to the Heroes of the Civil War.

The principal address of the day was made by M. H. Boutelle of Minneapolis, who spoke in part as follows:

"Half a century has elapsed since the curtain was rung down on the greatest of civil tragedies the world had ever known.

"No sordid motive furnished the theme of that tragedy; no greed for conquest or power. The world was familiar with conquests of oppression, with all their revelations of misery and desolation. But now for the first time it had witnessed the spectacle of the grandest armies ever gathered together, struggling in the holy cause of freedom, not to destroy but to perpetuate, not for conquest but for principle.

"And, as that last curtain was rung down, is it to be wondered that the whole world was hushed with awe at the revelations of the inspiring scenes of heroism and sacrifice? Is it to be wondered that the participants in that fearful conflict seemed translated—rather demigods than men?

A Reunited Nation.

"If such were the feelings and impressions of the world at large, what be said of those of the actors themselves? As we ourselves pause at the inspiration these thoughts conjure, we can feel the very pulse-beats of national honor and national patriotism. We likewise are hushed with awe and, as memory revives these scenes, we stand with bowed and uncovered heads before the altar of our national existence.

"From the grandeur of the scenes of war with their countless deeds of heroism we are brought back to more somber thoughts of their significance in our national life.

"What and who are we of today to be the recipients of such sublime sacrifice?

Benefit of Example.

"We feel our own unworthiness. Our very vows and professions sound hollow and insincere. We are only conscious that the heart pulses with pride and gratitude for the transcendent loyalty, sacrifice and patriotism of those who bequeathed to us a reunited nation. We pledge anew our fealty and devotion to the principles which they cherished.

"On the altar of love, the fires have never ceased to burn. That altar is enshrined in every home and its incense has, and will continue, to pour forth as long as love of country is the inspiring motive of our national life.

"It is fitting, however, and is our privilege, that one day should be set apart in the year, consecrated to patriotism and to expressions of our love and reverence for those who bore the brunt and responsibility of that titanic struggle.

"Decoration day! How sweet and tender the myriad of memories this term suggests. Born of sorrow and grief, its very sacredness hallows both the grief and sorrow until the mind is lost in contemplation of its holiness and beauty.

Commemorating Eternal Life.

"We speak of commemorating the dead. But we know we are rather commemorating eternal life. In reviewing the memories of the past, we revive those who participated in the stirring drama and picture them as passing before us in grand review in the full flush of youth and manhood.

"With hearts mellowed by the tenderest thoughts of love, no words can add to the inspiration of the hour. The voiceless sermon in the soul of each furnishes the most eloquent tribute to the men who have gone and the deepest reverence for those who survive. The silent prayer of a grateful nation must rise through space like the anthem from some grand organ's throat until their echoes reverberate over the great bivouac in the beyond.

"While the hour is one for tender and sacred memories rather than words, convention demands some expression of our thoughts. We awaken from our reveries of the past to the realities of the present. Material thoughts seem strangely harsh and out of place. Strive as we may to direct the train of thought along any well defined course, we find ourselves ever recurring to the tender memories suggested by the past.

Career of Gen. Chamberlain.

"The year, however, through which we have just passed witnessed the ending of the earthly career of one of the most gallant of those leaders. Possibly in part from the circumstance of his recent summons to the last bugle call and in part from the fact of my own good fortune in having enjoyed his personal acquaintance during the years following the war, it has been suggested by your committee that it would be appropriate if some special reference were made to him on this occasion.

"In the full realization of my inability to do justice to the character and achievements of this illustrious man, it is a pleasure and privilege to make some reference to his remarkable career. I refer to Gen. Joshua L. Chamberlain, the gallant and intrepid leader of the old Twentieth Maine infantry.

"From these we turn in wonder and amazement to contemplate the seeming paradox exemplified in the person of Gen. Chamberlain. His heart was that of a woman, but his courage that of a lion.

"From 1855 to 1862 this gentle and refined man occupied successively the chairs of instructor of natural and revealed religion, professor of rhetoric, instructor in French and German and professor of modern languages.

"In 1862 he was granted a leave of absence of two years for the purpose of pursuing his studies in Europe. The lion was sleeping. The reserves, however, of the Union army, the critical condition of the nation and the call for additional troops, accomplished the awakening. Within an incredibly short period of time the man of peace and letters was at the front. In the long and honorable career that followed four events stand out conspicuously in this, one of the most remarkable careers recorded by the history of that war.

"As long as that history shall remain fresh in the memory, we shall never forget the feats of this intrepid leader and his decimated regiment at Little Round Top at the battle of Gettysburg on the afternoon of July 2, 1863.

"That battle has been referred to as the flood tide of the Confederacy. The deeds of valor of the troops then engaged have been recounted in both song and story. They have been rehearsed at the camp fire and it were seemingly invidious to segregate any one from the list of gallant leaders who contributed to the heroic deeds and achievements enacted on that field.

His Life a Paradox.

"It is in just such crises that some great soul arises, and in this instance it was the indomitable spirit of the unconquered Anglo-Saxon in the person of this mild man of letters who perhaps saved the day.

"So conspicuous were the services of Col. Chamberlain in this fight that he was voted a medal of honor by congress for daring heroism and great tenacity in holding his position on Little Round Top and carrying the advance position on the Great Round Top at the battle of Gettysburg.

"Never, perhaps, in the history of modern warfare did the indomitable courage and will power manifest itself more strongly in a leader than as exemplified in that most desperate charge of Chamberlain's brigade on Rives' salient at the assault on Petersburg on June 18, 1964.

"But perhaps nothing in the man's history brings out more clearly the characteristics which had already made him conspicuous on the field than his action during the last and decisive battle of the war at Five Forks.

"What this man had accomplished at the war's close would more than have filled the measure of the ordinary life. But not so with him. Retiring from the army, he returned to his native state where he was shortly honored by his fellow citizens by election to the governorship.

"Here again he was called upon to manifest the same undaunted courage that had characterized him on the field. His was the spirit of Lincoln. His was the love which Lincoln bore throughout his life to our quondam foes.

"Retiring from political life, Gen. Chamberlain became the president of Bewdoin college, his alma mater, and continued in that office until 1883.

"It is healthful and helpful to indulge in the tender reminiscences suggested by this day, but there is another and further significance which forces itself upon our consideration in the practical conditions with which we are confronted, a half century after the echoes of the last guns of that war had ceased. Our duty is only half performed if extending no further than professions of devout reverence and love for those who preserved this nation, for posterity.

No Sacrifice Too Great.

"It has been said in substance that no price, whether of blood or treasure, was too great for the Union's salvation. But the price in both blood and treasure was all too great if the time has come or shall ever come, when the posterity to which the legacy of a reunited nation was bequeathed shall fail in the true measure of its appreciation of the gift involved in that awful sacrifice. The price was all too great if posterity has, or shall, forget the lesson of that conflict: its underlying principle or its objective purpose.

"As the mists of time have obscured the clouds of war, we are in danger of turning too lightly the page of history. We see glamor and romance in the movements of armies. We dwell on the heroism of the troops and of their indomitable leaders. We are too apt to lose sight of the obligation which that war devolved upon us and of its living and actual significance in our national affairs at the present time. Many of the lessons taught by that conflict and learned by its participants, at terrible cost, have already been forgotten. We are fond of boasting of the loyalty, the patriotism and the valor of the volunteer soldiery. Farthest be it from my purpose to call in question this boast. But I call you of the survivors of that four years eventful struggle to witness that the term 'volunteer soldiery' as applied to your magnificent army, conveys in its significance, only half a truth.

"But we must not forget our experiences with the new and untried troops at the first and second Bull Run. We must not forget that that magnificent army as it finally emerged victoriously from a hundred fields, was the result of years of arduous service and discipline.

The Volunteer Army.

"You know that the magnificent army which was mustered out at the close of the war and whose strength challenged the admiration and respect of the civilized world was an army of veterans. You know that that splendid fighting machine which ultimately brought about the downfall of the Confederacy had been moulded in the mould of experience and years of active service.

"I sometimes wonder as to the thoughts of the old boys, who realize fully the import of these facts, when they hear or read the fervent and burning words which would hurl this nation into war over some unsubstantial provocation or pretext. I wonder how you feel when you listen to the words of some impassioned orator telling his auditors of the vast potential strength of the so-termed "citizen soldiery."

"If that war carried with it any lesson which this nation should learn today, it is the awful cost and sacrifice of both blood and money which can transform this visionary civilian soldiery into the serviceable and efficient machine of war.

"After the experiences of the early years of our Civil war, it is incredible that as a nation, such illusions should continue. But as years roll on, we seem to be drifting farther and farther from the practical lessons of that conflict and it is to be feared that we may only be disillusionized by a repetition of our costly earlier experiences.

Loyalty of the People.

"We naturally thrill with pride as we contemplate the all-pervading spirit of loyalty and patriotism of our people, but no one knows better than you survivors, that however essential patriotism may be, something else is required to make an efficient army, capable of sustaining the actual strain and burden of war.

"No one knows better than you survivors, how mistaken the policy we have pursued and how awful the tribute we should be called upon to pay to inexperience, in the event of war.

"But there is another and deeper lesson which we must draw from the page of history. Strange to relate, in this over-commercialized period of our existence, indications point that that lesson has been wholly overlooked, if not forgotten.

"You may assign the causes of the Civil war to any or all of the detailed issues which led up to its occurrence. But however expressed, in their last analysis, all come to the same fundamental conception—that war was waged to preserve, in its fullest integrity, our national constitution. The issue of state's rights and the extension of slavery were incidental.

"There never was a time when this lesson required to be forced home more imperatively than the present. Our Constitution is the veritable Gibraltar of our institutions.

"Into its fabric was woven centuries of Anglo Saxon experience in the struggle for liberty. Vital necessity is written into every line. The divinely inspired words of Lincoln are still fresh. Yet, notwithstanding, we find today real or ostensible leaders who would minimize its significance and appeal to the people to cast off what they vehemently characterize as the shackles of constitutional restraints.

Need of Wisdom Now.

"Never, perhaps, in our history was greater need for appealing to the wisdom of those self-imposed restraints. The page of history fails to record an instance of a government, prepetuated, where the unrestrained popular will was supreme.

"We have heard all too much of the infallibility of popular will. Sober reflection cannot fail to admit that both individually and collectively the popular will is too often the prey of popular clamor, excitement, passion or prejudice.

"When we lose sight of the basic theory that this is a representative government, we lose sight of the fundamental principle of the government itself.

"It sometimes appears as though those who make the strongest appeal to popular prejudice and seek to influence popular passions are aiming to undermine our governmental structure.

"In the present temper of popular feeling it were a strong man who would have the courage to stand forth before the people and frankly and candidly tell them that they did not know, that in many respects they were not best qualified to judge of that which was for the best interest of themselves and their fellowmen. And yet every sober-minded man knows that such statements would be true.

Attitude to Public Service.

"The trend of the times today is portentious in its significance. The end is not yet. But he is indeed optimistic who can survey present-day conditions without a feeling of awe. We know there was a time when men considered it not only an honor but a duty to assume public responsibility. We know there was a time when the greatest intellects of the country consecrated their lives to the service of government. We have but to turn back the page of history to the times which we are commemorating today, to demonstrate the fact. Comparisons are invidious but he who will calmly contemplate the present day's roster of public men can hardly fail to propound the inquiry, what has produced the change?

"We already have too many instances of men who have devoted their lives to the service of their government and whose untimely deaths have left those dependent upon them practically pauperized. Such things are not pleasant to contemplate but it is sometimes healthful to look homely facts in the face. Every laborer is worthy of his hire, and in the practical world of business, his compensation is largely measured by efficiency. Neither the elements of efficiency or worth have penetrated the seemingly somnolescent governmental mind. Government finds as the commodity of which it possesses the greatest supply and as the resource which is in no danger of depletion, abstract honor.

Service a Sacrifice.

"Where a governmental service was once to be desired, it has now become a sacrifice which the stern necessities of existence have forced men to forego. That there is no dearth of aspirants for public service may be conceded. But the lamentable fact remains that where once public service was regarded as presenting the highest field of achievement, it is now become something to be avoided by those who can find more profitable opportunities for their time.

"We have drifted and are still drifting. The once popular leader has now given place to the popular follower. The most astute politician, gratuitously characterized 'statesman,' has ceased to be the man who can mould and direct public sentiment. He is the one whose ear is closest to the ground and most delicately attuned to the vagaries of popular opinion.

"We seem to be passing through a period of transition. The pendulum of government swings through a wide arc. At one extreme it approximates the point where the underlying theory of representative government is obscured by chimerical ideas of unlimited popular will. At the other, it approximates a point where ultra-conservatism is merely a cloak beneath which the most corrupt excesses of representative government are hidden.

Purpose of Constitution.

"Between these extremes there is only one dead level and there the pendulum points to the real underlying and fundamental purpose of the Constitution.

"Political creeds born of hysterical partisanship, animated by the selfish motive of success and offering social nostrums as the panacea and cure for every ill, real or imagined, of the body politic, have not augured for popular welfare or the sound integrity of our national life.

"The problems with which we are confronted will find safer and more enduring solution if approached with hearts filled with gratitude for blessings received and souls inspired with divine courage and unselfish determination.

"The pendulum has swung too far. The agitator masquerading as the reformer, has inflamed the popular mind. The popular ear is attuned to the diagnosis of evils existing only in perverted imaginations.

"The propaganda of every form of civil heresy has been sowed throughout the land and the fruitage has been skepticism and discontent.

"At such periods and under such conditions, it is healthy for us all to pause and seek a calm, sane and deliberate readjustment of the mental equipose.

"We may recall to advantage the homely but prophetic words of that great character in our national existence who guided the destines of the nation through the four long and terrible years of war.

"You can fool all of the people part of the time, part of the people all of the time, but not all of the people all of the time."

"Contemplating the depth and significance of these words, we may well propound to ourselves the inquiry, whether, under present conditions, we are engaged in fooling ourselves.

"Perhaps if we are honest with ourselves, we shall find that the responsibility for every supposed evil which we decry is rested with ourselves alone. Perhaps we shall find that the underlying causes of our troubles are not assignable to defects of government, but rather to those false standards of individual life which have been the outgrowth of human selfishness and human greed.

"If the responsibilities rest with the individual, the only enduring reform is to be found in the reform of the standards of the individual.

"Before we seek to reform government, let us be sure that the need of reform is not rather with ourselves.

"On this day of all others, the sacredness of our institutions appeals most strongly. The very air which we breathe today is surcharged with the obligation devolved upon us by those who have gone before. It rolls up from thousands of centuries, where our heroes are sleeping in undisturbed repose. It comes on the holy breath of the evening through the fragrance of the flowers. It resounds in the anthems which today have swelled into a mighty national chorus to our reparted dead. It breaks in the light from that far-off shore, where we hope and believe our comrades are reunited."

DISMISSES COURT FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Judge Ensign Unintentionally Has Juveniles Report on Holiday.

When Judge Ensign, veteran member of the district court bench, who has charge of the juvenile court work in Duluth, told juvenile delinquents, who came before him last Saturday that their cases would be continued one week, he did not have in mind that the day on which the youngsters had been told to report was Memorial day.

So this morning Judge Ensign made a special trip to the court house and sent three of the delinquents who reported, away again. The court told them that it was a mere oversight on his part and that he had not intended to hold a session of juvenile court on the holiday.

Judge Ensign said this morning that today was the first time in a number of years that he had not participated in the Memorial day parade. Owing to the warm weather and his advanced age, he declared that he would just as soon watch it from the sidelines. Judge Ensign recently passed his eighty-first birthday.

CRUSHED IN ARCTIC ICE

Whaler Karluk of Stefansson's Expedition Sunk Off Eastern Siberia.

Capt. Bartlett Makes Way Across Frozen Ice—All Saved.

Nome, Alaska, May 30.—The wooden 320-ton steam whaler Karluk, flagship of the Canadian government's Arctic exploring expedition under command of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, was crushed in the ice and sunk Jan. 16 near Herald island, north of Eastern Siberia. The entire white crew, except Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, is now on Wrangel island with plenty of food and wood.

Capt. Robert A. Bartlett of the Karluk made his way across the frozen ice to North Cape, Siberia, and then proceeded overland to Whaler bay, Siberia. There he was taken on board the whaler Herman, which carried him to St. Michael, where he now is.

Got Out Their Supplies.

It is assumed by authorities on the Arctic that when the ice closed on the Karluk last January, the twenty-four men on board got their supplies out on the ice, along with the dog teams, and were able to reach land well equipped for the remainder of the winter. It is assumed also that, as soon as the days became of sufficient length to permit of travel, Bartlett, accompanied probably by some of the five Eskimos on board, set out for Bering sea. The frozen sea was quite safe for travel.

Drove Dogs Over Siberia.

It is assumed he drove his dogs over Siberia from North Cape to Whaler bay on the Bering sea shore of Siberia, where he met the whaler Herman, which sailed from San Francisco about March 25. The Herman took him to St. Michael, where there is a cable station. The mouth of the Yukon and the roadstead at Nome are free of ice already, an unusually early melting. It is supposed that the Herman will go to the relief of the Karluk's crew as soon as she can get through Bering strait into the Arctic.

Stefansson is at the mouth of the McKenzie river, having left the Karluk Sept. 10 to hunt caribou ashore. When he returned to the point where he had come ashore, he found that the Karluk had been blown away by a storm. About Oct. 5, an Eskimo saw her driving southward. It is apparent that the drift continued until the shipwreck.

Ice Is Rotting.

It will not be possible to send dog teams to Herald island now, for the ice is rotting. There were nineteen white men on the Karluk and five Eskimos. It is supposed eighteen white men remain in the camp of the castaways.

Wrangel island contains food animals, and is especially noted for its polar bears, a hunting and picture expedition two years ago having counted twenty-two in a single day. Wrangel is 200 miles in a straight line from North Cape, and Whaler bay is 225 miles southeast of North cape.

Herald island is a small and rocky island. It was named for the British warship, whose captain discovered it.

GIVES SERIES OF "BELIEF" SERMONS

Dr. William Forney Hovis will deliver a series of sermons during the month of June at Endion Methodist Episcopal church, Nineteenth avenue east and First street, on "Hard Questions of Belief." The subjects and dates are as follows:

June 7, "What Are We to Believe About Hell?" June 14, "What Are We to Believe About Heaven?" June 28, "What Are We to Believe About God?"

Dr. Hovis believes that there is a growing interest in matters of philosophy and an increasing desire for clear-cut reasons for faith. Rev. Dinsdale T. Young of London recently preached a sermon on a subject involving the solemn things of eternity and had his church crowded to overflowing. In discussing the above questions Dr. Hovis will make use of opinions from Dr. F. B. Meyer, Archdeacon Sinclair, Dr. A. C. Bixon, Canon J. W. Horsley and others. He believes that these themes are not unimportant matters of theology, but are intensely interesting subjects which vitally concern man's peace of mind. These sermons will be delivered at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning on the dates announced.

WINNIPEG MAN RECEIVES SHOCK

Reads of Sinking of Empress of Ireland on Which Friends Sailed.

Probably nobody in Duluth was more surprised and shocked at the sinking of the Empress of Ireland than John Nairn of Winnipeg, when he picked up a copy of The Herald in the Spalding hotel yesterday afternoon and read of the disaster.

Mr. Nairn is in Duluth on his way home from an Eastern trip. He is accompanied by Mrs. Nairn.

"I have made the trip across on this boat," said Mr. Nairn," and I knew her captain. Then it was only a few days ago that Mrs. Nairn and myself had the pleasure of entertaining Lawrence Irving and his wife, who are reported as one of the missing. I can hardly believe it is true that such a boat should be sunk so suddenly and so close to shore."

Mr. Nairn is one of Winnipeg's leading business men, and is heavily interested in Canadian real estate, having large holdings at Prince Albert and Red Cliff.

"Western Canada is having a lull at present," he said, "but it is temporary. Business can't always keep increasing by leaps and bounds. Setbacks must come occasionally, and we are having one now, but you can't keep that country back."

THE STREET IS A DANGEROUS PLAYGROUND

The street is never a safe playground, but if boys must play in the street they should be warned by their parents and teachers not to choose a busy highway. The child is naturally thoughtless. Moments of carelessness cause the bad accidents. It is the duty of parents and teachers to train children to think of SAFETY FIRST. Their whole future happiness is at stake, and may be sacrificed to one moment when they "didn't think."

ICEBERGS AND FIELDS OF ICE

Steamship Service Demoralized on West Coast of Newfoundland.

St. Johns, Nfld., May 30.—Icebergs and ice fields have demoralized steamship service, both trans-Atlantic and coastwise, on the western coast of Newfoundland, imperiling the lives of passengers and crews.

The coastal steamer Fogota is reported ashore at Musgrave harbor in Notre Dame bay, abandoned by her passengers. Fifty-five men and women left the leaking vessel in lifeboats to make an uncertain voyage to shore. They were landed safely. The Fogota was badly damaged, and as weather conditions are unfavorable, the chances for her recovery are doubtful.

HOUSEWIVES "STUNG" BY KNIGHTS OF ROAD

Several Duluth housewives have decided to put on the "lid" when it comes to giving free meals to the "knights of the road." The no-work plea will not go any longer, and no more handouts meet the hungry wayfarer as he makes his back-door call.

The reason is that some of the most generous donors of free lunch have been "stung."

Today a forlorn appearing "knight" called at a Duluth home, telling how hard times were and that he had been out of work for "Lord knows how long." The kind housewife took him in and gave him a meal to which he did ample justice. The guest said he would like to get work—anything to make a few dollars, or "just his chuck," using the man's own words. The housewife said she had plenty of work about the place and needed a man. She would give him 20 cents an hour and board while the work lasted. This offer seemed to please the visitor and he said he would get busy after breakfast.

After breakfast he did get busy. He walked out on the porch, and stretched himself, being cheered by a good breakfast. After loitering a little, he felt an overpowering impulse to take the road again. He then took the road, and hasn't been seen—at least at that household—since.

Many householders have the same complaint to make. Many of them have odd jobs and work in the garden for a day or two but find it difficult to get good help. In the meantime there are several hundred idle men in the city living in the lake front "jungles."

WILL BAPTIZE TEN IN LAKE SUPERIOR

Pentecostal Mission Will Hold the Service on Park Point.

Ten persons will be baptized in Lake Superior at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The services will be conducted on Park Point, two blocks below the aerial bridge, under the direction of Rev. Charles M. Neve, who has charge of the Pentecostal mission, 1320 West Superior street.

Next week Rev. Richard Watson, a missionary to seamen, will conduct a series of services at the mission.

Bavaria Heavily Fined.

Vera Cruz, May 30.—Capt. Stickney, collector of the port, has levied a fine of 180,000 pesos on the German steamer Bavaria for having entered the port without a manifest and for having landed at Puerto Mexico a cargo of ammunition which was consigned to Vera Cruz.

FINE SUNDAY IS FORECASTED

Weather Man on His Best Behavior for Week End.

Still continuing his good behavior, the weather man promises fine weather for tomorrow and adds that there will not be much change in temperature. The winds will be southwesterly and moderate.

Today is ideal for Memorial day celebrations and the parade, and many people are taking advantage of the unusually warm weather for this time of year, and have organized picnic parties.

This being the first day on which bass may legally be caught many men—and women, too, for that matter—have headed for the many bass lakes that this part of the world is noted for.

MILLER SPEAKS AT LAKESIDE CHURCH.

Congressman Clarence B. Miller delivered an illustrated lecture on the Philippines last evening at the Lakeside Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Brotherhood society.

Mr. Miller recently returned from the Philippines, where he was sent by the house insular committee to investigate conditions there. During his trip, Mr. Miller took a large number of photographs and these were used by him in his lecture last evening.

The lecture has proven so popular in the last few weeks that it is probable Mr. Miller will arrange to deliver it in the very near future before a public gathering in one of the large halls.

Preceding the talk by Mr. Miller last evening the women of the church served dinner to those present. W. B. Phelps was chairman of the meeting.

GIVEN CHANCE TO MEND HIS WAYS.

Manfred Linn, indicted by the May grand jury under the name of Fred N. Linn, who stole several pipe wrenches and other tools from the E. S. Parrell company at the new Zelda theater building, 309 West Superior street, April 16, was paroled by Judge Bert Fesler under a penitentiary sentence yesterday afternoon.

Linn was told that as long as he reported regularly to F. E. Resche, probation officer, kept out of trouble, and absolutely abstained from the use of intoxicants, the majesty of the law would not interfere with him. An indeterminate sentence from one to five years in state's prison was suspended during the good behavior of the prisoner. The charge against Linn was that of grand larceny in the second degree.

MINISTERS WILL MEET MONDAY.

The Duluth Ministerial association will hold its annual election of officers at the regular meeting to be held at the Y. M. C. A. next Monday morning.

Immediately following the meeting the pastors will adjourn to the Commercial club, where a luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and a special program given for the members of the association. Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits is in charge of the arrangements for the dinner and entertainment.

INVESTIGATION IS CALLED FOR

London Papers Comment on Failure of Watertight Compartments.

London, May 30.—The London morning papers in commenting editorially on the disaster call for a thorough investigation as to whether the bulkheads were closed, and, if so, how was it that the most modern system of watertight compartments failed to keep the ship from sinking.

The claim of the Empress of Ireland will be the heaviest sustained by the Lloyds underwriters since the sinking of the Titanic. It is expected that the disaster will give a serious check to the scheme for establishing a Canadian Lloyds, with a view of reducing the rates charged in London for insuring vessels navigating the St. Lawrence. Statistics show that the underwriters have consistently lost money on such voyages, on account of the dangers of the river and the prevalence of fogs and ice.

Much space is devoted in the newspapers to Laurence Irving. Should his death be confirmed, it will be regarded as the greatest loss the British stage has suffered since his father, Sir Henry Irving, died.

MORE THAN HUNDRED OF SALVATION ARMY SANK WITH THE SHIP

almost exhausted when a boat picked me up."

Resident survivors not in the Salvation army, who arrived here, include Messrs. Kent, Ferguson, Duncan, Weinrauch and Miss Grace Kohl. Those from Toronto included Mrs. O'Hara, Miss O'Hara, Miss Lee, Dr. Hunt and Thomas Smart.

Smart says he believes he was the last man to speak to Capt. Kendall before the collision. "I was sitting out on the upper deck," he said, "when the captain walked past about half past 1 o'clock and said, 'It is a nice night, but it looks to me as though a fog is coming. You never know how soon a fog will drop on you at this part of the river.'"

Captain Shouting Orders.

When the crash came Smart says he saw Capt. Kendall on the bridge. He was holding onto the rail, shouting orders to the crew, leaning over and waving his hands. He heard him say: "Keep you heads, there, and don't get excited."

When a boat dropped sideways into the water the captain seemed to realize that the liner was lost, for he shouted: "Hurry up, there, everybody. There is not a minute to lose. Get the stewards through the corridors. If there are doors locked break them in. Get the people out, and don't forget that the women and children must come first."

Stuck to the Very Last.

"He spoke through a megaphone," said Smart, "but there was so much screaming and moaning that his voice was drowned. But he stuck to his post to the very last.

"When I got onto the Lady Evelyn I saw him stretched out there and they were giving him brandy. When he was able to speak, he looked around and asked 'Where's the ship.' A passenger, who looked like a doctor, told him the boat had gone down. On hearing this, Capt. Kendall buried his face in a piece of tarpaulin and cried as though his heart would break."

PRESIDENT IS AT ARLINGTON

When it was finally announced a few days ago that the president could not accept the invitation of the G. A. R. to attend the services, managers of the memorial invited Speaker Champ Clark to make the principal address. The speaker was at Atlantic City taking a rest, but changed his plans and last night returned to Washington and began preparing his address.

Smoot Delivers Address.

Senator Smoot, in his address at the Memorial day exercises at Arlington National cemetery today, referred briefly to the Mexican situation. He said:

"Not many days since there were brought home the bodies of our men at arms, slain at the taking of Vera Cruz. The entire nation mourned the noble dead. To maintain the nation's honor these men died, and today a million men, if necessary, are ready to finish the task which they began. These men gave their lives that brutal murders of American citizens and bloody anarchy should cease and that our flag should be respected in the republic to the south of us.

Patriotism Always Shown.

"We find the same spirit of patriotism, the same loyalty to country at Vera Cruz today as has been manifested by the defenders of our flag in every call for national defense. We do honor to ourselves in honoring this day the men who died at Vera Cruz. The Vera Cruz 'invasion' has proven to the world, as did our war with Spain, that this country is the United States of America, filled with brave, generous, patriotic and God-fearing citizens.

"If conditions develop in Mexico requiring our army to enter the capital city of that unhappy and distracted republic, if we should become involved in real war with all factions, or any faction, in Mexico, there will be no brothers arrayed against brothers, no Americans against Americans. It will be a united America, seeking to enforce respect for the ordinary obligations of civilization. There will be but one sentiment in the hearts of all our people; there will be but one uniform and but one flag. Wrongs must be righted before our restraining hand can be withdrawn.

Nation's Honor Involved.

"War is a terrible thing and should be shunned and avoided as far as possible. But when the nation's honor is involved, when our liberty is threatened, when humanity demands it, war, in my opinion, is justifiable. The time will come when Christianity, civilization and man's humanity to man will have advanced to a point where war will be unnecessary. That day has not arrived as yet, but let us all hope and work for its early arrival."

SAD SIGHT AS HARVEST OF RESCUE SHIPS IS LAID ON PIERS

later to be picked up by one of the boats, apparently to his great regret. Thus far he has vouchsafed no public statement, except to say that he would have preferred to have gone down with his ship.

Passengers who observed him during the frightful few minutes after the ship was struck speak in his praise and declare he did his full duty.

Chief Officer Steed, it is stated, was killed by a boat falling on him while working to help the passengers escape.

Died Trying to Save Wife.

Laurence Irving, author and actor, and son of Sir Henry Irving, according to survivors, died while trying to save his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Irving were last seen on deck, embracing one another as if in farewell. They went down with the ship locked in each other's arms.

Commissioner Rees of the Salvation Army stood on the deck of the doomed vessel trying to persuade the people to keep cool and lending a helping hand to many. When the ship was almost under water, one of his men shouted to him to jump for his life. He replied he would stand by his wife and children and sank with the words "O, God, Thy will be done" on his lips.

One Touching Sight.

One of the touching sights on the survivors' train was that presented by Philip Lawler. With his wife and son he had left his home in Brantford, Ont., where they had lived for the last seven years, to visit their home at Keighthly, Yorkshire, Eng. The mother went down with the ship, while the father, after a desperate struggle, managed to save his son, Herbert, and himself. He was injured when the explosion occurred, and with his head swathed in bandages and bowed with grief, he sat a disconsolate figure at his son's side. The boy is about 17 years old.

Only twenty-two women and two children of the many who boarded the steamer at Montreal and Quebec appear to have been saved.

One little girl, Helen O'Hara, swam until she was picked up, as also did Miss Thompson from New Zealand.

Couple's Happy Reunion.

One woman, Mrs. Greenaway, a bride of a week, was separated from her husband and thought she had lost him, but the two had a happy reunion later at Rimouski.

Probably the chief cause of confusion on the steamer after the impact was the fact that the water, rushing into the engine room and flooding the dynamos, threw the ship into complete darkness. The struggles of the terrified passengers to escape can be imagined.

One of the first steps taken at Rimouski this morning was the establishment of a regular beach patrol to prevent looting by beach combers. There were still several hundred bodies to be recovered from the waters of the St. Lawrence.

How Irving Died.

F. E. Abbott of Toronto told the story of how Laurence Irving died trying to save his wife. Abbott was the last man to see Irving alive.

"I met him first in the passageway," he said, "and he said calmly, 'Is the boat going down?' I said it looked like it. 'Deary,' Irving said to his wife, 'hurry. There is no time to lose.'

"Mrs. Irving began to cry, and as the actor reached for a life belt the boat suddenly lurched and he was thrown against the door of his cabin. His face was bloody and Mrs. Irving became frantic.

"'Keep cool,' he warned her, but she persisted in holding her arms around him. He forced the life belt over her and pushed her out of the door. He then practically carried her upstairs. I asked if I could help and Irving said, 'Look after yourself first, old man, but God bless you all the same.'"

Clasped in Each Other's Arms.

Abbott said he left the two, man and wife, struggling. Abbott got on deck and dived overboard. He caught hold of a piece of timber and then looked around. Irving by this time was on the deck. He was kissing his wife. As the ship went down they were both clasped in each other's arms.

M. D. A. Darling, a survivor here, was saved by a life belt that might have saved Sir Henry Seton-Karr.

"My cabin was opposite Sir Henry's," said Darling today, "and when I opened my door we bumped into each other in the passageway. He had a life belt and he offered it to me. I refused it, but he said, 'Good man, take it and I will get another.' I told him to save himself but he got angry and actually forced the belt over me. He then hurried me along the corridor to the door. Apparently he went back for another belt, but a moment or two after he had left me the ship went down. I was picked up."

Touching Reunion.

A touching reunion was witnessed at Rimouski when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Greenaway of the Toronto Salvation Army, who were married about a week ago, were reunited after each had believed the other lost.

"I was awakened by the crash," said Mrs. Greenaway, "but I was not nervous until I heard a steward ordering the passengers to go upon deck. There was a great rush from the cabins, in which I joined, and in the excitement I clung to a man who I thought was my husband. As we reached the deck, the ship was down on one side so that we could have walked on the other side to the water's edge.

"Suddenly on looking at my companion I discovered that he was not my husband, so I set to look for him among those who were crowding the side of the ship. By that time the ship was nearly under water. When the final lurch came I gave myself up as lost. I went down with the ship, but an explosion occurred and I was tossed up out of the water, bruised and hurt by pieces of wood.

Found Herself Floating.

"I then became unconscious. When I recovered my senses I found myself floating about on a deck chair. I lay there, too weak to move, but hearing voices close by, I managed to raise my head and saw a raft with two men on it. One of them reached out to me with a broken oar and called out 'are you alive?' I answered as loud as I could that I was alive, and he pulled me aboard with the oar."

Mr. Greenaway told his story as follows:

"I was awakened by the crash and got out of my berth at the request of my wife, not thinking, however, that there was anything seriously wrong. My wife noticed the list of the ship and suggested that we should go up on deck. She left immediately, thinking I would follow her. This was my intention, but before I left the cabin I searched for a wrap for my wife. Then I went up to the deck and searched for Mrs. Greenaway, but could find no trace of her, and gave her up as lost.

Grasped Floating Table.

"When the last plunge came, I clung to the side of the rail, but the force of the churning water and the explosion of the boilers broke my grasp and I sank. When I came to the surface, I saw the top of a round table floating near me. This I grasped and it kept afloat until I was dragged on a raft. Later, with a dozen others I was taken on board the pilot boat and landed at Rimouski.

"On the pilot boat with me was Capt. Spooner of the Salvation Army staff. He told me he had put a life belt on my wife. On the arrival of the second boat I learned that my wife had been rescued and was in a hotel in the village. When finally I found her she was still unaware of my rescue, and when she saw me she burst into tears, being too weak from her terrible experience to say anything."

With the Empress, it became known today, went down $1,000,000 in silver bars, shipped from Cobalt to England.

It is the opinion in shipping circles that the Empress will either have to be bodily raised or dynamited from her position for fear that her presence will cause the formation of a sandbar.

The collier Storstad, that ripped open the liner's side, arrived at Quebec early this morning and proceeded slowly to Montreal to which port her cargo of coal is consigned.

Claims Fog Was Cause.

Capt. Anderson, while refusing to give out any extended statement, said that the collision had been due solely to the suddenness with which the fog shut down upon the vessels. He added that after the crash he picked up more than 300 persons, in fact most of those saved. Later they were transferred to the Lady Evelyn and the Eureka. The collier had in her bow above the water line a hole large enough to admit three men abreast. Her port anchor was missing, having been dragged away and sunk with the Empress.

The whole of Quebec mourned today, awaiting the arrival of the dead from Rimouski. Undertakers from far and near have been summoned to the city and the government dock, so called, has been converted into a morgue. High piles of coffins will be ranged in rows together with any scant belongings they possessed, to facilitate their identification. A few were identified at Rimouski today but it will be long, slow work.

BRITISHERS GIVEN SHOCK

dent of the Canadian Pacific railway, his majesty cabled:

"In the appalling disaster which has befallen your company by the loss of the Empress of Ireland, in which so many perished, I offer you my sincere sympathy."

French President Telegraphs.

The king received this morning the following telegram from Raymond Poincare, president of the French republic:

"It is with profound emotion that I learn of the terrible catastrophe in connection with the Empress of Ireland which will plunge so many families into mourning. From my heart I tender to your majesty the sincere regrets and keen sympathy of the French people."

The Irish Nationalist convention, at a meeting today in London under the presidency of T. P. O'Connor, passed a resolution of sympathy with the relatives and friends of those who died when the Empress of Ireland sank, and it was transmitted to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

MICHIGAN PEOPLE AMONG THE LOST

Score From Marquette County Believed to Have Perished.

Marquette, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—More than a score of persons from Marquette county are believed to have perished in the Empress of Ireland disaster. All were traveling in the third class. The passengers booked from Marquette county towns were:

From Negaunee—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Heikkila and daughter, Viena; George Peterson, married; Mrs. John Markela and four children; Kalle Viita; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hannunen; Gust Pannula; Mrs. Antti Heikkila, wife of a jeweler, all of whom were bound for Finland, and James H. McVeigh. The latter was on his way to London to be married.

From Ishpeming—Mrs. John Makki, Matt Makki and Miss Selma Porri, bound for Finland.

From Marquette—Magti Lamini, bound for Italy.

One Hundred From Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—More than 100 of the Empress of Ireland's passengers were from Michigan and nearby Canadian towns. Eighty-four booked from Detroit, eighteen from Negaunee, six from Sault Ste. Marie, eight from Windsor and one from Calumet.

The greatest number of these were foreigners, traveling in the steerage to visit their former homes in Europe.

Charles Clark of London, representative of a local automobile concern, who was at first reported as lost in the wreck, was picked up by the Eureka, according to a telegram received here.

PUGNACIOUS FORGER HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Edward Johnson, arrested yesterday after he had forged the name of John Dahl to a time check which he claimed to have found on the ferry while coming from Superior, was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon and held to the grand jury.

Johnson was arrested after a tussle with Arthur La Vant, clerk in the Fifth Avenue Clothing store, where he attempted to get the check cashed. La Vant followed him to Eighth avenue west and Superior street and when Johnson grabbed a shovel, La Vant held him in a doorway with a pickhandle until a policeman arrived.

EFFICIENCY MEN REPORT

Advocate Civil Service, Merit System and Unity of Administration.

Would Divide Executive Duties Under Six Heads; Forty Hear Report.

The civil service system, unification of administration, and the budget system were features contained in the report of the state efficency and economy commission made last night before forty Duluthians following a dinner at the Kitchi Gammi club. Proposals contained in the report were discussed by the local speakers and the commission was highly commended for its work. The report will be presented to Governor A. O. Eberhart in the near future. Most of its features have already been outlined in The Herald.

The members of the commission who spoke were President C. P. Craig and John H. Gray. Dr. E. Dana Durand, state statistician, also spoke. E. C. Congdon presided.

Centralize Educational System.

Duluth speakers expressed the belief that a system to include the educational machinery of the state under one board, if conflict with the state constitution would not be violated, would be an excellent arrangement. Under the system to be submitted by the commission all the schools of the state except the state university would be under the supervision of a board of education. The latter is under a board of regents. This plan was commended but even greater centralization was suggested by Duluth men.

The report calls for a thorough reorganization of the state government. Instead of sixty to seventy independent governments the commission proposes one state administration, divided into six departments.

Want Six Departments.

To be associated with the governor in general administration would be the attorney general as legal advisor for all departments, and auditor as auditing and accounting officer for all departments, and the secretary of state as general recording officer.

The executive duties would be thrown into the six departments, each under a director.

Finance, the treasurer to be ex-officio director.
Public domain.
Public welfare.
Education.
Labor and commerce.
Agriculture.

Budget System Fits In.

With this arrangement the budget system would follow. Each officer would make his estimates and each department collect its statements of needs, and these after being discussed by the cabinet, would be presented as a budget to the legislature.

The commission believes that the merit system should be carried out and that only the directors of the great departments, the unpaid boards and the officials elected by the people should be exempt from the inspection of the civil service commission.

The combination of permanent expert service with popular control is the aim of the commission. The work will be handled by an expert bureau chief. The directors would supervise, co-ordinate, and keep the state service democratic and in close touch with the people.

COLONEL GOES TO SON'S WEDDING

Roosevelt Leaves on Olympic, Accompanied By Mrs. Longworth.

New York, May 30.—Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by Philip Roosevelt, a young cousin, and his eldest daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, sailed for Spain today on the steamship Olympic to attend the wedding of his son, Kermit, in Madrid on June 10, to Miss Belle Willard, daughter of the American ambassador to Spain.

The colonel said, before leaving, that he had issued an important political statement for publication in tomorrow's papers. He added that most of his time while away will be devoted to writing an account of his South American travels.

On the steamer Col. Roosevelt had a meeting with George W. Perkins, Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburg, Medill McCormick of Chicago, and several other Progressive leaders.

BONDS AUTHORIZED

For Construction of Brainerd-Cuyuna Range Railroad.

Brainerd, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Directors of the Minnesota Central Railroad company have authorized an issue of $300,000 twenty-year first mortgage gold bonds to be used in the construction and equipment of the Brainerd street railway and for the acquisition of real estate in Brainerd and Crow Wing county. The bonds are to bear not exceeding 7 per cent interest, the rate to be fixed by President George Reid and Treasurer Joseph Ferrier after consultation with various large financial interests. Under the Brainerd franchise the company must begin active construction work not later than Sept. 15 next, and indications are that the company will begin work before or as soon as the bonds are marketed. At least five miles of railway must be built in the city of Brainerd and the line here will form part of a continuous interurban line covering the Cuyuna iron range and having a length of from forty-two to forty-five miles.

BOY KILLED WHILE STEALING A RIDE.

George W. Jackson, the 10-year-old son of Axel Jackson, 1416 North Seventh street, was instantly killed by a terminal transfer train near Baxter avenue while stealing a ride on boxcars. The lad apparently fell from the car or missed his hold of the ladder when attempting to jump on to the train.

Police Captain Olson went to the scene immediately after it happened. The body was cut in two by the wheels and horribly crushed. The boy's body was taken to his home where his father was ill. The distracted father collapsed at the sight of his dead child. The boy's mother died about a year ago. A younger sister survives him.

New Police Signals.

An up-to-date police signal system is being installed in Superior. The system will include a new switchboard and alarm boxes in various parts of the city equipped with telephones and colored electric bulbs. When receiving a call from a policeman responses will be received at the patrol box in the shape of flashes of lights in the bulb.

"Blind Piggers" Fined.

Jow Norvitski and Jack Jarvineau paid $100 each in police court yesterday afternoon on being found guilty of conducting a "blind pig." James Morrison, a saloonkeeper, paid a fine of $50 and costs for keeping his saloon open last Sunday.

THE TREATMENT OF THE DRUG HABIT

I want to quote a passage from a medical article of Dr. George E. Petty, who reveals a comprehensive knowledge when he declares:

"In the treatment of the drug habituee there is no patient that will be secure from a relapse back to his former condition if after his treatment, he is discharged with a false idea that he is taking medicine, for instance, with the food he takes may be nothing more than plain water. Every drug habituee has had perpetuated in his mind the chronic habit of invalidism. This idea has become so fixed that no subterfuge will effect a cure. It is absolutely essential that the patient be taught to rely entirely upon his own resources. He must be fully convinced of his own ability to do so otherwise he is not secure. It is necessary not only for an habituee to be cured of his addiction to the drug habit but,—equally important, the patient must be thoroughly fortified against any relapse. I have in mind a gentleman who was addicted to the periodic use of alcohol. He was a vigorous man both physically and mentally, but once each month he would go upon a periodic spree. He would go out alone and get drunk. It was not with him a matter of taking whisky because of the sociability and companionship element, it was more a matter of lonesomeness with this one individual. His mind would become gloomy. His outlook on life would become dark and he would drink to drown his sorrow. This man had been treated for the drink habit and insofar as his addiction to the use of alcohol was concerned he was cured, but,—he was not fortified against a relapse. When, therefore, the overpowering desire came upon him to drown his lonesomeness by a good spree he had not been taught by the physician who had treated his inebriety to rely entirely upon his own resources and stand alone upon his own feet. Consequently he would periodically go on a relapsed drunk. This is a vital principle that is necessary in the consideration of the cure of every drug habituee, for what applies in the instance of alcohol equally applies in connection with the use of morphine, heroin, cocaine and the other narcotics. It is no use to substitute one drug for another. Merely masking the situation can produce nothing but a damaging impression in helping to strengthen the victim's individual will power."

WHERE IS COCAINE SOLD ILLEGITIMATELY?

If it isn't sold through the channels of legitimate drug stores, where is it sold? Is it likely that nearly 1,200,000 pounds of coca leaves on which there is a customs tariff of 43 per cent of the total value of the year's imports would be shipped into the United States if there was not an excellent commercial profit in it? There can be but one answer to these questions. It is the conclusive answer that all cocaine not sold across the drug counter for legitimate medicinal purposes must be consumed by two classes of people. One is the catarrh and asthma nostrum manufacturers who employ cocaine in their prescriptions under the legal shelter of the U. S. government pure food and drugs act. The other class is the "dope" fiends of the underworld who are the unfortunate victims of the habit. As a result of these researches these nostrum manufacturers and cocaine fiends are annually consuming not less than three and one-half tons of this drug according to the U. S. government. This means that one pound for every 1,000 Americans is consumed.

The graduating class at the Central high school this year will be the largest in the history of the school, consisting of approximately 200 pupils.

* * *

The importance of introducing a fire drill at the Central high school has been given much attention during the last week, and as a result Principal Young is working on plans to bring about the greatest degree of efficiency in the new undertaking. There are many difficult problems in working out a smoothly working system, but it is hoped that the experience gained at this time will make it possible to inaugurate a practical system in the fall. A trial drill of one part of the building was held on Wednesday afternoon.

* * *

All friends and alumni of the high school were given until Friday to secure their tickets for the junior-senior ball. Miss Esther Hoar and Floyd Lawson are the junior committee in charge.

* * *

The high school orchestra under the direction of D. O. Heistand furnished some of the music at the Memorial day services held at the Orpheum theater this morning.

* * *

During the chapel exercises on Wednesday morning President Robert Zuger of the junior class issued a challenge to the seniors for an aquatic meet. President Oliver Vivian of the seniors accepted the same and in consequence the amphibious members of the two upper classes journeyed down to the central Y. M. C. A. at the close of school and the contest was held under Mr. Batchelor's direction, and resulted in a very close victory for the juniors by the score of 35 to 33. Robert Kerr was the star for the juniors with 18 points and Arthur Spear took first place for the seniors with 16 points. On next Wednesday afternoon, June 30, will occur the final aquatic meet for the school championship at which time the juniors will be matched against the sophomores. The event will be held at the central Y. M. C. A.

* * *

Students were invited to attend the farewell concert by the Normanna chorus at the First M. E. church on Friday evening. A special rate was made for the students and Mr. Custance had charge of the ticket sale.

* * *

In the inter-class championship baseball series the Seniors easily triumphed over the sophemores on Tuesday afternoon by the score of 10 to 4.

* * *

The first sale of the 1914 Zeniths occurred on Wednesday at Stone's book store, as only a few copies were available. The general distribution began on Thursday at 4:30 p. m. and many of the students were on hand this late hour to secure their copies.

* * *

During the chapel exercises on Wednesday morning, Mr. Schilling of the faculty urged the boys of the high school to co-operate again in the Memorial day parade, so as to insure as great success as was attained last year.

* * *

The freshmen made extensive plans for their closed party which was held at the Washington building on Friday night, May 29, and all present report a very enjoyable evening.

* * *

Plans for the summer continuation school were announced by Principal Leonard Young during the week. As last year, courses will be offered to the high school students in academic, scientific, commercial and manual subjects provided there is enough of a demand to make the organization of a class necessary. The summer school will extend from June 22 to Aug. 31. The tuition will be as follows: Academic course, $4; scientific, where laboratory is used, $5; manual arts, $6. The academic subjects will be given mornings, 8:30 to 12:30, while the manual arts subjects will continue through the day.

* * *

The senior examinations are now posted in the session rooms and the graduates are already making preparations for the final tests.

* * *

At the close of school on Wednesday the Herald photographer took several pictures of the senior class, on the south steps of the building.

* * *

Memorial day exercises were held during the Friday morning chapel period. An extensive program consisting of music and speeches was rendered and plans were organized for taking part in the Memorial day parade.

* * *

The track and field meet which was scheduled with Irving high school for Friday afternoon was called off and postponed to next Tuesday afternoon.

* * *

The seniors who found a conflict in the hours of the senior examinations next Thursday and Friday were asked to report the same on Friday, May 29.

The following men were elected: President, E. M. Morgan; vice president, Lewis A. Mitchell; secretary, Sigurd Ueland; treasurer, E. B. Pierce. Work will be begun June 15 on the dining room of the Men's building, in order to make certain that it will be completed by the beginning of the next semester. Prof. C. M. Andrist, acting head of the department of romance languages, has resigned. Mr. Andrist has been connected with the university for a number of years and is a graduate of the institution. Prof. Andrist's resignation was a source of considerable regret to a large number of students who had come under his tutelage. As an instructor he was well liked and has been receiving many protestations from the undergraduate body.

The junior and senior animal husbandry men of the agricultural college visited Farmington Tuesday, when they judged beef cattle and hogs in the stock-judging contest for the trophy offered by the Livestock Breeders' association. In each class of stock three rings were brought out and the men were given fifteen minutes to judge each ring. New buildings, more instructors and greater facilties were dominant tones of the annual report by the deans, submitted to President Vincent this week, covering the present school year. Although the feeling between sorority and non-sorority girls is more democratic than in other similar institutions, Dean Sweeney believes that sororities are a disintegrating element, according to her report as dean of women. Dr. F. H. Swift, in his report on fraternities, showed by statistics that the scholarship of fraternity men was improving, although Dean Frankforter showed that the average scholarship of fraternity men was between 78 and 80, whereas non-fraternity men's averages were from 80 to 83. Dean Shenehon emphasized the necessity of lowering the entrance requirements on the principle that high school grades should not be watched as closely as the grades of the students immediately after entering the university. A new hospital, library and gymnasium were among the buildings urgently asked for.

Cap and Gown gave its last spread on Monday in Shevlin hall. Besides a tasty supper an excellent program was prepared for the last meeting. Lillian Byrnes responded to the toast, "To Our Alma Mater;" Celia Koplin, "To Our Professors;" Dr. Anna Phelan, "To Our Future Wives," and Alice Berry, "To Our Future Spinsters." All the girls appeared in caps and gowns.

The commencement week program has just been completed by Registrar E. B. Pierce. On Sunday, June 7, the program will begin by the bacalaureate sermon by Dr. Marion D. Shutter of Minneapolis. Dr. Shutter's topics will be "Life—its Aims and Inspirations." The crowning event of the week will be the commencement address on Thursday, June 10, by President Harry Burns Hutchins of the University of Michigan. "Thinking Ahead—Some of the Results and Problems That Come of It" will be President Hutchins' theme. Monday will be occupied by the class day exercises and the senior prom. On Tuesday the Ben Greet players will entertain the graduates on the campus, while in the evening a reception for Dean and Mrs. John Downey and Prof. and Mrs. Moore will be given by the faculty women's club. Wednesday will be occupied by various athletic events among the alumni, with an address by President Vincent in the chapel and senior vaudeville in the evening. On Thursday, the final commencement exercises will be held.

On Wednesday evening the University Players, the new dramatic organization of the university, presented "Sweet Lavender" before the students in the university chapel. Lillian Siegfried and Walter Hughes played the principal roles in a very acceptable manner, while the acting of the other members of the cast was also very good. "Sweet Lavender" will be played during the university week in the southern part of the state by the original cast.

The senior chemists left Monday on the Milwaukee road on their annual tour of factory inspection. Prof. Harding and Frary will conduct the tour. The inspectors will visit Chicago, Milwaukee and Waukegan investigating the latest methods of rubber, paint, steel and glass manufacture.

* * *

Freshmen next year will be required to attend a greater number of lectures than has been the case in past years. The course of lectures will consist of one or two lectures by President Vincent, six on the subject of hygiene and three on the use of the library. No credit will be given for the course, and every freshman in each college admitting students directly from high school will be required to attend the lectures as one of the requirements for a degree.

LLOYD GEORGE'S TAXATION SCHEME

Rate of Income and Super-Tax and Death Duties Increased.

London, May 30.—Under the new scheme of taxation introduced by David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, in his budget for 1914-15, a man having an income from a capital of $5,000,000 will have to pay one-third of his income in taxes.

In the first place he has to pay 28 cents of every $5 in income tax; then he has to pay a similar amount in super-tax, and when he dies $1 on every five of what is left has to be paid for death and estate duties. The total is figured at just under one-third of the income.

This calculation has been made by Sir William Lever, one of the millionaires who will have to pay, but who does not object.

"I like it," he said. "In my view the ideal system of taxation, both local and imperial, is through the income tax, the super-tax, death duties, land tax, site value tax, and taxation upon luxuries, such as alcohol, tobacco, etc. Everything else free."

While Lloyd George has followed his predecessors in his system of taxation, except that he has increased the rate of income and super-tax and death duties, so that the wealthy have to pay the lion's share, he has gone to other countries for some of his ideas. His taxation of site values is based on the law now in vogue in British Columbia, while che has gone the American income tax law for the idea of making money accruing to British subjects from investments abroad pay its share of taxation.

In recent years British capitalists have made immense investments in foreign countries. When the income from these investments was brought home to be spent, the government, under the old law, levied income tax on it; that is, when the government could discover it. But when the income was reinvested abroad, the old law did not touch it. Now Lloyd George says all income of British subjects resident in the United Kingdom must contribute to the imperial revenue. These foreign investments are estimated at over a billion and a half dollars, and from this the chancellor hopes to secure $1,250,000 this year, and double that amount next year. The total increase of revenue from income tax and death duties this year will amount to something like $44,000,000.

In spite of these increases, Sir George Paish, editor of the Statist, says the burden of taxation os much smaller than it has been in modern history. In 1880, when the expenditure came to $415,000,000, it was raised out of a national income of $5,000,000,000. Now the national income reaches the enormous total of $12,000,000,000 so it can easily stand the increased expenditure. Sir George argues that England can bear still greater increases in her budget.

"There are good grounds," he says, "for believing that the income and wealth of this country will again double in another thirty years. When it reaches $25,000,000,000, and I have no doubt that it will within a generation, a budget of $2,500,000 will be borne more easily than the burden of a $1,000,000,000 in 1914."

SUES FOR FIRE LOSS.

Homesteader Has Cause of Action Against Great Northern Railway.

Isaac Molso, homesteader living in section 22, 55-19, started suit against the Great Northern Railway company yesterday to collect $1,500 damages for the destruction of the improvements and timber on his farm. He claims that on June 27, 1910, a forest fire, the origin of which has been traced to the right-of-way of the railroad, swept over his farm and burned everything on the farm to the ground. The company is charged with negligence in failing to equip its locomotives with spark arresters and in permitting inflammable material to accumulate along the right of way.

Any type of architecture which has a genuine appeal to the public must appeal to the heart as well as to the mind. This week we present to The Herald readers a Swiss chalet design. There is about the Swiss chalet a rugged, honest picturesqueness, a simple, candid strength that is very seldom found in other types. The exterior of the house is covered with boards, the rough side out, and then stained a dark rich brown. The heavy overhanging eaves make the entire design very attractive. The second floor is provided with a sleeping porch with a bed that can be swung into position on the back porch during nice weather and in stormy weather back into the bedroom. The first floor is finished in birch and the second floor in yellow pine. The house would cost to build in the city of Duluth about $3,000.

TAXES EXCEED $2,000,000 MARK

Steel Corporation Pays $2,050,061 Into the County Treasury.

Representing the first semi-annual installment for 1913, the United States Steel corporation yesterday afternoon paid to County Treasurer George H. Vivian checks aggregating $2,050,061.87 as taxes on its mineral holdings and timber lands in St. Louis county. The Oliver Iron Mining company, the Minnesota subsidiary of the Steel corporation, is the largest taxpayer not only in St. Louis county, but in the state.

The payments were divided to cover payment on active and inactive mines, timber land and property at the new steel plant. The checks were for the following amounts: $1,074,504.20 for active mines; $226,809.74, also for active mines; $733,518.30 for inactive mines; $2,389.94 on the Wolvin building; $2,098.05 on timber lands and $10,751.54 for the property of the Minnesota Steel company.

The second installment will be paid before Nov. 1.

SETTLED FOR $5,000.

Sam Belford's Personal Injury Claim Against Whitney Bros. Adjusted.

Sam Belford has accepted $5,000 from the Whitney Brothers Construction company as full settlement of his claim for personal injuries growing out of an accident which he sustained while working for the company July 9, 1913. Belford was assisting in the construction of a bridge which extended into St. Louis bay near Thirty-second avenue west when he was struck by the hammer of a pile driver. The blow crushed his body and injured him internally. He sued for $30,000 but settled for $5,000 through his attorney, O. J. Larson.

Mme. Caillaux Remanded.

Paris, May 30.—Mme. Caillaux, wife of Joseph Caillaux, former French finance minister, was today formally remanded for trial on the charge of killing Gaston Calmette, editor of Figaro. The hearing is to begin July 20.

PEERLESS FOUR WINS THE QUARTET CONTEST

The Peerless Four won the quartet singing honors of Duluth at the special contest held last evening at the Empress. The Empress management awarded the four young men a prize of $20.

The contest created much interest among local theatergoers. The Empress was packed at both performances last evening and the singers were given splendid receptions at their appearance. M. W. Abrahamson, manager of the Empress, announced following the contest that a ragtime singing contest would be held next Friday evening and that it would be open to all amateur singers in Duluth.

The M. W. A. quartet of the West end was the only rival of the Peerless Four and the battle between the two was keen throughout. The former sang "All Aboard for Dixie," "The Lost Chord" and "Old Virginia Home," while the winners rendered "Mandy Lee," "Where the Red, Red Roses Grow" and a medley of patriotic airs.

Arrested for Fraud.

New York, May 30.—Eugene K. Oppenheim and Howard J. Rogers, charged with having defrauded the First National bank of Amsterdam, N. Y., out of $200,000, were arrested by special agents of the department of justice yesterday.

Australia has nearly 300,000 acres of untouched forests.

STAGELAND

Lyceum

For the third week of their now assured successful stock engagement at the Lyceum theater commencing tomorrow, matinee at 2:30 and continuing for the entire week with matinees Sunday, Wednesday and Saturday, the Baldwin Players will present an elaborate and correct production of the big dramatic sensation of two continents, "Madame X."

A great deal of curiosity has been expressed over the origin of the title of "Madame X." The play is named after the central character—a woman on trial for her life in a French court. She has refused absolutely to give her name or to indicate who or what she is, while all the efforts of the police to discover her identity by other means have been in vain. Thus she becomes known legally, according to French judicial custom "Madame X." The "X" in this instance is the algebraic "X"—the unknown quantity.

In this country, especially in this state, a woman under such circumstances would be officially called "Jane Doe." A man would be called "Richard Doe."

"The drama that thrilled all Paris," is the way "Madame X" is spoken of, and this is literally true, just as it is literally true that "Madame X" has thrilled and moved to tears New York and elsewhere. "Madame X" is an adaptation from the famous French success "La Femme X," by Alexandre Bissen, the marvelous piece of dramatic craftsmanship that created such a furore in the French capital, and then over night became the sensation of the American stage. Mr. Baldwin was fortunate and keen-sighted enough to secure this triumph for Duluth. With his splendid company and a production exactly like that which has been used in New York, "Madame X" will prove a revelation in stock history of this city.

The most remarkable sight New York's fashionable theatrical first-nighters had seen in many years greeted those present at the premiere of "Madame X" when it first appeared in the metropolis. The theater was packed to the very doors with a gathering made up of men and women who have seen everything the world of the stage has to offer, persons whose emotions have come through long training and experience under perfect control. But as the action of "Madame X" reached that wonderful climax in the courtroom, where the mother in the prisoner's dock recognizes her boy in the lawyer who is defending her, a veritable snowstorm of handkerchiefs appeared. Tears were shed as they have never before been shed in any playhouse, while the sobs of both men and women actually interrupted momentarily the performance, so tremendous were they in volume, and judging by indications, all records for attendance will be broken at the Lyceum during the run of this wonderfully successful and thrilling play as presented by the Baldwin Players. The seats are now on sale and the number of performances of "Madame X" will be limited to three matinees and seven nights as "Baby Mine" is in preparation for week of June 7, to be followed week of June 14 with William T. Hodge's great success, "The Man From Home."

With such plays by so remarkably clever a company the Baldwin players are fast becoming "the talk of the town."

DON CARLOS
Of McMannus and Carlos at the Empress Monday.

AT EMPRESS

A splendid bill of vaudeville and pictures holds the boards at the Empress theater for the last half of this week. The four acts, the single reel of pictures, "Guilty or Not Guilty," and the two-part feature film, "Ashes of the Past," are above the average. The Minstrel Four who appear dressed in minstrel fashion offer the best line of comedy and songs that the Empress theater has seen for some time. The four boys do a number of songs in a style that is decidedly alluring.

Madeline Sack, a pretty girl, who is almost an "unknown" in the vaudeville world, and who came practically unheralded, is proving one of the hits of the bill. In her first numbers she wins warm applause. Then comes a transformation. In a bewildering medley of bits from the classics, ragtime and ballads, and which include accurate imitations of bagpipes, fife and bugle, the girl player is winning her audiences completely, at times stopping the show while encores were vainly sought.

The Petite Sisters present a novel and neat singing and dancing act. They are both beautiful girls, possessors of excellent voices, and their costumes are dazzling. Their "Mysterious Rag" melody is fetching, while the song by Miss Estelle Petite with the flashing mirror is very daintily handled. The bathing number by Miss Mae Petite is another pretty piece.

Dalto Freeze and company are spreading laughs with their act, "The Troublesome Career of Happy Hooligan." The trio who make up the act are very clever jumpers and makers of comedy falls.

The single reel, "Guilty or Not Guilty," is a very dramatic and interesting story of a young woman's hard struggle with poverty. The two-part feature film, "Ashes of the Past," a Western love story, shows careful photography and a good plot.

* * *

For the three days starting Monday, June 1, with the matinee, a new bill of vaudeville acts and pictures will be the attraction at the Empress. One of the big time acts and in fact one that was seen in Duluth not very long ago is "The Holman Brothers" who offer a comedy bar act of exceptional quality. The Holman Brothers are clever tumblers and acrobats with a knowledge of bar work far surpassing anything seen here.

La France and Conklin, monarchs of black face comedy, will appear on this bill. The St. Louis Globe Democrat says: "La France and Conklin, who are appearing at the Grand Opera house this week, are black face comedians extraordinary, with a laugh in every line of their act. Their offering is a huge success from the opening to the close. The honors go to them this week. Their comedy is contagious and you are assured of twenty minutes of continuous laughter if you will hear them."

McManus and Carlos are two girls weighing nearly 500 pounds, but that does not effect their singing ability. Miss McManus has already played the Empress, but as a "single." She comes back with a partner.

The Seymour Duo is a mixed team. They present a variety act of songs, talks and dances. Their impersonations are the big feature of their act.

The feature film for this bill is "A Woman's Loyalty," a two part Thanhouser story depicting the depths of a woman's love. The photoplay relates the story of a young man's fatal infatuation for his beautiful model and a wife's faithfulness unto death.

* * *

Acts booked for the four days starting Thursday, June 4, at the Empress are Milton, the one string marvel; Norwood and Hall, singing and talking; Bayone Whipple and Walter Houton in their mysterious creation, "Spooks," a novelty of mystery and merriment; Selbini and Grovini, in their European novelty act, and the feature film, "Love's Sacrifice."

AT THE REX

An unusually strong line of features will be presented at the Rex theater during the coming week. Several of the best screen actors and actresses in the country will appear in the film-made plays. These star acts will be augmented by the Animated Weekly, giving in pictures the most striking news events of the world.

Animated Weekly No. 115 shows the Kentucky derby, and Old Rosebud breaks the world's record for the mile and one-quarter race at Churchill Downs, La. Survivors of the burned S. S. Columbian are rescued after forty hours of torture on a rough sea. The remainder of the weekly is filled with newsy items from all over the country. This news feature appears at the Rex every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Lucille Love," the sixth of the series, will be at the Rex Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The "Girl of Mystery" left the Rex last week just as she was rescued by a South Sea sailing vessel owned by the Spy, Hugh Loubeque. In chapter XI., Loubeque is thrown overboard by the captain, and Lucille meets even worse treatment, for she is cast adrift. Neither of them have the precious documents.

As a close rival for honors with the rest of the clever actors Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be the beautiful Pauline in the "Perils of Pauline."

The big new store of Stern brothers, where the newest fashions are paraded on living models, is the only place our Margaret can satisfy her love for dainty gowns. A new adventure begins in chapter XIX. at the Rex Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The big "direct from Broadway" success, "Dope" with an all Broadway cast featuring Herman Lieb, Laura Nelson Hall, Ernest Traux and employing hundred of players, is a wonderful piece of work. It will be presented at the Rex Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is nature's protest against humanity's cruelty.

AT THE SUNBEAM

Nearly everyone who has read American history and the story of the American Revolution can not help but be familiar with the great aid that was rendered the Yankee cause by the work of Gen. Marion and his fellow leaders who terrorized the British by their fighting in the swamps and who would with a handful of soldiers invade the camp of the enemy and pillage and destroy life as well as the property of the English forces. For tomorrow's program at the Sunbeam Manager Parker has secured a film entitled "The Swamp Fox" which shows in realistic form the work of these bands of marauders which were so important a part of the Revolutionary forces. This photo play masterpiece is in three parts and gives the audience an opportunity to see in picture form the interesting and, as well, true scenes that featured the war in the swamp districts of the South.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Laurette Taylor will hurry to Europe as soon as she closes her run of two years in New York city in "Peg o' My Heart." J. Hartley Manners, author of this delightful play, and who is the husband of the star, will make the trip also, but will work part of the time completing the new plays he has in hand. His next contribution to the American stage will likely be "Barbaraza," and then the three-act comedy "Happiness," which will be an elaboration of the theme of his striking one-act play of the same title, which scored such a popular hit in Miss Taylor's triple bill of one-act plays at the Cort during March and April, when she did these to relieve her of the grind of playing "Peg o' My Heart." Miss Taylor returns to New York late in August for rehearsals, and early in September begins her first out-of-town engagement at the Cort theater, Boston, where she is booked to remain until everybody in the Hub has had an opportunity of seeing her great success.

* * *

William A. Brady will make one more production this spring—"Sylvia Runs Away," by Robert Housum, dramatic editor of the Cleveland Leader. This comedy was "tried out" some time ago by the company playing in "Little Miss Brown," and was so favorably received that the manager arranged for the engagement of a cast especially suited to the various roles. This organization will be taken in hand at once by Mr. Brady personally, and the permanent production will take place within the next three weeks.

* * *

Lillian Berri has left the "Peck of Pickles" production. She will shortly return to vaudeville.

* * *

"Maggie Pepper," the Rose Stahl success, will be seen on the popular-priced circuits next season. It has been taken over by Stair and Havlin.

* * *

George Nash, former leading man in "Panthea," has been engaged by George M. Cohan for one of the principal roles in "The Miracle Man."

* * *

It is reported that Dart Montgomery of Montgomery & Stone is soon to be married to Anna Fitzhugh. It is also stated that he and Stone will appear in a new musical play by Anne Caldwell next September.

* * *

The novel feature of "The Model Maid," which is to be produced by Philip Bartholomae early in September, is that 1 tis a musical show without a chorus, although containing a large cast of principals.

* * *

Constantino, the noted tenor, was forced to spend a night in jail at Boston recently. The arrest was made at the instance of Oscar Hammerstein, who feared that Constantino would leave the country, leaving unsettled a court judgment of $30,000 in Hammerstein's favor. Next day noon he was released on bond.

* * *

Oliver Morosco has purchased the dramatic rights of General Basil King's novel, "The Wind Over," and, with Elmer Harris, will make a play of it for use next season. The story ran in serial form originally as a successor of the same author's first great success, which appeared anonymously under the title of "The Inner Shrine."

* * *

Ruth Chatterton has just completed her twelfth week in "Daddy Longlegs" at Power's theater in Chicago. It is said that tickets are selling so far ahead that "Daddy Longlegs" is likely to break all records at the theater. The record up to the present is held by "Charley's Aunt," which played there for fifteen weeks in 1896.

* * *

According to present plans Otis Skinner will be seen in "The Mob" next season. "The Mob" is a new English drama which had its try-out in Manchester this year.

* * *

"The Call of Youth," a new play by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, will be seen in Chicago tomorrow. It had its premiere at Madison, Wis., earlier in the month. The cast contains a number of well known stage folk, including Gertrude Coughlan, Virginia Hammond, Walter Hampden, Forrest Winant and Arthur Stanford.

* * *

The revival of "Pinafore" closed at the New York Hippodrome.

* * *

Oliver Morosco's next important contribution to American theatricals will be the new comedy drama by Richard Barry called "Brenda of the Woods," which is now being worked into shape with a view of producing it for preliminary hearings at his theater in Los Angeles before sending the same East for the final verdict. It is likely that Peggy O'Neill, who has made a personal success in the title role of "Peg o' My Heart" with the Western Road company, wil be featured in the leading role of the new comedy.

* * *

David Warfield is said to be very anxious to secure a new vehicle for next season. The revival of "The Auctioneer" is stated to have had a disappointing engagement financially at Boston, and also at some other points. Warfield is also again talking of his desire to appear as Shylock under the proper conditions.

* * *

Five companies are getting ready to play "Kitty MacKay" next season.

* * *

Kitty Gordon has moved into the Garrick theater, Chicago, with the captivating comedy, with music, "Pretty Mrs. Smith." Chicago, like Los Angeles and Boston, has been won over by this new comer into the field of light musical entertainment, and it looks as if Miss Gordon will remain in the Windy City for a long summer run.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

PEOPLE who go to Berlin are amazed to find the air so free from smoke, although this is one of the largest manufacturing cities in the world. There are many reasons why Berlin is smokeless, and these reasons range from police regulations to the economy of the inhabitants in the use of fuel. There is actually no law against smoke, but the clause in the ordinance reads as follows:

"The necessary measures for the preservation of the public peace, safety, and health, and the averting, preventing and removing whatever may be undesirous to the general public or to the individual members thereof belong to the function and duty of the police."

That is quite sufficient, and yet the reasons why the police rarely have to enforce this clause in regard to smoke are to be found elsewhere. In the first place most of the big factories were placed, for that very reason, on the eastern edge of the city, and the prevailing wind blows from the west, so that it is only one day out of five or six that the smoke is blown across the city. Second, there is the fuel used. This is lignite or "brown coal." As a mineral it is not so "old" as American coal, is much lighter in weight and is almost entirely consumed on cumbustion. For use it is usually compressed in the form of briquettes, which burn steadily with almost no smoke. One of the most important factors in making Berlin smokeless, however, is economy. Locomotive firemen and the stokers in factories receive premiums for the coal they save. They are ordered from day to day or from week to week to keep up a certain standard of heat, using a fixed quantity of coal; if they manage to keep up the standard with less fuel they are allowed a certain percentage of the value of the fuel saved. This is one reason why Berlin stokers are so eagerly sought for by the trans-Atlantic liners to tend their furnaces.

The economy which can be effected by proper firing is proving the most potent argument in eliminating the smoke nuisance here. Duluth has a smoke ordinance which prohibits the emission of dense smoke for more than four minutes in any one hour. A smoke inspector is making observations and is giving violators warning. Arrests will follow if no improvement is shown. But the more progressive men are carefully studying the problem of combustion and do not need to be checked up, as they realize that the less smoke there is the smaller is the waste of heat.

TO RELIEVE INSOMNIA

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Half a teaspoonful in a glass of water before retiring quiets the nerves and induces refreshing sleep.

ROSES TO ADORN HOME GROUNDS

"Cut-Flower Roses" Must Be Treated Differently From Those Grown as Shrubbery.

Washington, May 30.—Roses, when used for decorative purposes on the home grounds, serve to set off a fine lawn, and improve the appearance of a place not only during their blooming time, but throughout the year. Most of the varieties that are used as shrubs have a foliage of lighter appearance than the majority of other bushes used for similar adornment, and they are, therefore, placed preferably in front of the other plants. This will result in a pleasing contrast between the shades of green. They also contrast attractively with a greensward if placed close by the edge of the lawn. Roses used in this manner should be planted in comparatively large masses.

Roses which are grown mainly for bush or mass effect should be sparingly pruned, according to the United States department of agriculture's landscape gardener. They should be permitted to run wild instead of being pruned into any form, and only deadwood or very old wood should be removed when they are pruned. Of the various species of roses used to beautify lawns, the most prominent are Rosa rugosa ("rugosa" referring to the rough foliage of the rose) and the common wild roses of the roadsides and thickets in the different sections of the United States.

Most of the roses used for mass effects have only single or almost single blooms. The bloom, however, is a comparatively insignificant feature of the decorative value of these roses. An even more attractive feature is the "hip" of the rose. The "hip" is the bright-red tip of the stem which enlarges to hold the seeds of the plant and remains a brilliant color during the winter, thus adding much to the attractiveness of the bush at a time when most shrubbery is leafless and bare.

To Secure Maximum Bloom.

From a cultural standpoint roses are divided into three main classes: those grown for bush or mass effect; those grown for cut flowers; and those that climb trellises and porches. Those that are grown mainly for the individual blooms which are to be taken from them must be treated in a very different manner from the roses used for bush effect as described above. A still different treatment must be given to the climbing roses.

Roses that are grown for the cut flowers should be in a secluded location as their main purpose is to supply blossoms for decorative purposes within the home, and it is therefore desirable to produce as many fine individual flowers as possible without considering the appearance of the plant as a bush. To secure this maximum bloom, the department's landscape gardener advises that the plants be pruned thoroughly. When a rose is ready for cutting, the whole stem on which it has grown should be cut with it. This means that it should be cut down to within six inches of the ground if the spring pruning was properly done and nothing should be left of this year's growth, except two good "eyes" at the base of the stalk. The "eyes" (buds) are the points from which new shoots will start and may be seen at the base of the leaf stalks.

This treatment will seem extreme to many who are used to growing roses for it will mean the cutting away of a large portion of the bush. In fact, when a crop of roses has been cut, the bush may not be much higher than it was in the early spring after the proper spring pruning has been done, i. e. not more than six inches high. New shoots, however, will push forth immediately and the vigor of the whole plant will pass into them, and in the case of a number of varieties of roses, another crop of flowers a few weeks later will be the result.

Everything in the treatment of a "cut-flower" bush must be sacrificed to the production of a fine individual blossom. When two or three rose buds form on a single shoot all but one should be pinched off as soon as they are observed. The moment the individual rose is cut the whole stem should be cut away as described, even though other buds are on the point of starting farther down on the stem.

Tea Roses in December.

In Washington, D. C., tea and hybrid tea roses have been kept blooming continually from June into December by continual cuttings of this extreme character. Eight bushes of these roses served to keep flowers in one home continually for more than half the year. These varieties of roses, if not cut down, will not be likely to bear many more blossoms after the June crop. If they are cut down as described, there will be a wealth of roses in June, then a brief period with no flowers, then a few blossoms at a time all the rest of the year.

The varieties of roses known as hybrid perpetuals, which are popular roses for cut flowers, do not respond so freely. However, the extreme cutting treatment is the only way by which it is possible to get a second crop of blooms from these roses, although even that is not always successful.

An explanation of treatment for climbing roses is more appropriate for a later date when the June crop is over, and a description of the proper treatment will be given in this series at that time.

SPRINKLING THE SPORT LAWN WITH A GENTLE FLOW OF GOSSIP

It Is a New and Unique Experience for Grand Forks to Be Leading the League--Mike Collins, the Hudson Promoter, Talks of the Boxers--Divers Discussions and Opinions.

BY BRUCE.

IT is a delightfully new and unique experience for Grand Forks to be leading the Northern league. Back in the fragrant days of the old Northern Grand Forks had a nifty team of university boys and chased home close to the top. Since the passing of those halcyon days baseball kicked the dust off its boots on the threshhold of the second city of the wheat regions and departed.

With the organization of the new Northern league came the baseball recrudescence of Grand Forks, came increased visions of a pennant and no pennant. Then came Eddie Wheeler and now triumphantly behold the march of the Flickers in the vanguard of the league.

Another little thing—Winnipeg under the general direction of General Frederick Curtis is showing unexpected strength. The word unexpected is used in connection with the strength thing for the simple reasons that one has grown so accustomed to see managers foozle their approach up that way that, no matter the strength of the material on paper or on the baseball field, not a great deal could be expected.

To date Curtis has been doing fine. He has most of the games of the present season on his little owny owny grounds—see gate receipts on the Queen's and King's and other potentate's birthdays—and with the kind of playing the team is doing there is legitimate excuse and some moral basis for the enthusiastic predictions that are being indulged in by the fans in the Canadian seven financial eights of the league.

Winona is drooping, not to say dropping, and the impression that the champions are not the team that so gallantly won the bunting a year ago, is gradually making an appearance upon the public streets.

Superior doesn't look to have struck its stride at the present time. Fort William has played some ragged baseball. Fargo, and this goes for Moorhead too,—joke—needs pitchers. Virginia looks to be one of the best teams in the league. On the showing to date Duluth—well let's not talk about Duluth for a while.

Where there is life there is hope—and the season is delightfully youthful. The present sojourn at home will give the fans a better idea of the general worth of the team and it is useless and the part of poor policy to condemn before the lapse of the trial efficiency period.

Mike Collins Is Here.

MICHAEL ANGELO COLLINS, the well known Hudson, Wis., athletic promoter, is sojourning in our midst. In addition to being the busy promoters of doings in which gents armed with mitts mingle for the purpose of providing entertainment and also raising the wherewithal to pay rent, buy coal and upon rare occasions malt and spirituous liquors, Mike is also one of the knights of the road. A steady job turneth away many evils and also many creditors.

In ranging over the prospective fight field, Mike mentally alighted on the picturesque figures of Freddy Welsh and Joe Mandot and stopped to ruminate and to illuminate.

"Welsh is one of the greatest and the most brilliant of the present day lightweights," said the Hudson impresario. "This goes for Joe Mandot. I received special wire reports of the meeting between Welsh and Mandot at New Orleans, and the battle was one of the prettiest and one of the fastest that has been seen in the South in years.

"It looks as if Ritchie and Welsh would meet in England for the Fourth. In the event of Welsh going across the water for the battle with the champion it is very likely that Mandot, one of the cleverest and fastest of the boxers of the present time, will appear before the Hudson club."

During the course of his remarks Mike declared that Billy Murray and Mike Gibbons are possibilities for one of the future cards of the Hudson club, and that some negotiations had been carried on with Bob Moha in view of securing the Milwaukee cave man as a prospective opponent of Gibbons.

One of the new type of promoters, the business man who has gone into the game and used business methods in staging contests, the success of the new Hudson club may be largely attributed to the high standing of the chap at its head and the good opinion he is held in by the followers of the game in the Twin Cities.

Who Will Fight Brown?

AS yet there is no definite line on the next opponent of P. Lawrence Brown. As reported during the week the pugilistic peace proposals have not been freighted with shining and effulgent success. Three or four men stand out in the line, but as yet the precise opponent has not been named.

It looks like the ridiculous stand taken by the two managers behind Johnny Tillman has effectually eliminated him from future consideration. It is tactics just such as those being pursued by the men behind the Minneapolis scrapper that are putting boxing clubs out of the game.

Tillman has had two big fights in his career. On the strength of this he is demanding a guarantee of $2,500 to fight Brown with the optional privilege of 40 per cent of the gate.

A Local Wrestling Star.

PETE PETKOFF, the stocky Bulgarian who has made his home in this city for the last few years, is one of these days going to make all of the welterweights of the land go some. During the last year Pete has improved wonderfully. As strong as a bull and rapidly learning the fine points of the game, the time is not far off when he will be in a position to demand a meeting with some of the real champions.

As a preliminary to the Westergaard-Zbyszko match Tilt Lewis has secured young Johnson of Park Rapids, a youngster who has made a remarkable record during the year. Johnson is to oppose Petkoff and the contest should be a corking preliminary.

"U" TENNIS ARTISTS LOSE

Maroons Take Both Singles and Doubles in Fast Games.

Phi Delts Win Final Inter-Fraternity Baseball Contest.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The University of Chicago tennis team conquered the University of Minnesota racket artists in thorough fashion. The Maroons won both singles and doubles. The Gopher players, Stellwagen and McGee, put up their best fight in the first set of doubles. They played Squire and McNeil off their feet in the first six games by a 5 to 1 score. The Maroons then stiffened and brought it up to five. Their fortunes then vacillated until the Gophers were worn down, score 9 to 7. The second set in the doubles went easily, Chicago winning 6 to 1. In the singles Squire defeated Stellwagen 6-3, 6-2. McNeil defeated McGee 7-5, 6-2.

Ray Schutt, freshman medic, was the first out of eighty-five candidates to qualify in all of the Sigma Delta Psi try-outs, and thus is eligible for junior membership in the athletic fraternity. There are several other men who hope to finish the trials before the end of the college year.

On Thursday afternoon the final game in the inter-fraternity baseball league was played, resulting in a victory for the Phi Delta Theta team. They defeated the Sigma Alpha Epsilon team by a score of 9 to 5. The winners become the possessors of the cup won last year by the Phi Psis. The cup becomes the permanent possession of the team winning it two years in succession.

RECORDS EXPECTED TO BE DEMOLISHED

St. Louis, Mo, May 30.—Athletes from the University of Chicago and Leland Stanford university were the favorites in the seventh annual track and field meet of the Missouri Valley conference here today at Francis field.

The track is in fast condition, and ideal weather favored the runners as they took the track for the biggest meet conducted in St. Louis in many years, nearly 200 athletes representing fourteen colleges and universities, taking part.

The records for the 100-yard dash and the 440 are expected to fall. In the trial heats yesterday Cowman of Rolla negotiated the long dash in 50 flat, equalling the conference record, while in the 100-yard event the runners not extending themselves, did the distance in two heats in a fraction over the 10 mark, made some years ago.

In the interscholastic meet nearly 300 local high and preparatory school boys faced the starters.

DOOKS TAKE FINAL GAME

Blancke Invincible and Duluth Defeats Fort William 8 to 0.

The Poet Pitcher Receives Faultless Support; Sweeley Busts Homer.

Fort William, Ont., May 30.—Duluth won yesterday's final game with the locals by the score of 8 to 0. Blancke was on the mound for the Duluth team and he held the Fort William hitters hitless at stages of the game where hits would count for anything. In addition to the fine twirling of Blancke the Twins were balked in their efforts by the fine work of the opposing fielders, who executed several plays bordering on the sensational. Barber was wild and decidedly unsteady at critical times, giving way to Kramer. Sweeley hit one of the longest home runs of the present season.

Wright succeeded him and held the visitors safe all the way. Both teams played ragged baseball in the field. Glass lead in the hitting with a home run and two singles.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 30.—Cincinnati defeated Pittsburg yesterday by a score of 3 to 2. The game was decided in the seventh on singles by Hoblitzel and Niehoff, Bates' infield out and a sacrifice fly by Miller, who batted for Gonzales. Gibson, Coach Fraser and Manager Clark of the Pittsburg team, were all put out of the game by Umpire Rigler for protesting decisions at the plate. Score: R. H. E.

Two of the home team's runs were started by bases on balls and Cravath's home run drive produced the other. Jacobs was very effective with men on the bases and was given perfect support. Brooklyn, N. Y., May 30.—Marquard had the better of a pitchers' duel with Pfeffer here yesterday and New York beat Brooklyn, 1 to 0. Burns singled through short in the sixth inning, took second when Doyle walked, and third on Merkle's sacrifice. Snodgrass bunted to Pfeffer, whose return to Miller at the plate was too late to prevent Burns from scoring. The fielding of both sides was marked by many brilliant plays. Dalton's overhead catch in deep center of Meyers' fly, and Wheat's one-hand scoop of Becher's low fly, were a remarkable combination in the fifth inning. Smith pulled a foul out of the grandstand and Bescher made a star running catch off Dalton. Score: R. H. E.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Athletes 6, 3; Yankees 2, 0.

New York, May 30.—The world's champion Athletics won a double header from New York here yesterday by scores of 6 to 2 and 3 to 0.

In the first game the Athletics hit Keating hard and bunched their hits with local errors. New York scored their two runs in the third inning when with two out Wyckoff passed five men in succession, forcing in two runs. Bush, who relieved him, pitched shutout ball.

In the second game Bender had the Yankees at his mercy, only one New York batsman reaching second. He permitted only four hits, only one going out of the infield. A freak play occurred in the fifth inning of the game when Oldring stole third with Bender on that base. Collins, however, came to his assistance by reaching out at a wide ball and batting to Peckinpaugh. Thus giving Oldring a chance to return to second. Scores: R. H. E.

Rankin Johnson, the Senators won the first game, 1 to 0. The Red Sox took the second contest after ten innings, 6 to 5.

The latter was an unusually exciting game, the lead changing several times up to the tenth inning. Then Washington broke the tie on E. Foster's single and a double by Shanks and Boston in its half scored a tying and winning run on two passes by Boehling, Scott's single and McBride's error. Score:

Louisville, Ky., May 29.—Indianapolis yesterday moved into second place by its 4 to 3 victory over Louisville in the first game of the series. GIANTS AND ATHLETICS FACE A HARD BATTLE

Belief Grows in Baseball Circles That the Pennant Winners of Last Year Are Up Against a Fight From Start to Finish.

New York, May 30.—After a hilarious winter of awarding pennants promiscuously, realization suddenly has smeared itself over the landscape of actualness and 'tis found the purveyors of earlier whys and wherefores popularly known as the common variety of "dope"—are beginning to falter and desert the trenches of past performances for a more stable covering of alibis.

For the steenth or one hundredth time it has been found the "dope" is only nourishing until real things begin to happen and then the "ought to be" stuff is crowded into the gutter by the onward sweep of "what is."

It is but a short time since facts and figures proved to the satisfaction of the powers that be in the winter league that the Giants and the Athletics would gallop to well earned but decisive victories in the National and American leagues. The season is only a month old—and already the "might be" and "what should have been" brand of chatter has been given the "go by."

Favorites Fidgety.

It has been sidetracked so completely it seems as if the Giants and the Athletics are going to have the merriest time of their respective careers in setting the facts and figures right again and straightening all things out to the satisfaction of those who shouldered their signatures onto lots of exhaustive yarns about what should happen.

With the Pirates steaming along with all engines working, and the Tigers mowing their way through the chaff of the American league, each additional day adds to the anxiety of those who ventured to remark with positiveness that the New Yorkers and the Philadelphians would mingle again in the world series next autumn. For the most part they are like the young fellow who sat on the stove with fire in it—they are sort of fidgety, writes P. T. Knox.

And every time rain postpones the activities of the Giants and the Athletics, their uncertainty is added to. In this respect they are not alone. John J. McGraw and "Connie" Mack are with them very much, especially John J. McGraw. He cares more about rainy days than he does about his right eye.

Double-headers mean something to the Giants. Besides extra work for a great many afternoons, they mean that the strain on players—particularly pitchers—will be terrific, and, unless the Pirates accumulate as many as the New Yorks collect or a few more, will be a distinct advantage to the fast-flying, hard-hitting Corsairs.

Thus far the Giants have had ten postponements. They should have played twenty-two games against the three other Eastern clubs. Instead they have played but thirteen. They have played but .59 1-11 per cent of their games. This is a mighty big average of postponements, and is one of the strongest arguments that could be advanced in favor of starting the championship season about May 1 instead of in the middle of April.

The Giants have two postponements with the Phillies at Philadelphia, two with Brooklyn at Brooklyn, one with the Phillies at New York, two with Boston at Boston, one with Brooklyn at New York and one with Boston at New York. This is a large collection of double-headers to have for so short a time in the business.

In Severe Strain.

In the distance the Giants can see some big work lurking. They will have to meet a severe strain, especially if the Pirates are stepping along at the mile-a-minute clip they have been hitting since the pennant chase began.

Of late the pitching that has been afforded the Giants has been but little better than the batting of the club. At the outset the Giants were given good enough pitching to win most ball games, but the twirlers did not receive any support from the batters.

Just as the batters threaten to come through with something more substantial than carrying their bats on their shoulders, the pitchers seem to have gone on a temporary vacation.

With these double-headers piling up, the pitchers will have to perk up considerably, for it is the pitchers more than the other players who feel the strain of the bargain-day attractions. If all of McGraw's pitchers round to their best form at the same time, the burden will be lightened a great deal.

KILBANE, CROSS AND MIKE GIBBONS WIN.

Denver, Colo., May 30.—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, featherweight champion, knocked out Benny Chavez, Colorado challenger, in the second round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout here last night.

San Francisco, Cal., May 30.—Leach Cross of New York was given the decision over Red Watson of Los Angeles at the end of their twenty-round boxing bout last night. Both men were fighting furiously at the end.

Kansas City, Kan., May 30.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul administered a severe beating to Vic Hanson of Los Angeles here last night. Hanson's seconds threw up the sponge in the sixth round, after the Los Angeles boy's eyes were closed.

MISS HYDE THREE TIMES WINNER.

Orange, N. J., May 30.—After five days of brilliant playing on the links of the Essex County Country club, Miss Lillian B. Hyde of the South Shore Field club, Long Island, yesterday won the Women's Metropolitan golf title and trophy.

It is her third victory in this event in the last five years. She defeated another ex-champion, Miss Georgiann M. Bishop of Brooklawn, Conn., by 9 up and 7 to play.

The Most Wonderful Record Breaking Achievement By Any Motor-Driven Vehicle In the World!

Edwin G. Baker rode a two-speed cradle spring frame Indian from San Diego, Cal., to New York City in 11 days 12 hours and 10 minutes, cutting the previous record—also made with an Indian machine—almost in half. 1,027 miles of the trail was through a sandy desert in a temperature of 120 degrees in the shade. A climb of 7,000 feet in a distance of nine miles was accomplished on the two-speed without difficulty; 9 miles through three inches of snow; 500 miles of deep muddy roads, 71 miles over railroad ties—the last would have been almost impossible on any machine other than a cradle spring frame Indian.

MATCH NOT MADE AS YET

Promoter Collins Denies That Brown and Tillman Have Signed.

Mike Collins, the Hudson, Wis., promoter, today in The Herald office stated that he knew nothing of the matching of Pal Brown and Johnny Tillman before his club, and laughed when shown the statement crediting Curity Ulrich with being the manager of the range fighter.

"So far as I know, and I am the head of the club, there is no match in sight between Brown and Tillman before the Hudson Athletic club," said Collins. "I don't know that they are going to fight, certainly not unless they come on very reasonable terms. In the event of the matching being made, and no negotiations have been made toward that end, the date will not be before independence day."

In connection with the approaching resumption of fight activities upon the part of Pal Brown it might be stated that several wires were dispatched yesterday by officials of the Twin Ports Athletic club to Tommy W. Walsh, the manager of Joe Mandot. A flat offer was wired to the pilot of the New Orleans French Market boy to meet Brown before the club.

"Get Mandot for Brown if possible," advised Collins. "He is one of the flashiest fighters in the busines and one of the cleanest boys. I have been after him for several months for my club and will use the French kid just as soon as I find a suitable opponent for him.

"Mandot, I should think, would make a great card with Brown. The New Orleans boy is fighting in the best form of his career. Mandot beat Matty McCue and held Freddy Welsh to a virtual draw in New Orleans. This performance is an indication of the class of the French baker boy. Any one who can hold Welsh close over the ten-round route is some boxer, and that is just what Mandot is, I know, for I have seen him go."

HAMLINE WINS MEET.

Minnesota-Dakota Conference Meet Held at Huron, S. D.

Huron, S. D., May 30.—Hamline university of St. Paul won the Minnesota-Dakota conference meet here yesterday with 42 points. North Dakota was second with 24¼; Carleton, 23; South Dakota, 22¼; South Dakota state 18; Fargo aggies, 13; Yankton, 11; Dakota Wesleyan, 7½; Huron, 6; Northern normal, 5; St. Olaf, 3¼; St. Thomas, 1.

Anderson of Hamline with 16¼ and Quigley of South Dakota, with 13, were high point-takers. Grays of Hamline took the 100-yard dash from a strong field in 10 seconds flat, and Balentine of Hamline and Quigley tied for first in the 220-yard run in 22 seconds flat. These were the best races. Rain slowed up the distance events, but the sprints and hurdles were run on good ground.

RACINE MAN VERY TOUGH

Young Mahoney May Spring Surprise on Tommy Gibbons.

Young Mahoney of Racine, Wis., who will fight Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul before the Superior Athletic club next Friday evening, is expected to come to Superior and complete his training for the bout.

According to the word received from Manager Reddy of the Gibbons entry, Tommy will come to the Head of the Lakes several days before the contest and will take several workouts for the tough Racine plumber.

Mahoney is the same boxer who opposed Eddie McGoorty and Cyclone Johnny Thompson before the Hedding law became effective. While not a champion, the Racine man is one who generally gives the fans the full value of their money for the simple reason that he is trying all of the time and does not believe that he is a fancy boxer or a tango dancer.

If Mahoney puts up the kind of a scrap against Gibbons that he did against McGoorty, the younger of the Gibbons family will speedily discover that he has a real fight on his hands.

McGoorty was made to travel the full distance at top speed, and it is widely conceded that McGoorty carries more pugilistic guns than the younger of the Gibbons boys.

BILLY MURRAY.

BIG IOWAN ON HIS WAY

Jess Westergaard Expected to Begin Training Here Monday.

Jess Westergaard is expected to reach Duluth late today to begin the work of training for his match with Zbyszko. Promoter Tilton Lewis is in receipt of a wire from the Swede's manager, Oscar Thorson, in which it is stated that the Des Moines man is in remarable shape and will put the finishing touches on his condition in the time that remains before the big contest.

The referee question will be taken up with the arrival of Westergaard and Thorson. J. H. Herman has wired that he will offer no objection to any referee who is known to be impartial and competent.

Ed L. Shave, one of the crack amateur wrestlers of the Twin Cities and the sporting editor of the St. Paul Daily News, and Frank E. Force, the sporting editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, are names under consideration at the present time and it is probable that one of these men will be the judge of the combat.

Zbyszko is at Montreal at the present time. According to present arrangements the Pole will arrive here several days before the battle. Westergaard will be on the ground for over a week previous to the bout and will do a lot of road work in preparation for what should prove a more strenuous battle than either of the other two indulged by the giants.

Promoter Lewis declares that the coming contest will be a finish one in the literal sense of the word. His deposit binds this agreement, he stated yesterday, and unless the match goes to a finish, neither of the men will be paid the amount of money the written contract calls for. This clause was inserted for the protection of the fans, according to the statement of the promoter.

FARGO RACING CARD.

Fargo, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The race card for the state fair to be held here July 20-25 will be well filled. There are three purses of $1,000 each, some of $600 and others of $500 for the harness events. There will also be liberal purses for the jumpers. Many of the cards are already filled and a big meet is assured.

FAMOUS OLD GARDEN HAS MADE SPORTING HISTORY

John L. Sullivan Appeared Many Times in Old Structure, and Corbett, McCoy and Others Have Boxed in the Present Huge Building.

New York, May 30.—Rome in its glorious days of culture, sport and wealth had its grand fighting arena within the majestic walls of the famous coliseum. London has her Crystal palace, Olympia, and other battling arenas. France has built of late many grand halls for fistic combats. Athens has her great stadium, but none of these arenas is so interesting to the American lovers of sport as our own Madison Square garden, where so many professional and amateur sporting events have been staged during the past 40 years.

The old wooden and brick building, known as Gilmore's garden at first, was pulled down and the new grand structure was built on the same site and opened up in 1890. It would be utterly impossible to give a passing notice to the many sporting affairs that have been held on this historic site, in which speed, strength, stamina, skill, gameness and science predominated.

John L. Sullivan certainly gained considerable popularity and fame in the old garden, says the Press. On Feb. 7, 1882, he became champion of America by defeating Paddy Ryan in nine rounds at Mississippi City. On the following July 17, a hot, sweltering night, John L. beat Tricky Tug Wilson before an immense crowd and a $19,000 gate.

Sullivan Beat Mitchell.

Sullivan in 1883 defeated Charles Mitchell in three rounds and in the same year stopped Herbert A. Slade in the same number of rounds in the old arena.

In 1882 Sullivan gave Joe Coburn a chance to get a bit of money with him in a friendly exhibition that was packed to the doors. But, of course, John L. got the lion's share of this affair. However, Coburn was very glad to get the short end of the gate money, as he was old and broken down.

Sullivan's next victim at the old garden was Prof. John M. Laflin, who put up a stiff fight, but only lasted three rounds. The event came off Nov. 10, 1884, and one week later Sullivan punched Alf Greenfield, an alleged champion of England, into defeat in two swift rounds in the same old ring.

Lucky for John L.

So you can plainly see that the old garden was, indeed, a lucky spot for John L. It brought him wealth and fame galore for three of his best years in the ring. Besides these regular glove contests, Sullivan has had several very large benefits in the old and new garden that netted him quite a lot of money.

Although Charley Mitchell lost to Sullivan, he got a big bank roll for the three rounds—something like $3,000. Not so bad for three sessions, eh? Then, when he agreed to meet Sullivan the second time, the latter showed up in a maudlin condition and the mill was declared off, but not the $16,000 gate, which they cut in two between them.

Mitchell and the late Billy Edwards boxed in the garden in 1884. It was a farce, as Billy was an old, helpless man and Mitchell put him away in three rounds. They are said to have divided up $14,000 for this burlesque.

Charley then met Dominick McCaffery and they put up a very scientific battle for four rounds. The late "Macon" McCormick was the referee and declared McCaffery the winner. This pair must have split up another $14,000 gate. Pretty soft in those days, for four rounds with big gloves.

When William A. Bray was Jim Corbett's manager he popularized Corbett in every way possible. He put him on the stage as an actor and hired the garden for several fistic shows just before Jim defeated Sullivan. Corbett in his day made quite a bank roll at the garden in many exhibitions and other affairs.

The Irish champion, Peter Maher, made his American debut in the garden in 1890, when he knocked out Jack Smith and Sailor Brown each in one round. Maher also put away Frank P. Slavin, a few years later, in the big arena, before a host of admiring fans.

Among them might be mentioned the late Charles A. Dana, the famous editor of the New York Sun, and the late United States Senator Roscoe Conkling. Both were delighted with the Irishman's performances.

1900 Big Year.

The year 1900 was a big boxing one at the garden. It was in August of that year Bob Fitzsimmons polished off Gus Ruhlin in six rounds after almost going the K. O. route himself. Jim Cobett met Kid McCoy. Joe Wal ott and Tommy West put up a very questionable bout. Walcott had West on the run, when he refused to answer the gong after the tenth round. Joe quit cold and the fans who bet their coin on form, got it in the neck.

Terry McGovern, then at his best as the feather weight chief, knocked out Frank Erne, then lightweight champion, at the garden. Erne, however, had to do 127 for Terry, and he was weak. McGovern also defeated Jimmy Britt that year in the same ring.

Jack McAuliffe boxed George Lavigne in the old arena in 1896, when Jack retired and handed over the lightweight crown to the Saginaw Kid. This was only a clever, fast setto, as McAuliffe wished to retire with grace. He was in no condition for a battle that cheerful evening.

Modern Engagements.

During the past few days nearly all the leading champions and near-champions of the fistic world have boxed at the famous garden. Some of them fairly clever, others rather bad, and the rest a bunch of swinging burlesquers.

There Bombardier Wells, the heavyweight champion of England, was knocked into dopeland by two American white hopes, Al Palzer and Gunboat Smith. Packy McFarland made Matt Wells, then the lightweight champion of England, look foolish in ten rounds. He made a show of Tommy Murphy and others.

There is not a spot on earth that can reveal so many thrilling fistic tales as the historic Madison Square garden. It has seen almost two generations of fighters come and go. It has been the turning point in many a champion's career, who has won or lost fame in one night.

Maybe the National Sporting club of London has had many longer battles in its arena, but it never had a $70,000 house, with some 16,000 fans packed within its doors. Nor it never had so many world's champions to peel coin in its ring. The old garden is well known all over the world by men in every class of sport.

CORNELL SCORES BEST.

Preliminaries of Thirty-Ninth Intercollegiate Meet Take Place.

Cambridge, Mass., May 30.—Track teams of the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell and Yale competed true to form here yesterday in the preliminaries of the thirty-ninth annual championship meet of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America.

When the trials in eleven of the thirteen events comprising the program were completed, Cornell had placed 16, Pennsylvania, 14; Yale, 13; Harvard, 11; Michigan, 10; California and Dartmouth, 8 each; Princeton, 4; with six other institutions represented by scattering placements.

BEMIDJI GRADUATES CLASS OF NINETEEN

Thirteen Boys and Six Girls Compose Senior Class.

Bemidji, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nineteen graduates from the normal department of the Bemidji schools were given diplomas last night. Dr. E. H. Smith, president of the board, presented the diplomas to the high school graduates, while W. B. Stewart, county superintendent of schools, gave the diplomas to the normal school graduates. The presentation followed a program in which the ten students of highest scholastic rank participated.

Thirteen girls and six boys formed the graduating class. These are: Leon Battles, Fred Cutter, Jessie Dodge, Mona Flesher, Florence Freese, Harold Hayner, Hazel Hullett, Alma Loitved, Ruth Miner, Helen Minnick, Alice Neely, Dovie Plummer, Verna Pugh, Earle Riley, Ina Robertson, Mae Simenson, James Sullivan, Ruth Wentworth and J. D. Winter.

The graduates of the normal school are: Alma Loitved, Verna L. Pugh, Ina C. Robertson, Jessie J. Dodge, Esther Fleischman, H. Alice Neely, Mabel G. Plummer, Carol B. Knox, Izette G. Fisher, Fern A. Robertson, Ruth M. Weinebrenner, Edna E. Wright, Zenda Bell and Lillian A. Booth.

RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL IS COMPLETED.

Washington, May 30.—Completing its work on the rivers and harbors appropriation bill yesterday, the senate commerce committee put into the measure a provision to authorize the expenditure of $4,100,000 for the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia river. This is in addition to $1,000,000 to be appropriated immediately for the same project. The committee authorized the expenditure of $426,000 on the Los Angeles harbor in addition to $200,000 actually appropriated. Grays Harbor, Wash., was given $110,000. The Siuslawa river, Oregon, was given $112,500.

CO-OPERATES WITH THE WEATHER MAN

Erwin Baker Tells of His Experiences on Coast-to-Coast Cycle Trip.

Erwin G. Baker, who recently broke the coast-to-coast record on his Indian motorcycle, has the following to say about his run:

"First, I laid out my route—a matter of no small importance in selecting roads and towns through which to pass. Then, having done this, I enlisted the co-operation of a weather expert, and together we examined the weather conditions over my chosen territory for ten years past. Analysis showed that, contrary to general opinion, May was the best month for me to undertake a coast-to-coast ride on a motorcycle. So, relying on the weather's past performances, I determined to start in May, leaving San Diego on the third at 12 o'clock, Eastern time. The weather ran true to form and I did not hit rain until after I had got east of the Mississippi valley where I struck gravelly roads which absorbed moisture readily and gave me minimum trouble. This was just as I had planned. I followed behind a storm area trailing from west to east and struck no storm until another one finally caught up with me. During the rainy period I covered one stage of seventy-two miles through wind and water in one hour and fifty-five minutes.

"Another matter of foresight which helped me, was the planting of tanks of gasoline ahead of me at remote spots where I knew that no gas would have been obtainable. Thus I avoided fuel troubles.

"Still another factor of course was my machine. I rode a 1914 7-horse power twin two-speed Indian with electric equipment and cradle spring frame. In all the distance of 3,497 miles I had no mechanical difficulties whatever and I encountered all the different road conditions known to travel. Between Mammoth, Cal., and Glames I road sixty-four miles on the railroad ties, crossing trestles and bridges. In a 1,027 mile desert stretch of sand, cactus, heat, thirst and desolateness, I traveled 115 miles without seeing a single living thing—except Gila monsters and snakes.

"My final dash was a 418-mile one from Greensburg, Pa., to New York city. This I did in twenty hours, sixteen of which was actual riding. The total time for the trip was 11 days, 12 hours and 10 minutes, during which I took only forty-six hours sleep—about four hours per day. The average mileage per day was 304."

EXPECTS FEDERAL GOOD ROADS LAW

Federal Government and States Should Co-operate, Says A. A. A. Man.

"That congress will come through at this session with a good roads bill framed along practical lines seems highly probable. Congress is overwhelmingly in favor of good roads legislation. This is election year, and the members of congress from rural districts fully realize that no single measure would endear them to their constituents to quite the same extent as an appropriation from the federal treasury to help in the building of good roads."

This is the comment of George C. Diehl, chairman of the national good roads board of the American Automobile association, which is an active factor throughout the country in highways progress. Continuing Mr. Diehl says:

"Out of the wilderness of good roads bills, the confusing array of statistics, the torrent of good roads oratory (intended primarily for home consumption), certain basic features have been evolved which will undoubtedly be incorporated in the legislation to be enacted this year.

"The first essential feature is that the federal government shall deal with no political unit smaller than the state. There are nearly 3,000 counties and 30,000 townships in the United States, thus making 33,000 units which the federal government must deal with if it undertakes to give federal aid on a local basis. This, from an administrative standpoint, would be impossible, and certainly enormously expensive. From a political standpoint, the pressure which would be exerted upon the individual congressman by the counties and townships in his district, each trying to get a hand into the federal treasury, would be so persistent and so relentless that self-respecting men would throw up the job, leaving the field open to the political wire pullers. The realization of these fatal defects in any plan of extreme localization renders absolutely certain the adoption of the state as the smallest unit.

"It may be accepted as equally certain that no federal aid plan will receive the stamp of congressional approval unless it provides some measure of self-help on the part of the state. There are more than 2,250,000 miles of public road in the United States, and less than ten per cent of this mileage can be dignified with the title, 'Improved roads.'

"If the federal government should attempt to pay the entire cost of such construction of maintenance as it might undertake, it would be confronted with the problem of selecting from 2,000,000 miles of unimproved roads such small percentage as could be constructed or maintained without bankrupting the federal treasury; or it would have to make its contribution for each mile of road so small as to accomplish no tangible results, and leave the roads at the end of a term of years no better than they were at the beginning of federal aid.

"The present sentiment in congressional circles is for an automatic check upon federal aid in the form of a state contribution; and this feature will undoubtedly be incorporated in legislation to be adopted. Gradually, the dangers of political abuse under the 'Road rental' plan, to say nothing of its weakness as a means of bringing about tangible road improvements, have so impressed our legislators as to incline many former rental adherents to the 'co-operative' plan."

NEW SELLING RECORD.

Hudson Dealer Says 400,000 Cars Have Been Marketed.

When the selling season is closed next month, the year of 1914 will pass down in history as the greatest selling period, according to figures compiled by Fred G. Kleyn, local Hudson distributer. His compilations show that 400,000 automobiles, whose total value is $550,000,000, will have been marketed by American producers.

This phenomenal growth, as compared to 1900, when the industry was in its infancy, can be traced directly to the needs of the motor car, according to Mr. Kleyn. Fourteen years ago, he says, only a few hundred cars were built per annum. It was not until 1903 that the industry began to grow. In that year, declares the Duluth dealer, 10,000 cars were built.

The number was increased to 18,000 in 1904, while 24,000 cars were produced the following year. The figures given by Mr. Kleyn show that by 1908 the combined output of American manufactures was 56,000 cars.

But the most startling jump in the production was in 1909, when 120,000 cars, or more than double the output of the previous year, were manufactured. During 1912 the number of cars marketed was 300,000, while last season 350,000 American-made automobiles were placed into owners' hands.

"There are over 500 different lines of pleasure cars now on the market," declared Mr. Kleyn. "Some go and others come each year, but the record of the Hudson during the last three years has been unusually spotless. Our sales have shown a substantial increase each season, chiefly because the car has given uniform satisfaction."

IMMENSE OUTPUT OF TIRES.

Ford Factories Make 1,250,000 for This Season.

Detroit, Mich., May 30.—One million two hundred fifty thousand tires for this year's production of Ford cars is the estimate made by officials at the Ford factory in Highland Park, Mich.

This immense quantity will be supplied by four leading American tire companies. The tires arrive in daily shipments of sufficient quantities to keep pace with the production of the Ford factory. Each carload contains about 40 sets of tires so that during the months of January, February, March and April, when the factory production was around 1100 cars daily, approximately three carloads of tires were required for each day's production.

With 400 sets of tires to a freight car it will require approximately 781 cars, or a train approximately five and one-half miles long to bring the year's tire supply to the Ford factory.

The tires are all shipped less valve caps and fittings, the inner tubes being in the casings. Upon their arrival at the factory the tires are assembled on wheels, inflated, the fittings attached and sent down to the car assembly, which they leave as parts of completed cars.

The department where tires are assembled on wheels is an interesting one from a spectator's point of view. Here the big men of the factory, its Zbyszkos, and its Hackenschmidts, keep their muscles in shape. The record for assembling tires on wheels was made by a Pole weighing something near 250 pounds. He assembled 300 tires on wheels in a day and kept up the pace for days at a time. That is, he completely tired seventy-five cars every eight hours.

One of the visitors at the factory recently figured out that if every tire received at the Ford factory this year travels in the course of its lifetime 5000 miles, and this is a conservative estimate of the life of a tire on a Ford, the year's supply of tires will have traveled a total distance of 6,250,000,000 miles, or 250,000 times around the world before the last one is scrapped.

TWO-DOOR BODY POPULAR.

Kissel Car Manager Says Public Is Highly Pleased.

"I am willing to go on record with the declaration that no change in automobile design or style has created more generally favorable comment than the new two-door body," says J. T. Peacha, Jr., local agent for the Kissel Kar.

"Our advices from the factory state that everywhere this smart body type has been seen, the same highly favorable reception has been accorded it. The manufacturing schedule has been altered to meet a demand that has exceeded every estimate.

"Although the first to introduce this new body model, it can be truthfully said that Kissel is following, not creating, public sentiment. Never was a change promoted with more regard to the pulse of the trade. To every part of the country samples were sent, demonstrations made and opinions of motorists obtained. In not a single instance was an adverse criticism returned and, what is more important, orders for duplicates came from each point.

"Motorists who desire a smart, classy and distinctly individual car, are buying the new two-door 48-'Six' as fast as we can get them, and it is safe to predict that another year will find this style as popular, if not more so, than the conventional four doors. People certainly like something new occasionally, and when a change is both practical and radical, there is not much doubt about the outcome. The present series of 48-"Sixes" are also such great cars mechanically that there is nothing to handicap the vogue of the two-door idea."

Hints to Motorists

The porcelain of a spark plug may be made clean and almost equal to new by soaking it in carbon disulphide.

* * *

A soft leather washer placed between two iron washers will often serve to stop the rattle of fenders and brace rods.

* * *

The primary current should not be run through a master vibrator coil when the secondary circuit is not in use.

* * *

Make the surfaces of rim smooth with emery cloth, apply graphite to the rim, and beads of the tire, and your tire will never stick.

* * *

A good way to spoil a tire casing quickly is to start your car with a lunge, and stop it with a sudden application of the brakes.

* * *

Courts have decided that if an owner asks another party to crank his car and a broken arm results, the owner is liable for damages.

* * *

When the spark plug is removed a cork should be put in the spark plug hole to keep out dirt and grit until ready to replace the plug.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES

A volunteer motorcycle patrol for the state of Kansas is soon to be an established organization. The plan has the support of the commercial organization and has been indorsed by the governor and other state officials. P. E. Zimmerman of Lindsborg, secretary of the Kansas Short Grass Touring club, first conceived the idea of this state-wide motorcycle patrol and has marshaled the riders of the state together to form such an organization.

* * *

"For my work I would not give up my motorcycle for the best automobile in the market," says the Rev. C. V. Brethaupt, pastor of the Houma mission, Houma, La. "With the aid of the motorcycle I can do twice the work I could before I got the machine; can be home every night; can run my machine three months on less than it cost me to keep my horse and buggy one month and can get more mileage in one month than I used to get in three."

Another minister who has become a permanent booster for the motorcycle is Bishop Frank R. Millspaugh of Kansas. Recently the bishop visited the Rev. Alexander E. Hawke of Parsons, Kan., and was asked to take a ride in Dr. Hawke's sidecar. At first he was dubious, but before the trip was ended he was as enthusiastic about the advantages of the two-wheeler as Dr. Hawke himself.

* * *

A motorcycle relay race to carry a message from the mayor of Halifax, N. S., to the mayor of Vancouver, B. C., is being arranged by the Canadian Motorcyclists association. According to tentative plans the route will be partly in Canada and partly in America, the Dominion riders delivering the message at Windsor to members of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, who would carry it around the southern shores of the Great Lakes. From there the Canadian cyclists would again take up the trail, making a dash across the prairie to the Rockies. The distance of this proposed transcontinental run is approximately 5,000 miles, and about 100 motorcyclists are expected to aid in delivering the message in record-breaking time.

* * *

Constant improvements are being made in the motorcycles designed for fire department use, in order to make them more serviceable. One of the new fire-fighting motorcycles is equipped with two extinguishers, one on each side of the front fork of the machine. These are fastened by special brackets and are instantly removable. A fireman's axe also forms a part of the equipment. In cases of incipient fires the motorcycle men can frequently save the heavy trucks from long, hard runs. And even where the blaze has gained too much headway to be extinguished with the apparatus carried on the two-wheeler, it is still of advantage to have the motorcycle men on the ground, as they can locate the nearest water plugs and investigate the best method of getting at the fire, so that no time is lost when the heavy equipment arrives.

* * *

It is said that the oldest club affiliated with the Federation of American Motorcyclists is the National Capital Motorcycle club of Washington, D. C.

Park policemen of Chicago are soon to be furnished with motorcycles.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

In addition to the American fighting forces, American made automobiles are playing a very important part in the present trouble in Mexico. From time to time brief dispatches from the trouble zone state that some general directed a battle from his car or that an automobile figures conspicuously in relief work. But these scant reports, censored in Mexico, do not tell that most of these cars are of American make.

Chalmers cars, for instance, have figured largely in all of the Mexican troubles. The popularity of the Chalmers in the warring republic dates back to the summer of 1909 when a pathfinding trip from Denver to Mexico City was made by the first Chalmers "30," known as the "Old Reliable." This car made a record-breaking trip from Denver to the Mexican capital, visiting all the points that have figured so largely in the war news of late. A few days ago a dispatch from Vera Cruz stated that the negotiations with Huerta which led to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, leaving the Mexican capital were carried on in his Chalmers "Six." O'Shaughnessy and President Huerta spent several hours discussing the situation while riding about the city. Both Huerta and O'Shaughnessy are owners of Chalmers "Sixes." The Mexican dictator owns several Chalmers models, while a number of Chalmers are used by the dif-

$1200 worth for $950
—And a better car in the bargain

ALL values are judged by comparison. You size up the worth and quality of any one article, by comparing it with several other similar articles. Then, and only then, you are in a position to make the most practical, intelligent and economical choice.

Therefore, before you choose your automobile, carefully compare the specifications, quality and equipment of the $950 Overland with the description of any of the $1200 cars. You'll find no material difference.

For instance:

The $950 Overland has a wheel base of 114 inches. A good many $1200 cars have even a shorter wheel base than this.

The $950 Overland has a thirty-five horsepower motor. Do you know of any $1200 car that can give you more power?

The $950 Overland has 33 inch x 4 inch tires. Again the same—in both size and quality—that you find on most $1200 cars.

The $950 Overland has electric lights throughout—exactly the same as any of the highest priced cars.

The $950 Overland is as roomy, comfortable and as luxuriously finished as any $1200 car.

The Overland equipment is just as complete, and of just as high a quality as the equipment of any $1200 car.

The steels used in the Overland are of the very highest grade; in fact the metals and materials used in the Overland are of the same quality as those found in the most costly cars in the world.

The Overland is just as accurately and precisely produced as any car on the market—regardless of price.

The more you compare this $950 car with cars costing 30% and even 40% more—the more you are brought to realize that to pay more than $950 for this type of car is absolutely unnecessary.

The Overland costs you less, because of our greater production.

Other manufacturers must charge you more, because of their smaller production.

And that is why the Overland is outselling every other similar car made. We are delivering 5000 Overlands a month right now.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 30.—A force of 100 carpenters has been put at work on the grounds of the Sioux City speedway building additional grandstands for the accommodation of the 30,000 or more spectators expected to attend the racing program here the first four days of July, which will have its climax in the $25,000 sweepstakes purse for best time in the 300-mile event. This force of carpenters—or a larger one—will be on the job probably most of the time from now until the stands are completed.

Meanwhile, other small armies of men will be at work on various improvements necessary to the preparation for the biggest racing event ever planned west of the Mississippi river. Among these is the boring of a tunnel under the speedway itself from a point outside the grounds emerging well in the midst of the infield, which will have parking space for several thousand automobiles as well as standing room for a great concourse of people on foot. A conduit of reinforced concrete 10 feet wide and 10 feet high will provide this accommodation. Quite a formidable piece of construction also will be the building of 1,200 feet of steel and concrete abuttments before the full extent of the grandstands, two feet high as protection to the spectators, and another stretch of 400 feet of similar construction in front of the 27 pits. The turns will be protected from wild or wrecked cars by long stretches of hub high railroad irons.

Considerable attention and comment is already being attached to the unusual exhibition game to be staged at Swayne field, Toledo, by the Chicago Cubs and the worlds-champion Philadelphia Athletics on the afternoon of June 23, for the pleasure of the 8,000 employes of the Willys-Overland automobile industries. The unique and unprecedented feature of the event lies in the fact that it is the first time on record that any automobile manufacturer will entertain the employes with a battle between two such prominent representatives of the major leagues during the championship season. However, arrangements have been completed and on the afternoon appointed Connie Mack's famous machine will again be pitted against its former world's series rival.

The idea of bringing together these noted exponents of the national game was conceived by the Willys-Overland company, which in this way gives evidence of its adherence to the policy of treating its workmen to the best entertainment available. This outing feature is an annual event although attempted this year on a much more ambitious scale than heretofore.

The ever-widening adaptability and application of the motor car is being illustrated each day, as new uses are found for it, but perhaps one of the most striking and significant advances made is the adoption of the automobile for the funeral cortege. Now that perfection of mechanical construction has been practically realized, funeral directors are beginning to appreciate the advantages of motor transportation in their line of business, especially because of dignity, comfort and time-saving virtues.

A case in point recently occurred in Baltimore. In that city last month the Cadillac distributor sold ten cars in one order to two funeral directors. Each firm will have a motor hearse and four Cadillac eight-passenger limousines, and by a mutual arrangement each firm can command an equipment of the eight limousines.

An indication of the great saving to fire departments of the smaller cities through the substitution of power driven equipment for horses, may be obtained from a recent report by Chief McIllhargey of Hibbing, Minn.

Chief McIllhargey reports that the cost of maintaining and operating a Kissel Kar combination hose and chemical wagon for Dec. 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914, was precisely $23.16. The chief figures that this is a saving of more than $23 a month over the houres replaced.

Marshalltown, Iowa, has just purchased its third piece of Kissel Kar fire apparatus, a hook and ladder truck.

Deer-hunting in Florida is not a new sport by any means, but the methods recently employed by Wahl J. and John N. Snyder of Beaver, Pa., proved a decided innovation to the natives of the Everglades districts. Instead of using ponies as means of locomotion in the pursuit of the elusive buck the Snyder brothers, who are Overland dealers in their home town, utilized a 1913 model Overland, threading the faintly marked trails of the Southern jungle with gasoline instead of horseflesh as motive power. Though the car had been run more than 25,000 miles since it left the factory and the Florida natives scoffed at the idea of its being able to get within shooting distance of a deer, the new method of hunting was highly successful and the members of the Snyder party brought back to camp all the deer the game laws of the state allowed them.

That Victoriano Huerta had definite designs on the pacification of all Northern Mexico by means of 200 American automobiles is an interesting piece of news brought out of Mexico City by D. B. Richardson, Studebaker dealer in the "Sister Republic," who has just arrived in Detroit, after successfully escaping from its metropolis with his family.

As a souvenir of his last business month in Mexico, Mr. Richardson retains a copy of a highly flattering report made to War Minister Blanquet on the Studebaker lightweight "Six"—a report which, but for the fall of Torreon, would undoubtedly have resulted in a record-breaking order for immediate delivery.

"Hesitation motoring" is all the rage in San Diego, Cal., where owners and dealers are combining in efforts to demonstrate flexibility on high gear for their various cars. At present the lightweight Studebaker "Six" of Warner M. Bateman holds the record performance with a mile in 26 minutes, 33 seconds, officially timed. The test was over level streets and was done without slipping the clutch.

WILL CONSIDER TAKING APPEAL

Council Will Meet Attorneys in Charge of Franchise Case.

The members of the city council will meet with attorneys who had charge of the street railway case some day next week to determine whether or not the case shall be appealed.

Judge Cant recently handed down a decision upholding the validity of the franchise of the Duluth Street Railway company. City Attorney Clapp stated last week that it has been understood from the beginning that regardless of the ruling of the district court, it would be necessary for the supreme court to pass upon the issues of law involved in the case.

IS CHANGED TO SUIT SENTENCE

Burglar Allowed to Plead to Larceny Charge— Sent to Farm.

In order that Victor Linn might be committed to the county and city work farm instead of being sent to the state penitentiary, the charge of burglary in the third degree to which he pleaded guilty on May 11 last was dismissed yesterday in district court and Linn allowed to plead guilty to information charging him with grand larceny in the second degree, which permits of a work farm sentence.

This action was taken by Mason M. Forbes, first assistant county attorney, who stated to the court that he believed that the interests of society would be better served if Linn was committed to the work farm instead of being placed behind penitentiary bars. Linn confessed to breaking into the home of Oscar Johnson at Taft, this county, last April and stealing several articles.

Judge Fesler sent Linn to the farm for ninety days. The court would have had no power to send the prisoner to the work farm if the sentence had been imposed for burglary.

PRESIDENT VINCENT ADDED TO THE BOARD.

New York, May 30.—The general education board which administers the John D. Rockefeller fund yesterday announced appropriations totalling $1,400,000 to universities and colleges and for the purpose of carrying on farm demonstration instruction and boys and girls' clubs in Maine and New Hampshire.

The board was enlarged by the election to membership of George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota.

Will Sell Bonds.

New York, May 30.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company has sold to a banking syndicate $30,000,000 of 4½ per cent refunding bonds which will be offered at public sale next week, around 96½. Those bonds are part of a large issue authorized by the shareholders some months ago and the proceeds will go toward the payment of maturing obligations.

West End

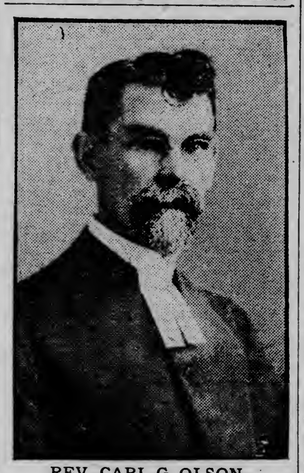
WILL LEAVE OLD CHARGE

Rev. C. G. Olson, Lutheran Pastor, Resigns After Seven Years' Service.

Will Accept Another Post at Genoa, Neb.—Successor Not Yet Named.

Rev. Carl G. Olson, pastor of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, for the last seven and a half years, and one of the foremost workers in the interest of civic welfare in this end of the city, will leave Duluth about June 15. His resignation as pastor of the local church has been tendered to the congregation in order that he may accept another post, that of a church at Genoa, Neb.

Rev. Mr. Olson has been a prominent worker among the Swedish Lutheran congregations in this section of the state. During the last two years he was president of the Lake Superior district for Swedish Lutheran churches, and is, at the present time, a member of the Minnesota college board, as well as chairman of the board in charge of the proposed orphans' home to be located in the Duluth district.



REV. CARL G. OLSON.

While in charge of the local church, Rev. Mr. Olson has also had charge of a number of outside congregations. Every week he has preached at Alborn, Bovey, Grand Rapids and other cities and villages on the range. Some of these have been organized through efforts of the pastor.

During the seven and a half years that he has been pastor of the local church he has cleared the church entirely of debt. The building had a mortgage amounting to $7,000 when he took hold of the parish. The last of these notes was paid off recently.

A successor has not yet been definitely secured. The congregation has extended an invitation to Rev. Victor H. Hagstrom of Chicago, but as yet has not received an official answer from him. Dr. Bergstrom has been in charge of the Augustana church of Chicago for eleven years. He is a graduate with Ph. D. honors from Yale college. For four years he was a professor of the Upsala college of New Jersey and for five years was president of the Jewell college of Iowa.

Rev. and Mrs. Olson will leave during the third week in June. Between his absence and the acceptance of a call by a new pastor the church will be under the charge of Rev. G. K. Andeen, a recent graduate of the Augustana college of Rock Island, Ill.

FIRST SERVICES AT NEW CHURCH

Formal Dedication of Hermantown Edifice Will Take Place in June.

The newly constructed Lutheran temple at Hermantown will be the scene this afternoon of its first religious services. The services will not be in the nature of dedication, but the official opening of the edifice. The dedication services will be attended by Rev. Carl G. Olson, pastor of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, who has been instrumental in organizing a Sunday school and ladies' aid society in the district; Rev. F. O. Hanson of the Trinity English Lutheran church; Rev. John Krantz, pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, and Rev. C. O. Swan of the First Swedish Lutheran church.

The new church was erected this spring at a cost of $2,000. Most of this money has been raised through efforts of the ladies' aid society of Hermantown. Preaching services will be held twice each month and Sunday school services weekly. The church will also be used as a meeting place for the church societies.

WILL CONFIRM CLASS OF TWENTY-FIVE.

A class of twenty-five young people will be confirmed tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Trinity English Lutheran church, Twenty-seventh avenue west and Third street, by Rev. F. O. Hanson, pastor of the church. Following a public examination of the class, the confirmation service will be carried out. Special music has been planned.

At the evening services at 8 o'clock commnion services will be held at which the confirmed will take part for the first time. A reception for the members of the church will follow the service.

The following are the members of the confirmation class:

An automobile parade through the city, a program of speeches, music, sports and other features are being arranged by members of the Swedish American National League for the celebration of Midsummer Day, June 24. The principal celebration will be held at Lincoln park.

The parade will be headed by a large float with "Uncle Sam." Following will be floats containing boys and girls dressed in Swedish national colors. The parade will start from the armory at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The committee has already arranged for a number of speakers for the day. Mayor W. I. Prince will head the program and give the opening address. Following him will be Rev. A. F. Elmquist of Minneapolis, and Dr. O. J. Johnson, president of the Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn., who will give the principal addresses.

The sports program will begin immediately following the speeches. The committee in charge of this part of the program expects to have a general outline of the events ready at the meeting of the league on Monday evening at the Bachelors' hall, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR

He was taken in an unconscious condition to St. Luke's hospital, where he regained consciousness shortly after arriving at the institution. He sustained a broken arm and a number of minor bruises. Brooks resides at First avenue West and Third street.

NATURALIZATION IN BRITISH EMPIRE

Imperial Government Is Placed in a Rather Embarrassing Position.

London, May 30.—The imperial government has found itself in a rather embarrasing position in connection with the naturalization bill. Under an agreement made at the last colonial conference, the naturalization laws in the various parts of the empire were to be so changed that a man naturalized in one of the Dominions should be recognized as a British subject either in the United Kingdom or the other dominions. It was agreed that uniform laws on this point should be passed, but the Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders insisted that a clause should be inserted which would enable them to exclude Asiatics or any undesirables, even though they had taken out naturalization papers in some other part of the empire. In settlement of this point it was finally agreed that an alien must have, as a consideration of naturalization, "an adequate knowledge of the English language."

The Canadian and Australian parliaments have passed the bill with this cause, and the measure had also passed the house of lords and was awaiting consideration in the house of commons, when the Jewish organizations in London brought up a protest that the clause making "an adequate knowledge of the English language" necessary would operate to the prejudice of large bodies of desirable Jews. Their request that this provision be left out was heeded by the imperial parliament, and the whole question of who should be admitted or refused was left to the home office authorities. The clause stands, however, in the Canadian and Australian legislation, so the original agreement for uniform laws appears for the time being, at least, to be defeated.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY ENDS

Most Harmonious Session That Has Been Held in Decade.

Chicago, May 30.—The one hundredth and twenty-sixth general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America concluded its business and adjourned yesterday.

Church leaders declared it was the most harmonious general assembly of the denomination in a decade.

Following is a summary of the most important business transacted by the general assembly:

Ordered a complete reorganization of the church's board of home missions.

Indorsed nation-wide prohibition.

Condemned Sunday baseball and the playing of all other sports and games of the Sabbath.

Condemned unnecessary travel and all pleasure excursions on Sunday.

Indorsed the national administration for its efforts to prevent war with Mexico.

Indorsed the universal adoption of the Saturday half holiday.

Expressed the hope that the time may speedily come when matters of serious international disputes shall be adjudicated by an established international court of justice.

Condemned capital punishment.

Authorized women to hold the office of deaconness in the church.

Adoption of a resolution demanding ministers and laymen to withdraw from clubs and other social organizations which dispense intoxicating liquor.

Selected Rochester, N. Y., as the meeting place of the next general assembly to be held in May, 1915.

ELAM ACQUITTED OF KILLING CRAMER

Unwritten Law Results in Doctor Being Found Not Guilty.

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—"Not guilty" was the verdict a jury returned yesterday in the case of Dr. W. T. Elam, a prominent physician of St. Joseph, charged with the murder of W. Putnam Cramer, a Chicago magazine solicitor, in a hotel here Nov. 18 last.

When the verdict was returned the criminal court building shook with the stamping of hundreds of feet.

The killing grew out of attentions alleged to have been paid Mrs. Elam by Cramer, a magazine solicitor, and took place in a hotel here last November.

The verdict was returned just two hours and thirty-two minutes after deliberations began. As the words "not guilty," fell from the lips of the foreman of the jury, there was wild cheering in the court room, which was filled with Dr. Elam's friends. Judge Latshaw rapped loudly for order. The judge then polled the jury and each man said "not guilty."

Dr. Elam took the verdict apparently without surprise. Mrs. Cramer widow of the slain man, was not in court. She collapsed earlier in the day.

Struck by Train.

Waterloo, Iowa, May 30.—An Illinois Central passenger train crashed into an automobile, load of children, one mile west of Aplington, late yesterday afternoon, killing one and injuring others.

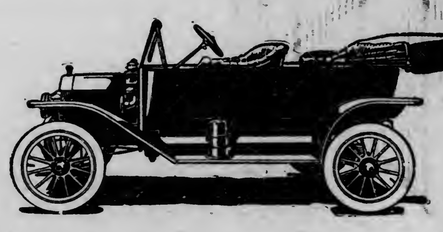
DULUTH SUPERIOR

E. J. FILIATRAULT.

Mr. Filiatrault, of the Mutual Auto Company, Says—



Buy a Ford For the Following Reasons:

Save $76.66 per month in the operation of a Ford automobile in your first year. What does this mean? A good salary for the average man. Compare the following figures to prove the above statement—

AVERAGE SEASON, 7,500 MILES.	FORD.	Any $1000 Car.
Original cost	$550.00	$1000.00
Gasoline consumed, 7,500 miles	50.00	100.00
Oil consumed, 7,500 miles	5.00	10.00
Maintenance expense	25.00	100.00
Tires, new, required for 7,500 miles	.....	100.00
Depreciation first year or on season of 7,500 miles	150.00	500.00
	$790.00	$1810.00
Asset after first year	400.00	500.00
Cost of operating first year	$390.00	$1310.00
Deducting cost of operating Ford		390.00
Shows a saving at end of first year of		$ 920.00

Or a saving of $76.66 per month or about $3.00 per day for each day in the year

And again we will agree to pay to the Associated Charities of Duluth $50.00 in gold (allowing two disinterested judges to decide) if the Ford of 1914 vintage will not ride with more comfort to the passengers when operating at 15 to 20 miles per hour on Second St. from Third Ave. West to Third Ave. East over any other American built cars of the Pierce Arrow, Packard, Lozier, Locomobile, or any other American car selling from $3500 to $6000. Don't allow unscrupulous dealers to lead you astray by their false statements in their arguments to sell you an automobile that in time will prove these statements are correct and a loss to you.

SCANT 100 VETERANS OF THE CIVIL WAR ALL THAT REMAIN OF THE DWINDLING RANKS IN DULUTH

Sixteen of Nation's Heroes Heard Last Call During Year.

Nearly All of Survivors Have Passed Three Score and Ten Mark.

ROLL CALL OF THE DEAD.
(By John H. La Vaque.)

Another year has rolled around and Memorial day again reminds us of the past, of the stirring busy days, weeks, months and years of '61 to '65. We look back along the long files of comrades who have surrendered to the arch enemy, death, and we are sorrowfully reminded of our duties for the present.

We call the roll of our comrades that we may know who, from our ranks, have joined the ever increasing army on the other side of the river. Force! Edwin Force! Bailey! William F. Bailey! Silence prevails. No one answers to the names of these two comrades. They have left our ranks and joined that vast army that have gone before. They now occupy the bivouac of the dead, their mounds can be found in every city, town and hamlet in this broad land of ours. Today we assemble wherever members of the Grand Army of the Republic are found to pay homage to the memory of our dead comrades.

We commemorate their memory today, not by shaft or obelisk, not by bronze tablet or carved marble, but with this modest flower which I deposit as a token of our love and affection for our fallen comrades.

Comrades, rest in peace.

Gradually Duluth's army of Civil war veterans is dwindling. It is estimated that an average of fifteen old soldiers has died each year since 1890, so that on such a basis, it will be but a few years before the Duluth survivors will have disappeared.

As the Civil war was fought more than fifty years ago, it can readily be seen that every veteran alive today must be very close to the allotted span of three score and ten. Ten years from now few will survive.

Today being Memorial day, it is interesting to note the roster of the Willias A. Gorman and Joshua B. Culver posts of this city. The former has a membership of about sixty, while the latter has forty members. These include about all the Civil war veterans in Duluth today.

The officers of Gorman post are: Samuel Anderson, commander; Charles Cotter, senior vice commander; Leonidas Merritt, junior vice commander; J. A. Tucker, adjutant; Asa Dailey, quartermaster; D. W. Scott, chaplain; James G. Furgerson, officer of the day; S. F. White, patriotic instructor; O. A. Strickland, officer of the guard; Jacob Laux, sergeant major, and W. A. Kennedy, quartermaster sergeant.

The membership of Gorman post, as given out by Quartermaster Asa Dailey, follows:

The two local posts are in charge today of the placing of flowers and wreaths on the graves of the dead veterans. There are 176 Civil war veterans buried in the fourteen cemeteries in Duluth, range towns and the surrounding country. Asa Dailey of Gorman post yesterday sent these wreaths to the various cemeteries, so that not a single veteran's grave will be missed today.

Mr. Dailey has a copy of the program of the first Memorial day service and parade ever held in Duluth. It was on May 30, 1872, and was then in charge of Sherbrooke post, No. 26, of which Maj. Albert N. Seip was chairman and in charge of the arrangements. Mr. Seip is now residing in Washington.

Since then the work of preparing for Memorial day has been taken over by the organizing of Citizens' staffs and the Sons of Veterans throughout the country. In 1872 but three local veterans of the war had died, they being George E. Stuntz, Lieut. G. Sherbrooke and Maj. E. H. Kennedy.

The Gorman post was organized on March 22, 1882, while Culver post became an organization on Dec. 31, 1891.

SAW WRECK OF EMPRESS OF JAPAN

Duluth Man Was Steward of Big Liner in Same Typhoon.

The wreck of the steamer Empress of Ireland yesterday morning in the St. Lawrence river, recalled to George W. Lawrence, maitre d'hotel of the St. Louis hotel, the wreck of the steamer Empress of Japan, a sister ship of the ill-fated Empress of Ireland, and belonging to the same company.

Mr. Lawrence, who, as steward of some of the largest ocean liners in the world, saw the wreck of the Empress of India just a few hours after it happened, and in fact the vessel upon which he was steward—the Korea—was in the typhoon in the sea of Japan, which wrecked the Empress.

The Korea, according to Mr. Lawrence, kept well out in the sea and rode the storm out. The Japan got in too close to shore and was swept from deep water over a stretch of rock clear above the surface of the ocean to water so shallow that at low tide she was in water not over four feet deep. Her natural draft was twenty-one feet. An enormous sum was spent by the company in an effort to salvage the ship, but the attempt had to be given up.

This wreck occurred two and a half years ago, and was within a four-hour run of Yokohama.

LIGHTED PIPE FIRES MAN'S BUGGY SEAT.

Sanborn, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leo Noecker had a most peculiar experience while returning to his farm near here in a buggy. In some manner, probably from a spark from his pipe, the cushion on the buggy seat caught fire and when the flames were noticed Noecker's clothing was ablaze. The timely arrival of two men in an auto saved his life. He was badly burned about the head, arms and face.

Gets Wahpeton Contract.

Wahpeton, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene Schuler of this city, has been given the contract for the construction of the Federal building in Wahpeton, the cost of which will be approximately $41,000, that being the general contracting bid. The contractor is now engaged handling a construction job in California, but will arrive home in a few days to commence operations.

ELEVATORS ARE IN RIGHT

Elevator Companies Are Entitled to Handle Consigned Grain.

Important Decision By State Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

A decision of wide interest to the grade trade has just been handed down by the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission. In it is denied an application preferred by a number of grain growers and shippers for the cancellation on May 31 of commission merchants' licenses held by the following elevator concerns:

Baldwin Elevator company, Brooks Elevator company, Columbia Elevator company, Crown Elevator company, Dibble Grain and Elevator company, Empire Elevator company, Imperial Elevator company, Kasota Elevator company, Miller Elevator company, Minnesota Elevator company, Monarch Elevator company, National Elevator company, Northland Elevator company, Northwestern Elevator company, Occident Elevator company, Osborn-McMillan Elevator company, Powers Elevator company, St. Anthony and Dakota Elevator company, Victoria Elevator company.

No specific allegation of wrongdoing or injustice was preferred against any of the elevator companies mentioned, nor was it contended that they did not exercise due diligence in selling grain consigned to them at the highest market price and making full and proper returns of the proceeds to shippers.

It was, however, the contention of the petitioners that an elevator company, being a buyer and seller of grain on its own account, is not in a position to act as an agent for a shipper because his grain may come in competition with that owned by itself.

In rendering its decision, the railroad and warehouse commission drew attention to the fact that the law authorizing commission merchants to handle grain on consignment, passed in 1899, does not directly or by implication, forbid elevator companies from engaging in the business of handling and selling grain on commission.

It was furthermore noted that no specific complaint has ever been made by any shipper against any of the elevator companies mentioned in the petition on the score of any failure to discharge their duties or that more attention had been given to company than to consigned grain.

In summing the case up, it is pointed out by the commission that a petition which seeks to deprive a citizen of the state from the right to participate in legitimate business, must state facts which will appraise the party of the act complained of, and enable him to prepare his defense.

AT THE END OF THEIR ROPES

West Duluth's Youthful Criminals Need Expect No More Leniency.

Judge Fesler Determined to Break Up Gangs of Thieves.

When District Judge Fesler released Henry Merow, an 18-year-old West Duluth boy, who yesterday afternoon confessed to the crime of breaking into a box car at West Duluth on May 12 last, the prisoner was told that his case would be continued for sentence with the understanding that should he ever get in trouble again he would go to prison without further ceremony.

Merow pleaded guilty to information presented by Mason M. Forbes, first assistant county attorney, charging him with burglary in the third degree. In connection with the arraignment of the young man, the court called upon Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police station to state his views as to what should be done with young men in that end of the city who have been committing a series of burglaries and larcenies.

Lieut. Wilcox stated to the court that in his opinion measures should be taken which would bring such practices to a stop. The officer stated that he believed that an example should be made of some of the trouble makers. This he thought would be the most effective way to break up any gang which might be organized among young boys for the purpose of committing crimes.

Judge Fesler stated that he would parole Merow, but that he was to be the last West Duluth boy who would be given this chance, that he would send the next young man to come before him from that locality to the penitentiary or reformatory. He said that he was through paroling prisoners and that offenders should disabuse their mind of the idea that they may go ahead and commit crimes and get out of the scrape by coming into court appearing penitent.

CLASS BANQUET GREAT SUCCESS

The banquet of the Duluth Industrial high school held last night at the Irving school was a brilliant affair. Seventy-two students of the upper classes took part. The supper was served by girls from the sophomore and freshman classes.

The halls of the school were prettily decorated with the colors of the two classes. John Davis, president of the seniors and "mayor" of the school, was toastmaster. Addresses were given by S. A. Foster, principal of the school; Vivian Nichols, Lillian Flaherty, Emmeline Brett, Page Cashin, Otto Olafson, Allen Forsberg, Otto Blais and James Donald, president of the junior class.

At the close of the program the young people enjoyed dancing until 11:30 o'clock.

Speakers at the banquet praised the senior class picture, which will be one of the features in the Oracle, the school's publication. This picture has the photographs of the graduates worked into the figure "'14." It was designed by the Johnson Studio company, 228 East Superior street.

SUBURBANITES KICK ON LACK OF DRAINAGE.

Residents of Fond du Lac are aroused over what they term "neglect" on the part of the city in providing proper drainage to take care of water in case of heavy rains. In a communication to The Herald a man who signs himself "taxpayer" blames the city for not providing drains leading to the river.

He says that a number of gardens recently planted were washed out by the heavy rains on Thursday, that the streets were flowed in every direction and that many cement sidewalks were washed out. As a remedy for this condition he advocates a canal leading from the hill side along Third street to the water front.

SAYS ALLEYS ARE DISEASE BREEDERS

Health Department Scored at Commercial Club Meeting.

The city health department was scored by David Sang at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last night. Mr. Sang said that the department was paying little or no attention to alleys in some sections of West Duluth and that people were being allowed to throw all manner of refuse and filthy matter into them and that some of these were breeding places for all kinds of disease and a general menace to the health of the people.

"One place in particular, near Raleigh street, is a disgrace to the city," said Mr. Sang. "In this particular place a case of typhoid fever existed and signs to this effect were posted on the house. The persons in the house apparently did not have sewer connection and were throwing all the slop on the lot adjoining. When the health inspector's attention was called to this he said he could not do anything because the people owned the next lot. There must be some ordinance that covers such a case. The throwing of this water upon vacant lots, the water, perhaps, containing typhoid bacteria might cause a spread of the diseasc throughout the neighborhood.

"The alleys are allowed to remain dirty and little effort on the part of the city is made to compel residents to clean up, and the city is taking no initiative in doing its own cleaning."

Members of the club took no action in the matter. Several subjects were mentioned, among them being the proposed suit against the Canadian Northern railroad for alleged damages to No. 8 fire hall, the proposed subway under the Northern Pacific railroad at Smithville and the proposed Soo line passenger and freight station. Members inquired what action was being taken on the part of the city to bring quick action on some of these improvements but no one was able to offer an explanation.

The signals are a part of the interlocking system installed at Forty-fourth avenue west.

The interlocking system will be operated from a station located at the latter place. This will control sixty-four switches along the line of the Canadian Northern and the Northern Pacific railroad.

CONSECRATED PURSES

Christian Endeavor Missionary Lesson for May 31: Mal. III., 7-12.

We hear much about consecrated Christians and Christians as being consecrated to their work. But we seldom hear any one on "Consecrated Purses," and we never hear of a church sending out missionaries who are not believed to be consecrated to the cause which they represent. In order to have our purses consecrated to missions we must needs be informed, we must pray for missions, and surely we would have to give willingly to missions. Then would we not have the essentials of a consecrated missionary purse?

God told the Jews they had robbed him even the whole nation and were cursed with a curse. Mal. iii., 8-9. This caused them to ask the question: Wherein have we robbed thee? But God was not slow in telling them, and said, in tithes and in offerings.

Now if information, prayer and giving make "Consecrated Purses," the Jews must have ceased to learn and ceased to give. Surely they left off the latter which brought on the curse.

God did not only tell them of their national disease but he also gave them the cure. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts. If I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." God herewith promised to cure them of their national sin.

He also said He would rebuke the devourer, open the windows of heaven, pour them out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it, that their vines should not cast their fruit before their time, and that all nations should call them blessed and a delightsome land. All this was promised them if they would only bring the tithe into the storehouse. Why? "That there may be meat in mine house."

Let us therefore bring a "Consecrated Purse" unto God, knowing that "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver."

EDWARD P. WEST,
State Branch Missionary Superintendent, Turtle, Wis.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Fifty years ago the veterans whom the nation again honors today, whether they are dead or living, were engaged in a terrible business that was being done, under Grant, in a terribly businesslike way.

The war had entered its final stage. The Confederacy had reached its zenith a year before, and Gettysburg in the East and Vicksburg in the West had signalized the nation's birthday by marking the beginning of the end. But the end was slow in coming, and the dying resistance of the shattered Confederacy was stubborn and noble.

Half a century ago Grant was in supreme command as lieutenant-general, the first since Washington. At last the MAN was found. Grant was just beginning his awful campaign in Virginia that was to include the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Courthouse, Cold Harbor—shambles all in which men were slaughtered by the tens of thousands. Appomattox was the goal, but it was eleven months away over a long, desperate and bloody road. In the Shenandoah Valley Phil Sheridan was about to destroy Early at Winchester, Fisher's Hill and Cedar Creek; and when he was through every Confederate was to be driven from the valley and the valley laid waste.

In the West Sherman was getting under way his thunderbolt campaign to divide the Confederacy. In a few months Atlanta was to fall and the torch-carrying march to the sea was to begin. With the next spring was to come final victory, and peace was to settle down at last over a stricken people, bled white with war.

Half a century has rolled over these scenes of horror. The nation has lived down its Civil war—harder still, its Reconstruction period. The wounds are healed, the scars grown over, and a united nation, in peace and prosperity, pauses again today, fifty years after, to pay its tribute of love and veneration to those who fought for Union and for Liberty.

It is good that so many of these valiant soldiers have by the grace of God been permitted to be with us still. With the growing years, without abating one jot or tittle the sacredness of our veneration for those who are gone, there has come a growing tenderness for those who remain and who join us today in honoring those who fought for the Republic in those terrible days of the Sixties.

These living soldiers honor today their comrades who have gone. The rest of us honor those who have gone, but honor doubly those who are with us yet. Peace to them, and comfort and honor, while they remain, and may their days be long among us!

A GAME THAT WILL BE PLAYED NO LONGER.

If there was any chance whatever for the owners of railroads to stay the hand of government regulation before Mr. Mellen testified, there certainly is none now.

In the case of the New Haven stockholders have been despoiled—robbed is more accurate—and the public interests have been betrayed, all as a part of a great game in which this railroad was a mere pawn in a fascinating money-making game, played by a giant of finance.

The Westchester railroad deal alone is enough to insure public regulation of railroad deals forevermore—or at least until public ownership supplants it.

Under Morgan's direction, the New Haven bought the Westchester. Work amounting to about a million dollars had been done, and there was real estate worth four millions. Five millions was considered a good price.

When Morgan's puppets started into this deal, eleven millions were set aside as the first sum to be paid out, it being understood that more was to follow.

The president of the New Haven timidly asked why so much money was being spent on so trivial an occasion, and he was insulted and browbeaten for his pains. Other directors who expressed surprise and wanted Mellen to tell them what it was all about were told to ask Morgan; and none of them dared.

In all, more than thirty millions of dollars was paid for this five-million-dollar property.

Is there any wonder that the widows and orphans of New England who had been depending on their New Haven holdings for their livings have gone hungry?

Will anybody, after these revelations, have the face to oppose strict and thoroughgoing public regulation of all railroad dealings?

MARRYING IN HASTE.

"Marry in haste, we may repent at leisure," said Congreve, and though he was not the first to utter the sentiment, he spoke wisdom.

Randolph put it thus:

> Marry too soon, and you'll repent too late.
> A sentence worth my meditation;
> For marriage is a serious thing.

And witty Moliere said: "Men often marry in hasty recklessness and repent afterwards all their lives."

If these men were writing nowadays, they could have put it that hasty marriages make a fat divorce court.

A Louisville judge, according to the Courier-Journal, in granting a divorce the other day had this to say: "The records of the divorce court since I have been on the bench will show that of the petitions filed in the Jefferson circuit court ninety per cent of the marriages were performed in Jeffersonville, and in a large majority of the cases one of the parties grew tired of his or her bargain in a few weeks."

Jeffersonville is in Indiana, just across the state line from Louisville. It is the Gretna Green of Louisville, where couples go to be married quickly and without publicity when their agreement to marry is the result of a momentary impulse. It is small wonder that ninety per cent of the divorce cases in Louisville result from such marriages when it is realized how hasty and ill-considered practically all of them are.

Before Wisconsin adopted strict marriage laws its regulations were exceedingly loose. No license was required, and a couple could get married anywhere on a moment's notice.

In those days Superior was the Gretna Green of Duluth's couples who said "Let's get married" as they would say "Let's have an ice-cream soda," and who took the next car across the bay and were married.

And in those days at least seventy-five per cent of the divorce cases in the Duluth courts were the logical fruits of marriages performed in Superior.

Railing at the divorce evil that overlooks the chief cause of divorce—hasty and ill-considered matrimonial alliances—is aimless and little to the purpose.

What this country needs more than laws to restrict divorce is laws to make it less easy to get married—or at least laws that will require a little time for serious thinking between the thought of marriage and its execution.

ANOTHER HORROR OF THE SEA.

Once more a great maritime disaster sends a thrill of horror and sympathy pulsing around the globe.

By a collision in the St. Lawrence river between the great passenger steamer Empress of Ireland and a collier, many hundreds of passengers were plunged almost instantly into eternity.

And once more man seems puny and helpless compared with the elements which he harnesses and professes to make his creatures.

Disaster upon the water is associated in most minds with mighty storms and giant seas. Here, as it was with the Titanic, the water was still, and the tragedy was due not to storm but to collision—perhaps to that human carelessness which creates so much tragedy and woe.

The Titanic propelled itself to death upon an iceberg. The Empress of Ireland was cut open and sunk by another vessel. In both terrible instances the thought that greater care might have averted fatality will always intensify the tragedy.

It is too soon to tell about that. Profound pity for those who have met so tragic a fate, many of them just as they were setting forth on voyages of pleasure to which, perhaps, they had looked forward their whole lives long, and sympathy as profound for those who are bereaved, are the emotions that command the situation today.

THE KEPT NEWSPAPER.

The Ohio State Journal, of Columbus, is an old-time Republican spokesman of the "organ type." Of late it has ceased to be thick-and-thin partisan, so there has been talk of starting a new Republican paper there.

Whereupon, an animated debate in the Ohio press. One country paper predicts defeat because "the day of the partisan newspaper is rapidly drawing to a close." Which might have been made stronger, as there is in this country today no powerful and successful newspaper that is a mere party organ.

Another country paper seems to take the ground that the whole question in starting a party paper in Columbus depends on how much money there is behind it.

Anybody starting a new paper anywhere has need of a bottomless treasury, for that matter; but when the new paper is started to serve some special end—not a public end, but private—then several bottomless treasuries will be needed, and even then it will fail.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer takes this view of it, and says that a political organization seeking to establish an organ might give the paper the form and appearance of a real newspaper, but the form would be empty and the appearance deceptive. For real newspapers are not built by partisan edict. They come into influence, if at all, by the slow process of honest endeavor, building their character, as an individual builds his, by laborious climbing from one stepping stone of experience to another."

Nothing could be more true than this.

The party organ, new or old, is not a newspaper. It cannot be both newspaper and organ. The one is inconsistent with the other.

A newspaper can no more mortgage its conscience, its judgment and its principles to a party organization and retain either self-respect or public respect than it can enslave itself to special privilege and hope to retain standing.

In Mr. Mellen's striking testimony before the interstate commerce commission he declared that the New Haven put three hundred thousand dollars into a Boston newspaper, with the hope of influencing public opinion favorably. The New England public did not know, though some may have suspected, that this was done; but the New England public did know that for some reason or other the New Haven could do nothing that did not appear saintly and public-spirited to that particular newspaper. Therefore its appeals in behalf of the New Haven were about as effective as a wanton breeze rustling the leaves of an uninhabited forest.

No three hundred thousand dollars ever was more wastefully invested than this.

The public is not a fool. It knows when a newspaper speaks in its interest and works whole-heartedly in its behalf. And it knows when pretensions of public interest mask a real attempt to serve a party ring or a railroad.

There isn't a newspaper in this country which lives to serve a party organization or a special interest that deserves or gets public respect or, for long, public patronage.

THE BEST BEAUTY HINT.

The Journal of the American Medical association quotes with approval this wise beauty hint from a Southern weekly:

> For giving the face a good color, get one pot of rouge and one rabbit's foot. Bury them two miles from home, and then walk out there and back once a day to see that they are still there.

No wiser beauty hint ever was printed.

Though we haven't observed any particular dwindling of the supply of drugstore complexion material, the fact is that paint and powder fool few these days.

Beauty—the kind that is only skin deep—is largely a matter of a good color. Good color is largely a matter of a clear skin. A clear skin is largely a matter of cleanliness—of clean blood, of clean living habits, of a clean and normally functioning digestive and eliminatory system.

Says the Journal: "The average man of rational clean mind does not approve of cosmetic innovations in his own feminine people. He would prefer to see these radical departures from the natural confined to the chorus lady and the public tangoist. The physician always warns against the use of cosmetic preparations, because most of them are dangerous. To him the natural and healthy has always seemed to be typical of beauty."

True for you, doctor!

Cleanliness and health are the foundations of physical beauty.

The best way to use powder and powder puff is the way the Southern weekly suggested: bury them two miles away from home and go out and dig them up and bury them again every day, and then walk back.

O. Henry, just before he died, wrote a story about a neurasthenic who was sent to the mountains for his health. There he met a native doctor, to whom he confided his many symptoms.

"I know the very thing for you," said the doctor gravely. "In these mountains grows a rare herb. Find it, bring it to me, and I'll brew from its leaves a potion that will make you well. Better, I'll help you find it. But it is very rare, and do not be discouraged if we don't find it right away."

So they set forth. Day after day they wandered over the hills and valleys, looking for that herb. Meanwhile, they studied the plants and birds and insects. The neurasthenic was busy, very busy—so busy he didn't have time to think about his symptoms. Always he had in view that magic herb, which the doctor continued to dwell upon, and to describe as a certain cure.

The sick man was so tired each night that he dropped into a long and dreamless sleep. In the morning he awoke with a ravenous appetite, and fresh for another day's explorations.

To cut the story short, they never found the herb. But in seeking it, the neurasthenic found health. Occupation for his mind, to keep it away from "symptoms," physical exercise to build him up and to create an appetite for food and sleep: these were all the herbs he needed. He never found the herb—there was none, of course—but he got well.

O. Henry's story and the beauty hint of the Southern newspaper are twins.

ROOSEVELT AND PEACE.

In his autobiography Col. Roosevelt, who by a queer freak of human judgment was awarded the Nobel peace prize one year, shows his real spirit in this attack upon those who advocate universal arbitration:

> There is no more thorough-going international Mrs. Gummidge, and no more utterly USELESS and often MISCHIEVOUS citizen, than the peace-at-any-price, universal arbitration type of being, who is always complaining either about war or else about the cost of armaments which act as the insurance against war. There is every reason why we should try to limit the cost of armaments, as these tend to grow excessive; but there is also every reason to remember that in the present state of civilization a proper armament is the surest guaranty of peace, and is the only guaranty that war, if it does come, will not mean irreparable and overwhelming disaster.

If a large armament is the only guaranty of peace, then laws against carrying weapons are gross errors. If nations can keep peace only when they are armed to the teeth, then the best way to keep peace in the ordinary community is to let everybody carry at least two revolvers and a bowie knife.

But if, on the other hand, the theory of the law is right when it holds that the possession of arms is an incitation to use them in a moment of passion, then the advocate of universal arbitration and disarmament is everlastingly right, and the Colonel is wrong.

Writing from Aden, Arabia, David Starr Jordan makes this reply to the Colonel's cocksure dictum:

> We shall say, that Mr. Roosevelt is wrong—wrong in his premises and wrong in his conclusions. We do not mind his sneer; a slur without reason is a sword without a hilt—it cuts mainly the hand that wields it.
>
> It is simply not true that "in the present state of civilization, a proper armament is the surest guarantee of peace." "A proper armament," whatever that may be, is not "the only guarantee that war, if it does come, will not mean irreparable and overwhelming disaster." There is no such guarantee, for "in the present state of our civilization," which is a highly complex affair, in which right and righteousness outvalue all forms of force, that is just what war must bring. War—any war—whatever the outcome, means "irreparable and overwhelming disaster."
>
> Moreover, in "the present state of civilization" war does not "come." War can be had only by the most strenuous efforts, and by the most costly preparation. It is, moreover, necessary, in the present temper of civilized peoples, to gather your materials for war in the name of peace.
>
> The "surest guarantee of peace" is to want peace, to cultivate international understandings, to use every means to take off "the fighting edge," wherever the interests of one nation infringe on those of another.
>
> As to "peace-at-any-price," again we say, let us see your price-lists first. Let us find out what we want, and count the cost. The peace that Europe enjoys today, the peace of "proper armament," is not for us. It costs too much,—a waste of human effort and of human life that civilization cannot long endure.

The mightiest factor in preserving "the present state of civilization"—which is by no means what it should be and shall be—is the very "armed peace" which Col. Roosevelt advocates and in behalf of which he sneers at the idealism of the peace advocate.

In our opinion, Dr. Jordan simply "puts it all over" the Colonel in his reply to a bumptious bit of swashbuckling jingoism.

A BY-PRODUCT OF THE CLEAN-UP POLICY.

Cleveland notices an unmistakable decline in the number of English sparrows thereabouts, and the city's forester—Cleveland has a city forester as well as a municipally-controlled street railway and many other things worth studying—says that this is due in part at least to the fact that the community is cleaner than it used to be—"that there is less for this winged scavenger to live on than formerly."

If this is true it is a particularly strong testimonial for the clean-up policy, which Cleveland has carried out to a greater extent than almost any other city. Cleveland claimed that last year its clean-up was so thorough that it had practically no flies, which is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Flies, and to a lesser extent English sparrows, are proof positive of uncleanliness—proof as positive as vermin in the case of an individual. A city with flies has no more right to call itself clean than an individual with fleas and other insects unpleasant even to mention.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, while it is sure that the forester's theory partly accounts for the decline of the English sparrow, thinks that other causes are responsible, chiefly the attention that has been wisely given of late to the encouragement of other birds: "For instance, information from rural places near Cleveland agrees that there, too, sparrows have become less numerous. The result, of course, is that more desirable birds are making their appearance; valuable native songsters familiar to childhood twenty years or more ago are nesting again in the orchards, woods and shade trees, whence they were pretty thoroughly routed by their invading enemies. We may leave less refuse about for feathered songsters to feed on than formerly, though to assert that such improvement is universal over wide areas might be challenged. But this much is certain: we have come to appreciate native song birds more thoroughly, and to understand better that sparrows and song birds cannot dwell together in peace."

The introduction by importation of the English sparrow—as fool a thing as anybody ever did—unquestionably disturbed seriously the balance of bird life on this continent. The sparrows multiplied with appalling rapidity, and covered the country in a few years, driving out the song birds as they went.

Perhaps they have reached their maximum. There have been those who thought this was happening for several years. Perhaps the growing habit of municipal cleanliness has discouraged them. Perhaps the cultivation of native song birds has created competition for them. At any rate, it is encouraging to hear that the song birds are increasing and the sparrows decreasing anywhere.

The sparrow, though he has habits of industry and persistence that are admirable, is a scavenger and a vandal and a marauder and no good. The song birds, on the other hand, are vitally necessary to keep damaging insects in subjection. The terrible spread of insect pests that have destroyed thousands upon thousands of priceless trees in the East, is certainly not unrelated to the decline of the insect-destroying song birds which followed the spread of the English sparrow.

Youthful Old Age

San Francisco Chronicle: Though Sir William Osler persistently denies that he ever advocated what is known as Oslerism, it is a convenient and euphonious name for a theory as to old age, and Oslerism it will remain so long as there is life in that fallacious doctrine. He explains that in an unguarded moment he quoted a foolish jest from a forgotten novel, but being a physician he was taken seriously. However, our sympathy for him should be qualified by the fact that his mistake has given him a far wider reputation than any of his achievements in medical research.

Who utters a joke must bear its consequences, and these should not be so painful to a man who had the pleasure of seeing his mother smile at Oslerism in her 100th year, and who at 65 boasts that he is doing better work than at 30.

Gladstone at 40 expressed the opinion that no statesman could be of real service to his country after passing the three-score mark, but his brain was never clearer than when at 80 he was the most important factor in British politics.

Some men only begin to live or to do their best when they have reached the stage usually spoken of as that of the sere and yellow leaf. Innumerable instances might be cited, but perhaps the most conspicuous is that of William de Morgan, the foremost English writer of today, who wrote his first work at 60, and whose humor becomes the more youthful the older he grows.

And here is our own John Burroughs, world-famed as a naturalist and author, planning new volumes on his 77th birthday. Age has not withered his imagination nor weakened his enthusiasm in the cause of natural history, while his latest work has all the freshness that marked the effusions of two-score years ago.

It is time that men ceased to limit not merely their activities, but their lives as well, because of the superstition that old age necessarily means feebleness. Those who are actually exhausted may not deny the fact, whether they are 40 or 80, but there are many who are only victims to the suggestion that at a certain period they must begin to decline. Let these latter learn of Burroughs and others that suggestion can cut both ways and is just as effective when conducing to the belief that it is never too late to do good work and enjoy life.

Causes of Common Diseases Unknown.

The World's Work: Measles and chickenpox are the common-places of every household; but their germs have eluded the most elaborate attempts at detection. Back in the eighteenth century, Jenner conquered smallpox with vaccination; but the most industrious search for thirty years has disclosed no trace of the smallpox microbe. Medical men deal with an unknown agent today, just as Jenner did a hundred years ago. Reed and Carroll showed us how to conquer yellow fever; no one, however, has succeeded in imprisoning any micro-organism of the disease. Scarlet fever, one of the most contagious diseases known, has also successfully hidden its secret. Pasteur, who discovered a way to control hydrophobia, searched patiently for its organism, but did not find it. Typhus fever, the scourge of American cities fifty years ago, still prevails in attenuated form; but no one has isolated its agent. Trachoma, a disease introduced chiefly by immigration, has also so far concealed its definite cause.

French Courtesy.

A Boston woman was talking of Paris. The question of the relative courtesy of nations came up.

"Well, it would take a very good illustration to persuade me that any people beat the French," she remarked. "I'll give you an example. I was walking down the Champs Elysees and wanted to find a particular street called the Rue de la Clochee. Not knowing just where to turn off into the side streets, I asked a young Frenchman who passed me if he could direct me to it. He assured me with a thousand pardons he did not know.

"A few minutes later I heard hurrying feet behind me and there was my Frenchman.

"'Madame,' he said, sweeping off his hat and bowing profoundly, 'did you not ask me the way to the Rue de la Clochee? I was sorry that I did not know, but I have seen my brother and asked him, and I am sorry to inform you, madame, he did not know, either.'"

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Honoring the Flag.

It goes hard with any man in America who fails in outward respect for the flag. He is pretty sure to meet some one on the spot ready to punch his head, and, persisting in disrespectful treatment of the nation's banner, may easily in time find himself behind prison bars. This is exactly as it should be. The flag may be naught but a few strips of colored bunting, but as a symbol of centuries of struggle and sacrifice and achievement, it is enthroned in the nation's heart, and is not to be trifled with.

Respect for the flag, however, means more than a doffed hat when the parade goes by or lusty cheers when the band strikes up "The Star Spangled Banner." It is on no such cheap and easy terms that one may make proof of his patriotism. Honor to the flag means not sentiment nor braggadocio, but a solemn and reasoned loyalty to certain great principles that Old Glory symbolizes. The red stands for sacrifice, the white means purity, and the blue is the symbol of truth. It is in the exhibition of these noble qualities in his private life and in his civic relations that one really honors the flag.

Patriotism has frequently become associated with a disposition of mind by no means admirable. It may mean carrying a chip on the shoulder and a willingness to fight anybody at the drop of the hat. The word patriotism has so often been considered as practically synonymous with the word jingoism that many people hesitate to use it. We can understand what Dr. Johnson meant when he called patriotism the last refuge of scoundrels. It has been fatally easy for men in all ages who desired to put over something a little shady to hide behind love of country. The famous toast is not a lofty one when it is analyzed: "My country, may she always be right, but right or wrong, my country!" That spirit has led to many a flagrant injustice and to many a cruel, needless war. A better sentiment would be: "My country, may she always be right, but if she is wrong, may I help to make her right!" It is, and ought to be, difficult for one whose native land is steadfastly cruel or unjust to own eternal allegiance to it. One sympathizes with such men as the revolutionists of Russia who say: "Why should we love Russia simply because we were born there, when she has given us nothing from our birth but persecution and blows?"

To love one's country enough to strive to keep her in the path of duty and of righteousness is the fairest flower of patriotism. It is no stain on the Stars and Stripes to be trampled under foot by an occasional crazy anarchist. The only stain the flag can receive is in being lifted over an unrighteous cause. Mud will wash out, but there is a moral tarnish that is indelible.

Over many a soldier's grave the words of the Latin poet Horace are written in enduring granite or bronze: "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori: —It is sweet and glorious to die for one's country." Memorial day calls the nation to a new acknowledgment of the debt we all owe to the countless dead who made the last sacrifice on the field of battle. It is for us who remain to realize that it is also sweet and glorious to live for one's country. Patriotism is not solely a matter of firing guns. Not many of us, please God, will be called to die for America. But the call for sacrificial, patriotic living was never so loud, nor the field for its activity so exceeding broad as at this very hour.

Memorial Day Hymn.

Cover them over with beautiful flowers,
Deck them with garlands, those brothers of ours,
Lying so silent, by night and by day,
Sleeping the years of their manhood away.
Give them the meed they have won in the past;
Give them the honors their future forecast;
Give them the chaplets they won in the strife;
Give them the laurels they lost with their life.

Cover them over, yes, cover them over,
Parent and husband, brother and lover,
Crown in your hearts those dead heroes of ours,
Cover them over with beautiful flowers.

Cover the hearts that have beaten so high,
Beaten with hopes that were doomed but to die;
Hearts that have burned in the heat of the fray,
Hearts that have yearned for the home far away.
Once they were glowing with friendship and love,
Now their great souls have gone soaring above;
Bravely their blood to the Nation they gave,
There in her bosom they found them a grave.

Cover the thousands who sleep far away,
Sleep where their friends cannot find them today,
They who in mountain and hillside and dell,
Rest where they wearied and lie where they fell.
Softly the grass blades creep round their repose,
Softly above them the wild flow'ret blows;
Zephyrs of freedom fly gently o'erhead.
Whispering prayers for the patriot dead.

When the long years have rolled away,
E'en to the dawn of earth's funeral day,
When at the Angel's loud trumpet and tread,
Rise on the faces and forms of the dead;
When the great world its last judgment awaits;
When the blue sky shall fling open its gates;
When our long columns march silently through,
Past the Great Captain for final review.

Blessings for garlands shall cover them over,
Parent and husband, brother and lover;
God will reward those dead heroes of ours,
Cover them over with beautiful flowers.

—Will Carleton.

LEADERSHIP

By SAVOYARD

Washington, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because the Democrats of the house of representatives followed the advice of the president, the opposition—Tray, Blanche and Sweetheart—are greatly distressed and have much to say about "bossism" and things. Reputable opposition papers as well as depraved mourn the departed "independence" of congress. They hear freedom shrieking and are making collections of withered lilies to scatter over the grave of butchered liberty.

Shucks! Wilson is only a leader, selected by the Democratic party and indorsed by the nation, to make suggestions, and congress has had the gumption to indorse his policies. Grover Cleveland would not or could not lead. Hence his administrations—both of them—were brought to naught by recalcitrant Democrats in congress. The Wilson tariff bill of 1894 was Gormanized, which made a highly protective measure of it.

* * *

And like elements of the Democratic party in congress would have done the same thing with the Democratic tariff of 1913 if Wilson had not "led." Indeed, there would have been a tariff duty on wool if Wilson had given the slightest intimation that he would put up with it. The opposition predicted all sorts of disasters. The farmer was to cease to plow, the miner was to cease to delve, the artisan was to cease to work, the merchant was to close his store, the railroad was to discontinue its trains, the lawyer was to cease to plead, the printer was to quit his job—all business was to be paralyzed upon the passage of the Democratic tariff according to the minions of monopoly who sought to perpetuate the tariff for privilege only.

But none of these things happened. The country stood the thing admirably, and thousands of manufacturers who now see the advantages of free raw materials endorse the tariff of 1913.

* * *

When the tariff was passed congress was on its hand to go home, but Wilson said that it was necessary to reform the currency, and so the Glass bill was brought in and promptly passed by the house of representatives. The senate had "hearings" and the Money trust came down in force and testified that if the bill passed all the banks would wind up their business and American capital would slope for foreign parts where investments would be safer. All sorts of calamities were predicted and sworn to, but Wilson never turned a hair. He was the leader of his party and the leader of his country, and he stood firm. The bill was passed and became the law of the land.

Instead of retiring from business the banks ran over one another to see which should be earliest to organize under the new order of things. Indeed, it met with almost universal approval. It is doubtful if a single constituency in the Union would return a man to congress who would make his paramount policy a demand for the repeal of the Glass currency bill.

* * *

Again, congress hoped to stop on the road to reform, pass the appropriation bills and go home, and again Wilson led. He represented to congress that the law granting the ship monopoly engaged in the coastwise trade a subsidy was held to be a violation of our solemn covenant, that all foreign countries reproached us with national dishonor, and a bill was brought in to repeal the subsidy.

The Democratic speaker and the Democratic leader of the house of representatives joined the opposition to the president, but the country was with him, and more Republicans, proportionately, voted for repeal than there were Democrats who voted against it. The cry of surrender to England was raised, as it had been raised against George Washington and Grover Cleveland, but the country was and is behind the president, and as soon as the filibuster in the senate is exhausted repeal will prevail.

* * *

Then congress was reluctant to amend the laws regulating trusts and monopolies. A Democratic caucus was held and the suggestions of the president adopted as party policy. Hearings have been had and the old, old stories of wreck and ruin have been told and sworn to, but there is nothing more certain than that the house will pass the bills and the senate concur in them as soon as the filibuster, certain to be organized, shall have expended its force.

Wilson is an unshorn Samson so long as he is indorsed by public opinion. As soon as he loses the confidence of the people he will be "Samson in a wig," to quote Sidney Smith. The reason congress follows Wilson is not because he is a boss, but because the people are behind him. Congress would rend him tomorrow as it did Grover Cleveland if he lost the favor of the people.

* * *

We have never had party government in this country. We have called it that, but as well call a potato an orange. Party government means a party leader, who stands to politics as a general to war. Until Wilson came in the Democratic party had a score of generals each assuming to be commander-in-chief.

* * *

Theodore Roosevelt was more nearly general-in-chief than any of his predecessors except Andrew Jackson, but in his time Aldrich had a grip on the senate and Cannon was boss of the house, and many of his preachments did they modify and sterilize.

* * *

Wilson in his writings lauds party government and points out how it can be had. Not only that, he is carrying out the idea, and the country may hope for party government ere he leave the White House. Do you remember that he said that the Democratic party will never get the implicit confidence of the people by promises, but to obtain it deeds must be wrought?

FIGHTING CANCER WITH FACTS

Hope Through Campaign of Public Education—Early Treatment the Only Cure.

By CURTIS E. LAKEMAN,
Executive Secretary, American Society for the Control of Cancer.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

Cancer can be prevented or cured and the needless sacrifice of thousands of lives can be stopped by educating the public as to the facts about this disease. The cause of cancer is not understood, but much is known about the conditions under which it develops, and it is certain that safety lies only in early recognition of the symptoms and prompt operation. Radium is useful in some cases but it is not to be relied upon as a substitute for surgical treatment — the only known sure cure.

This message of the hope to be found in early and competent treatment should be spread broadcast. The need of supplying the public with more and better knowledge about the disease is vividly shown by a newspaper clipping recently received at the office of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. A woman wrote to the inquiry column of the newspaper in question that a lump on her breast had been growing about a year. She said she had been told that "kerosene rubbed on it was good for it" and had tried it without result except to cause inflammation, and so she was "very much worried." The answer published along with this letter advised her to "bathe the spot thoroughly and apply a pad of antiphlogistian." It is hard to say which aspect of this case gives the greater shock — that of the woman, probably doomed to premature death because of her ignorance, or the terrible responsibility of the newspaper which left her and perhaps other readers to their fate by failing to say that every lump in a woman's breast should at once be examined by a competent surgeon.

The general state of ignorance, delay, and neglect in regard to the early signs of cancer is shown by actual statistics which can not be disputed. The foremost surgeon of the world recently said in a public address that people wait on the average a whole year after discovering some suspicious symptom before they come to the operating table. Another surgeon studied his own records and those of six of the largest New York hospitals to throw light both on the frequency of cancer and the delay in seeking treatment. Out of 12,345 surgical patients he found 542 cases of cancer, approximately one in 22, or 4.39 per cent. In sixty-five cases of first operation for cancer he found that after discovery of a tumor, or after the first suspicious symptoms, the thirty-five men had waited on the average 12.2 months before consulting the surgeon, and the thirty women an average of 11.9 months.

Delay Means Death.

In like manner Dr. Winter of Koenigsberg, Prussia, the pioneer in the education of the public on cancer, analyzed 1,087 records of operable cases and showed that 87 per cent of these patients could and should have come to treatment much earlier, when their chances of cure would have been much higher than was actually the case. Delay of a year or ever a few months makes all the difference between life and death.

If the American movement for public education in regard to this disease needs the encouragement of a precedent, it is to be found in the remarkable reduction of the cancer death rate through a campaign of education conducted by Winter in Koenigsberg. This campaign was designed to reach all people, particularly women, since they are more susceptible than men to the disease. The public was informed as to the first symptoms of cancer and the surpassing importance of the earliest possible surgical treatment. In this campaign the co-operation of the laity and the medical profession, on the one hand, and the press on the other, was enlisted. The cancer death rate of Koenigsberg had increased from 53 in 1880 to 110 in 1893, and in 1907 reached a maximum of 139 per 100,000 of the population. The campaign of education then began to have its effect and the rate gradually declined to the point of 118 for the year 1913. The decrease does not seem large, but is is most important when we remember that nearly everywhere else the rate is steadily increasing.

Even more specific proof of the hope which early operation gives is to be found in the statistics of operations performed in some of the principal American hospitals. These records have never been studied as thoroughly as they will be under the plan of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and there is here a mine of information full of the highest interest and significance to the public.

Chance of Cure.

A preliminary study of the records kept at the hospital and laboratories of one of the largest American centers of medical education shows clearly that the chances of a permanent cure, if operation be resorted to promptly, are very high. It shows equally clearly that these chances decrease with every day of delay. And as the likelihood of cure becomes remote, the immediate danger and damage of the operation becomes greater. That is to say, a new and small cancer may be removed without much pain and without much mutilation, but an old and dispersed cancer leaves a serious wound behind it.

These records have already been analyzed and tabulated for cancer of the lip, tongue and breast. The statement of results takes account of the conditions said to precede actual cancer, such as tobacco blisters, white spots and sore places about the teeth. While there is difference of opinion as to the bearing of such conditions on the development of true cancer, it cannot be denied that in many cases they seem to cause the disease. In considering the result of operations to remove these "precancerous lesions," it should, of course, be remembered that these conditions are not always by the development of true cancer, and the statistics should be understood in that light.

In operations on the tongue the figures show that the prompt removal of the "precancerous" lesion resulted in 100 per cent of cures. In the second stage, i. e., that of malignant warts, complete removal was equally effective. But when the actual figures of developed cancer were studied, the proportion of cures dropped at once to 50 per cent.

In cancer of the breast the danger of delay is equally apparent. In the milder form, called adenocarcinoma, the percentage of cures in all cases was 76, but in the late cases, i. e., those in which the cancerous nature of the tumor was already obvious to the eye, the percentage was but 64. In the early cases, on the other hand, it was 100 per cent. In these early cases there is a warning lump in the breast, but no outward sign of malignant tumor. In the more malignant forms of breast tumor the general percentage of cures dropped to 36, and in late cases to 33, or one patient out of three. But even here the cures in early cases reached 85 per cent. In other words, the patient raises her chances of recovery from 33 per cent to 85 per cent by going to the surgeon early.

In operations for cancer of the lip, the reports show 100 per cent of cures in the earliest stages and 75 per cent of cures after complete operation in the later stages. If the operation was incomplete and the cancer returned, the percentage of cures dropped to 33.

The evidence so far collected on early cancer also gives an opportunity, for a message to the people who seek help in the later stage of cancer. Although the chances of a cure here are less, the disease in many instances is by no means hopeless. Even when the hope of cure is remote, surgery looks toward the prolongation of useful life and the relief of much suffering.

About a Fool Woman.

FULL SWING. By Frank Danby, author of "The Heart of a Child," "Pigs in Clover," etc. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott company. $1.35 net.

Let it be said, first, that this is a study of a woman's character that is of absorbing interest, and that it is exceedingly and rarely well done. It is guaranteed to interest from the first of its many pages to the last.

Then let it be said that it is about as exasperating a tale as we ever ran across, and that it left us wondering if the author has not perhaps been amusing herself by trifling with us.

It is about Agatha Wanstead, who is surely the star bungler of all fiction. Her father cultivated orchids and neglected her. Then he took a futile and extravagant fool for a wife who died leaving Agatha a little stepsister to care for, her father soon following his second wife to the grave. Agatha bungled her estate, foolishly refused to marry her dependable Scottish lawyer and headed for spinsterhood, spoiled her stepsister, who repaid her by eloping with a young ne'er-do-well she had just met, had her own head turned by a graceless Irish lord who surrounded himself with a false atmosphere of heroism, married him and left him in disgust and shame, bore a son whom his father tried to bring up in dissipation and squalor, and alienated the son by her stupidity.

But Desmond, the son, had better stuff in him than she realized. Eton did wonders for him, and he fell in love with Eunice, her step-niece, and that did more for him. But when his father died with him enjoying himself at his mother's, and he saw she was glad, it made him angry and he got drunk at the funeral. So Agatha, thinking his drinking an inherited trait, determined that Desmond and Eunice must never marry, and that Eunice must marry the stodgy solicitor's son. To make sure of it she egged Desmond into preparing for a commission, the South African war being on, and while he was preparing he fell sick and got into the clutches of a redheaded nurse who worked on his sympathy and his passion. Of course Agatha gave the finishing touch to the coil of mischance, so he married the nurse to "do the right thing by her" and then went to South Africa to become a hero and be reported wounded and missing at Ladysmith, and undoubtedly dead. Then it all came out, even the fact that the redheaded nurse was already married so there was no real tie between her and Desmond; though the baby was real enough. But it was kept from Eunice, and when Desmond was found in prison in South Africa and rescued, Agatha relented and said they could marry, but with her usual capacity for folly she insisted that Desmond mustn't tell Eunice above the nurse. That, of course, destroys everything again; and so it goes, not to relate the whole story here except to add that in the climax Agatha, on her deathbed, performs her crowning blunder and gives poison to the baby that happens to be the antidote for a poison already administered to it by a drunken nurse. This incident is purely fantastic. So, for the matter of that, is Agatha and her —if you will permit the use of a slang phrase that cannot be improved upon for the case—boneheadedness.

Sense About Sex.

TEN SEX TALKS TO GIRLS. By I. M. Steinhardt, M. D. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co. $1 net.

Once in awhile, in the midst of all the reek that is put out on the subject of sex, to capitalize the existent awakening of the public to the need of recognition of the problems of sex teaching—once in awhile there appears something in this line really worth while. And that is the class to which Dr. Steinhardt's book belongs. It ought to be in every home where girls are being or are to be reared, and it should be read by every young woman before she promises to love and honor any man, whether or not she promises to obey him as well.

The book is a compilation of lectures given before certain girls of New York city, and in it the question of the relation of the sexes is treated simply and sanely. It deals with personal habits, what the author designates as "the marriage relation," and to some extent with venereal diseases, their effect and transmission. It is a plea for personal purity, but a plea so straight forward and effective as is seldom met with. It will help the girl to understand herself physically, and to avoid evils which are easily avoidable if one but has the necessary knowledge.

There is nothing hysterical or sordid about the "talks," but neither is there anything concealed or treated artificially. They are simply plain, unvarnished statements of fact, based on the findings of medical science, and they can be understood without reference to others on a subject that the present generation has been trained to avoid in conversation.

At the conclusion of the book are some plain and easily followed directions for the young mother in the care of children. In fact, this task of the woman is dealt with to greater or less extent throughout the volume, making it of value not only to the growing girl, but also to the newly married.

Real Boys.

THE MISADVENTURES OF THREE GOOD BOYS (but not such very good boys). By Judge Henry A. Shute, author of "The Real Diary of a Real Boy," etc. Boston and New York: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.25 net.

Judge Shute's boy stories are real stories of real boys. They ought to be, because manifestly he is himself the outgrowth of "Plupey," who tells the stories. Remember Plupey, who started a diary, the one that recorded the days as "brite and fair?"

The boy doings that are recorded here are the very things boys do—boys who are not too squeamish, whose pranks are likely not to be too delicate, and whose exploits often bring pain as well as laughter. Judge Shute tells them with humor, and they are a joy to that perennial boyhood which never tires of telling or hearing of the pranks of boyhood.

A Child and the Prairie.

A STEPDAUGHTER OF THE PRAIRIE. By Margaret Lynn. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.25 net.

If you like reflective essays; if you like to read the fancies of a bookish child, interpreted by an adult skilled at expression; if you know and love the prairie, and have imbibed its spirit of breadth and freedom; if you care for nature's marvels treated in a spirit of affection and understanding; if any of these things are true of you, you will like this book.

Through the medium of a child's mind the author has painted a picture of the human side of prairie life and of the physical characteristics of the prairie as they affect human beings. First the little heroine through whose thoughts the author speaks hated the prairie and everything about it. Gradually this feeling changed into endurance without liking, and eventually into a tremendous love for the prairie. Those whose childhood has been passed on the prairie will appreciate and relish these essays.

A Breezy Tale.

THE ROAD TO LONDON. By David Skaats Foster, author of "Flighty Arethusa," etc. New York: Franklin Book company, 70 Fifth avenue.

Reginald DeLancey Rowland, an American magnate's son, is the hero of this rapid tale. He disagreed with dad about school, so he ran away in a barkentine, of which he precipitately became second mate, enlisted in the army in Manila and got a commission, came back home and finished at Harvard, and then on a trip to London with dad fell in love with a passing face and spent his hours pursuing a girl of whom he knew nothing except that her name was Emily. When dad got ready to go home Reginald refused to go on the ground that he had to stay and marry this unknown, and dad went off in a huff.

Then Reginald got a chance to rescue Emily, and the story starts. How he evaded her captors, roamed the country with the aid of hastily borrowed automobiles and motor boats, and performed all sorts of feats without a penny in his pocket in the endeavor to get back to London and escape a mob of irate victims and policemen, makes the tale, which is far from literature but is lively light reading.

A Rare Thing in a Book.

THE SPECTACULAR CAREER OF THE REV. "BILLY" SUNDAY. By Theodore Frankenberg. Columbus: McClelland & Co.

A title that exactly publishes the contents of the book is all too rare. The author has hit upon the wording that tells his story most forcefully before you open a page. "Spectacular" Sunday will always be. "Career," is not always applied to the ministry, but the great evangelist has rescued it from its limbo. "Rev." is not our most confidential term but the preacher has been properly ordained by the Presbyterian denomination. "Billy" he is to thousands who have grasped his hand in pledge of newness of purpose for Christ. "Sunday" came to him from the home, and there you are for the whole story. A stroke of genius. You read the last line, saying Q. E. D.

The chapter headings keep pace with the title. With the genius of a writer of headlines in a great newspaper the author gives the kernel thought in a line. Watch the slides for a minute—the man, the orphaned son, the boynood's upward struggle, the baseball star, a night in Van Buren street, courting Nell, applied Christianity at $83 per month, tabernacles, philosophy of campaigns, some assistants, great campaigns, the Gladden controversy, the human side. That is as well-told biography as Sem Weller could phrase.

The matter under the headings is proof positive that the writer has thought clearly, with imagination, to a conclusion.

Dr. Chapman has written a warm foreword of appreciation that supplies a forgotten link in the career of Sunday. Under the ministry of Dr. Chapman, "Billy" was trained and through his advice thrust forth to his great work. This chapter reads like the apostolic benediction of Paul, the aged, upon his young son, Timothy.

Handy Book For Campers.

CAMPING AND CAMP COOKING. By Frank A. Bates, author of "Game Birds of North America." Boston: The Ball Publishing company. 75 cents net.

Here it is at last, the first aid to the greenhorn. The average office man, professional man, or merchant who steals a week or two or three from business once a year, to recuperate in the woods, cannot help but be a "greenhorn." He has had no experience to make him otherwise, and no matter how much he may strive to conceal it, he is bound to show his ignorance of the simple art of camping out. It may be that the cutting of a forked stick for the fire, or choosing the place where he builds his fire, or the manner in which he packs his sack will disclose his greenness. And here is the little volume that will remedy this lack of experience. If he cannot learn by the actual experience in the woods, he can at least gain a good working knowledge vicariously through Mr. Bates and the handy little volume he calls "Camping and Camp Cookery." It gets down to basic principles, beginning with a chapter on the supplies needed for a trip of a given length of time for a given number of people, from which the supplies may be figured for any trip. Then follows some sound advice on pitching a tent, choosing a location for a camp, building fires, cleaning fish, and doing the many other everyday chores of camp life. One chapter is devoted to advice as to what to do when lost in the woods, and there is a complete little cook book for the camper's benefit. Making beds from boughs, throwing up temporary shelters and a dozen other handy hints are given. An appendix gives advice as to what to do in case of sickness in the camp, and warns against certain poisonous roots. The book is valuable enough to find room even in the crowded packsack of a canoeing party, and certainly the information should be carried along inside the head of some member of the party if the room in the packsack is begrudged it.

The Sex Appeal.

MATTHEW FERGUSON. By Margaret Blake. New York: G. W. Dillingham & Co. $1.25 net.

Again Miss Blake has produced a story with an insistent sex appeal, as in her other works, "The Greater Joy" and "The Voice of the Heart." This romance, as the author styles it, could have been told in less than 518 pages, and the average reader will so agree. For all that, Mr. Ferguson has a strenuous time winning as his wife a woman of whom he had become enamoured before her husband is killed in an accident. He plays the role of detective to win Doris Diberto and incidentally to save her from the machinations of an uncle who would have her committed to an asylum to gain possession of her vast property. After they are married, Ferguson has more trouble because of the remarkable resemblance their first child bears to another man. In the end he finds he had won his ambitions—fame, fortune, success, and the one woman, and has preserved his high aim in life by breaking with Big Business when he declines to help put through a bad street car franchise. Advocates of eugenics will be interested in the book, as there is a clever explanation by a physician character of the strange resemblance the Ferguson child bears to another man than its father.

FACIAL ERUPTIONS ITCHED VERY MUCH

Baby Almost Blind at Times. Scratched and They Got Larger. Cried All the Time. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

201 Berger Ave., Kansas City, Kansas. —"My baby was bothered very much with some kind of facial eruptions and she was almost blind at times from the sores that formed on her face. At the beginning there were one or two little pimples that broke out on my baby's face that itched very much. She scratched them so much that they began to get larger and scattered over her face more until her face was full of sores. Then they got so bad that she began to fret and would not sleep very much. She cried all the time. Her face began to look very badly as the places grew larger and were getting worse all the time.

"I had some Cuticura Soap and I kept her face washed with the Cuticura Soap until I got a box of the Cuticura Ointment. It was about three weeks when I could see the change for the better. She did not want to scratch so much and she began to sleep better and did not cry so much. In ten weeks she was all healed up. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and just two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they did the work; they cured her." (Signed) Albert Tillman, May 31, 1913.

Why not have a clear skin, soft white hands, a clean scalp and good hair? It is your birthright. Cuticura Soap with an occasional use of Cuticura Ointment will bring about these coveted conditions in most cases when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Linen, aluminum, bundle and utility "showers" have been given during the last week for the last May and early June brides elect. The week was full of musical events, too, with the two violin recitals given by Wally Heymar George of Chicago, assisted by local musicians, the farewell concert by the Normanna chorus and the recital by Miss Mabel Fulton's piano pupils.

The dances given by the Dancing club at the Kitchi Gammi, the Duluth Boat club and the Commercial club were enjoyable affairs. The children had a share in the week's festivities as the King's Heralds of the Lester Park M. E. church presented "Tom Thumb's Wedding" two evenings.

Several brides have chosen days in the first week of June for their weddings. It is likely bridal showers will continue for several weeks more as there is a long list of June brides.

Thursday will be a busy day for the members of the Women's auxiliary of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth with a luncheon at 12:30 followed by a business meeting early in the afternoon and a reception given by Bishop and Mrs. J. D. Morrison at their home 2131 East Superior street for the members of the diocesan convention, the Woman's auxiliary and all the church people of Duluth.

HAPPIEST PEOPLE ARE THOSE WHO WORK HARDEST, SAYS STOCK ACTRESS

MISS LOLA MAY.

Not since the days of Miss Maude Leone has any actress secured the personal following of admirers in Duluth that Miss Lola May of the Baldwin Players already possesses.

The secret of Miss May's success is her personality, her ability as an actress, and last but perhaps not least, her dresses.

A stock actress finds little time for anything but study. Miss May spends nearly every fine morning in Cascade park studying her parts for the next week, and she has a decided following of very small, but very loyal admirers, who watch her from a distance, and occasionally summon the courage to address her.

"With three matinees and a performance every evening, and five rehearsals a week, to say nothing of the time that must be spent for study, it is impossible to do much but work," said Miss May. "When I get through my work here, I want to spend about a month enjoying Duluth, if it is possible, for I never saw a city that interested me more. I am looking forward to the week after next when we play 'Baby Mine' for I have played the part before and know it, and besides that you will remember that the heroine spends a good part of her time on the stage in bed. That will be welcome, but it will be hard for me to leave the bed, I fear.

"But joking aside, stock actresses really enjoy the work, I believe. I never saw one yet that didn't complain of the terrible strain of a new part every week, but the happiest people are those who work the hardest, always providing they don't worry also."

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Don't Sneer at Working Girls Who Marry Rich Men.

The emphasis which is often laid upon the fact that a man marries his stenographer or a shopgirl is tiresome and disgusting. There is a very decided intimation that the stenographer, the shopgirl, or any girl who works for a living, is not as good as one who does not, which premise is unworthy.

Friends and relatives used to be quite beside themselves when some simple, honest member of their family married the "hired girl." Nowadays the hired girl is not so much in evidence. Instead, the stenographer, the nurse, the shopgirl and other girls who work for a living, come in for curious speculation whenever they happen to make a marriage out of their own set.

Working in a store or factory or at a typewriter desk does not make a girl any the less worthy of becoming the wife of a good man. It isn't the nature of one's employment or the place in which it is performed that makes for quality in either man or woman. It is the attitude one assumed toward work and one's conduct while at it that stamps one as a desirable man or woman. The rich may be less deserving of a good man's love than the girl referred to half contemptuously "as only a shopgirl."

How many times you hear the phrase, "She was nothing but a shopgirl," delivered in tones that do not leave you in doubt as to how the speaker regards her. I am ready to admit that marriages between foolish young sons of well-to-do parents and daughters of parents in much poorer circumstances do not always turn out happily. Where there is a diversity in education, training, environment and social standing, unhappiness and worse is likely to result. Marriage between two who have not had a similar training is unwise.

Let us do working women more reverence than to refer to them as though they were a strange species not to be relied upon. And remember, that in spite of the slighting references which usually occur when a girl marries above her station, she often makes the very best wife in the world for the man who has chosen her.

GENERAL FEDERATION MEETING

Chicago Women Are Making Every Preparation to Avoid Confusion at Big Gathering of Women.

PLANS have been made to do away with confusion when the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs meets in Chicago, June 9 to 19. Visitors are requested to wear knots of light blue ribbon as means of identification. They will be met at the trains by Chicago members who will wear yellow badges lettered in white. Boy Scouts will act as pages and escorts and will carry the hand baggage of the visitors. Baggage tags are being sent to delegates through their presidents. Upon them should be written the full addresses regarding hotels or other destinations. Delegates, alternates and visitors are asked to register early at the registration bureau. Mail and telegrams may be addressed to the convention at the Auditorium theater and will be delivered promptly to those who have registered. It has been suggested that visitors wear their visiting cards, with the names of their cities and states written upon them, for identification.

State delegations will be seated by lot. The members of the board of directors of the General Federation will draw for states for which they are correspondents, and the seating then will be done by a committee under the direction of the corresponding secretary.

More than 4,000 delegates will attend the convention; alternates, visiting club women and others probably will bring the attendance to more than 4,000.

NORMANNA'S FAREWELL CONCERT

Chorus Makes Its Last Appearance in Duluth Before Leaving for Norway.

THE farewell concert of the Normanna chorus was a great musical success.

Under the able direction of Jens Flaaten their good voices and training were shown in all their numbers. The opening number was "Olaf Trygvason," by Reissiger. Grieg's arrangement of the folk melody, "Den Store Hvide Flok," with solo by Magnus Person was beautiful in its depth and dignity and was well suited to Mr. Peterson's powerful voice. "Kyrie at Sea" was another pleasant number by the Normanna. A. F. M. Custance's humming arrangement of "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," was a beautiful background for Mrs. Donna Riblette Flaaten's clear soprano. Mrs. Flaaten and the chorus graciously gave an encore to the beautiful old song. A new arrangement of Mr. Custance was that of "Alohoe," (Hawaiian farewell song). In this number A. J. Meyer's ability as a soloist was well brought out. As an encore Mr. Meyer and the Normanna gave an attractive little dialect selection.

Mrs. Donna Riblette Flaaten's solo number was "Amber and Amethyst," from the "Gem Cycle" of Ahn A. von Carse.

David A. Soderquist was given a hearty reception. Although he has been in Duluth only a short time he promises to be one of the most popular soloists in the city. Mr. Soderquist sang "Hvis Du Har Varme Tanker" by Barresen and "Vision Fugitive" by Massenet.

The Scottish Rite quartet gave two enjoyable selections. "Good-Bye" by Tosti and Cadman's "I Hear You Calling Me."

Miss Laura Frankenfield's dramatic reading, "Ase's Death" from Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" was accompanied by organ music of Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite, played by Miss Isabel Pearson.

The closing number was Mr. Custance's arrangement of "America," sung by the Normanna and A. Burquist. This was a fitting conclusion for the farewell concert of the Normanna chorus that will leave America next month for a trip to Norway.

Miss Violet Flaaten was accompanist.

ANSWERS ANTI-SUFFRAGIST

Duluth Woman Declares Views of Mrs. Engel Founded on Wrong Premises.

THE article in last Saturday's Herald written by Mrs. J. C. H. Engel from the point of view of an 'anti-suffragist' does not coincide with the views of at least one Duluth woman. This woman maintains that Mrs. Engel's premises were wrong, and has sent the following article to prove her point:

"In the first place 'an anti-suffragist' starts with a wrong premise. She assumes that in advocating women an suffrage we are losing touch with the divine. Of course, no advocate of votes for women believes that to be true, and we have no proof that our "anti" friend understands the divine mind better than the rest of us do, though possibly she has had a special revelation a la Joe Smith. It is a very easy thing for one to assert that those who differ from her 'have not gone deeply into the question,' and that they have 'rashly and thoughtlessly generalized to a conclusion,' but does such an assertion betoken either a broadmindedness or fair-mindedness on the part of the one who makes it?

Woman's Place in Society.

"To say that 'the fundamental principle of the divine' is that woman's place in the plan of the universe is that of the mother of the race' is a misuse of words. Important as woman feels herself to be, I have never before heard expressed the idea that her place in the plan of the universe constituted the 'fundamental principle of the divine.'

"We all admit that it is part of the divine plan that women should be the mothers of the race, and no advocate of woman suffrage thinks for a moment that that law of nature will be interfered with by her interesting herself in questions pertaining to the public good. It is only the anti-suffragists who think voting will 'unsex' a woman and make her a man, and their awful fears of such results would be pathetic if they were 'not so amusing.'

"The 'anti-suffragist' speaks of the 'physical, intellectual and spiritual development of humanity,' as showing that woman's place is that of bearer and trainer of children and maker and keeper of the home. The fact is that one of the plainest things shown by a study of the history of the nations of the world is that whenever a nation so circumscribes the interests and activities of its women as to limit them entirely to the bearing and rearing of children and the keeping of the home, that nation has a degraded womanhood, and as a result of degraded womanhood, a people whose physical, intellectual and spiritual development is stunted. For example, take Egypt, where the Mohammedan religion assigns to woman just that position; only three out of a thousand of the native women can read and write. Can that be called intellectual development? Stanley Lane-Poole, who does not write from the viewpoint of a missionary or a reformer, says: 'The fatal spot in Mohammedanism is the position of woman—in a word, the finest springs of society are wanting. As long as Mohammedanism exists, the social life with which it is associated will probably survive and while it prevails in Egypt we cannot expect the higher results of civilization.'

"Or take India where the Hindu religion assigns to woman just that place. Isabella Bird-Bishop, the world traveler, said, 'I have lived in zenanas and can speak from experience of the lives of secluded women, with intellect so dwarfed that a woman of 30 is more like a child, while all the worst passions of human nature are developed and stimulated;' and another writer on the same subject says: 'The stuntedness and narrowness of the life of a woman living out her narrow, unwholesome life in her little family world, cannot be imagined.' So it is in every land where woman's interests are limited entirely to this circle, and no American woman believes that woman's interests and activities should be limited to her home and her children. Even our anti-suffrage women believe in women's clubs, and bridge parties and other outside interests. The real question then is not—shall she have other interests than the bearing and rearing of children and the keeping of the home? but what shall those interests be? Shall she take an interest in the laws which affect the righteousness and peace and prosperity of the nation, or shall her outside interest be confined to efforts to lower the price of butter and eggs, and cultivation of an interest in modern drama, and bridge whist? Does the one unfit her for motherhood more than the other?

Attitude to Man's Vice.

"I cannot pass by the reflection cast upon women in the statement that she has always sanctioned and encouraged social vice on the part of man. Possibly the anti-suffrage type of woman has sanctioned and encouraged this awful evil, but the women who are asking for the ballot know how they have protested and struggled against it, and how little their protest has availed because the man who indulges in social vice is not the kind of a man to be moved by woman's protest unless that protest has behind it the power of the ballot; and to her, placing the responsibility for man's wrong doing upon the woman, looks very much like 'rashly and thoughtlessly generalizing to a conclusion' and very much like trying to win favor with man by telling him that he would have to be more than an anggel to be a pure man in the face of woman's encouragement and sanction of his impurity. Every pure woman in Duluth ought to make her volce heard in protest against this false accusation.

Marriage As a Cure.

"If woman has endured too patiently it is because she has been told that the social evil could not be done away with and that houses of prostitution are necessary for the protection of good women, and because she felt that she was helpless in bringing about a change. A large and ever increasing number of women are protesting against this evil by refusing to marry, having been told, upon what seems to be good authority, that three-fourths of the American men are victims of disease as a result of this evil. But while no one can blame the woman who takes this stand in self-protection, every one must recognize the fact that this method of protest is futile as a cure for the evil, and is fraught with grave dangers to society and to the state. Instead of curing, it is likely to increase the very evil against which it protests. Because man and woman are not independent of, but complementary to each other, the problems which affect the good of the people and the nation ought to have the minds of both man and woman brought to bear upon them, and a study of the history of the world's upward progress should convince any unprejudiced mind that woman suffrage is the next step in the onward march of civilization.

"Woman's cause is man's; they rise or sink
Together, dwarfed or godlike, bond or free;
If she be small, slight-natured, miserable,
How shall man grow?"

SUPERIOR MUSICIAN OPENS STUDIO HERE

MISS ETHEL JACOBSON.

MISS ETHEL JACOBSON has opened a studio at 232 West First street. Miss Jacobson, whose home is in Superior, has had a piano class in Superior six years and one in Duluth four years. She will continue her Superior class in addition to carrying on the work of her studio here. She was a pupil of Horace W. Reyner and of Mrs. Grace S. Brearly until Mrs. Brearly moved to Boston last winter. Miss Jacobson will give a recital some time this summer.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PAGEANTS

"Community Music Drama" Is Name Applied to the New Form of Art Arising in America.

AS DULUTH is contemplating seriously a pageant for next summer, all features of it are of interest at this time.

"Community music-drama" is a term that has been applied to the coming art form of the people that is rising upon the pageant as a foundation. Music is a part of the scheme, for without it the drama would be deprived of atmosphere and spiritual exultation.

In Musical America, Arthur Farwell, who wrote the music for "Joseph and His Brethern," a pageant play, shows the difference between the English and American conceptions of the pageant. He quotes Louis N. Parker, an English playwright and the originator of the modern pageant in England, as saying, "A pageant is part of the great festival of thanksgiving to Almighty God for the past glory of a city and for its present prosperity." William Chauncy Langdon, the author of some of the most significant pageants and the first president of the American Pageant association, says: "A pageant is a drama in which the place is the hero and its history is the plot."

Parker's definition shows the spirit of the English pageant that is a link between the medieval pageant and the new American community drama. In English pageants the historical representations are generally brought down only to several hundred years before the present time. His use of the term "festival" is important for it is this element that lifts the pageant from artistic convention and commerce into the realm of joy in art. Parker conceives the pageant as a form animated by a blending of retrospect, faith, thanksgiving and joy.

Langdon, by his use of the word "drama," shows the point of departure of the American pageant from the English. It shows the chief characteristic of the American form is action, and drama and action are kindred terms.

As the national history of America is very short the action of an American pageant does not stop several centuries before the time of presentation, as the English one does, but comes right down to the present and even passes into the future by means of symbolism and allegory, affording infinite development. If the St. Louis pageant stopped off several centuries ago the spectators at Forest park would see Indians, the Mississippi river and the Ozarks represented. If the proposed Duluth pageant did likewise Indians and Lake Superior would be the chief characters and Duluth would not even be a "super."

Both the American and the English definitions show the content of the pageant identifies itself with the interests of a certain place or city, and that the action must refer to that place or city as a whole. American democracy is shown when a pageant is enacted by a representative body of citizens, hence the terma, "community drama," "civic drama," and "community music drama." No matter which term is used the thing signified has arisen because the community as a whole has demanded a unifying, all-human and joyous mode of self-realization and self-idealization.

THE BACKGROUND OF OUR CHILDREN'S LIVES

A bit of friendly council in the January Today's Magazine, written by Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author of "A Montessori Mother." "All the modern world of experts is wrangling to such an extent over the relative values of different systems of education that we plain, ordinary parents might be excused for a very great bewilderment of mind on the subject. But there is one foundamental truth to which we may hold fast as a clew through the labyrinth, a truth with which educational experts have nothing to do. This truth is that if our children are provided with the right kind of home background, the queerest of "modern, expert" education will do them no harm, and if their roots are set in the wrong kind of home soil, no amount of expert educational pruning and trimming and training will make them what they ought to be.

How it is a providential thing that the question of the sort of home our children shall have is as much within our control as it is vital.

Can Be Done in Small Home.

Now the conditions can be secured as easily (in my opinion far more easily) in a little 5-room house in a moderate-sized American town or village, or in the country, as in a millionaire mansion. For instance, certainly self-indulgence and laziness in children can be avoided better in a home where the adults expect as a matter of course to do a reasonable amount of real work than by any amount of verbal exhortation or "manual training" in an atmosphere where the adults expect as a matter of course to do nothing but what pleases them.

The point to remember is that these conditions in life, while highly desirable for all of us, are absolutely necessary for the health of children; just as fresh milk, clean dishes and warm feet are good for adults, but vitally essential for the health of babies. Of course, some babies do worry along on fly-infected milk and filthy nipples, and grow up somehow into adults with ruined digestions and lowered vitality. So in a home where irritability reigns and the adults practice self-indulgence as consistently as their incomes will allow, and deal justly by the children whenever they happen not to feel too tired and nervous to do so, the children do grow up somehow, with warped and crooked moral natures into one or another of the various life-failures so tragically frequent.

Everything else is of less importance for children than the color of the home background. The family can live (as the splendidly sturdy Scotch do) on oatmeal porridge three times a day, the children can go with holes in their stockings, and with uncombed hair, the house can be unswept, the beds unmade, the mother dress in a cheap print wrapper * * * any of the dreadful thing—we usually think of as "impossible" are infinitely better for the children's moral health and present and future happiness and usefulness than a mother with an irritable voice, the habit of scolding to let off the steam of her own bad temper, or of repressing unjustly the innocent activities of her children.

The Choice of Our Children.

Fortunately, few of us have to make so decisive and radical a choice as this between over-fatigue and actual slovenliness. But every one of us, if we have children to bring up, and have working order, must make some such choice every day. None of us, even the most fortunate, can have everything. When we have only ourselves to choose for we are responsible only to ourselves if we choose badly and select the trivial, superficial good of life, like fashionable clothes or elaborate food or a handsome house, and deny ourselves the greater goods like peace of heart and leisure to savor the sweetness of life. But when we have children, ah, then we are responsible for our choice to God, to society, to our own souls. We must not, we dare not, choose badly. First of all, we must have the essentials to feed our children's hearts and minds, and then when these are provided for we may be permitted to spend whatever superfluous strength, money and time we have on embroidering their petticoats and trimming their caps.

To be more explicit, before the children come into our lives we may, at no more cost than the sacrifice of our own characters and happiness, indulge ourselves in pulling-and-haulings with our husbands over minor differences of opinion, in snappish replies to remarks that seem irritating at the end of a hard day's work, in fits of bilious gloom over poverty, hard work, or (more likely) nothing at all in particular, in bitter exasperation at the perversity of inanimate objects, in vexation over the annoying personal peculiarities of the adult members of the household in rtpining at the necesity for doing uselul work. But when children live with us, all this must stop; or we shall be guilty of about the worst crime possible — the poisoning of a child's life. Far more than merely marrying is the having of children like domesticating the Recording Angel.

I think that every family and especially every child in this country would be happier and healthier if the house-mother would follow the example of a wise woman of my acquaintance who has hanging over her desk this statement of faith and rule for the coiduct of life:

"I Owe a Debt to My Children.

"Having brought them into the world, their father and I owe it to them to furnish them a happy, free life of physical health cheerful industry, intellectual growth and moral dignity and sanity. To pay my part of this debt I have at my command a certain amount of money, physical strength, intellectual vigor, nervous energy and spiritual force, and I am to keep my honor untarnished I must as every honest debtor does, use my resources first of all to keep up the payments on my debt."

DIMINUTIVE THREE-HORNED DINOSAUR

There are now being assembled in the United States National Museum the bones of a very small three-horned dinosaur which is being made the type of a new species. This diminutive dinosaur, when completely assembled, will measure about six feet in length and stand only about three feet high. Its head is twenty-two inches long. When its bones are compared with those of the larger members of this extraordinary family of reptiles, it will be seen that this specimen is less than one-quarter of their size. In the national museum are several skulls of one of the large horned dinosaurs, Triceratops, which measure from six to eight feet and in one case nine feet.

The group to which this new member belongs is called the Ceratopsia, from the horns which adorn their heads, two above the eyes and one on the end of the nose. Unlike the others, this species has small and not prominent horns over the eyes, while the nasal horn is an outgrowth of the nasal bone and not an additional growth, as is the case with the others. Another peculiarity is that this horn is split lengthwise in such a manner that one side has the appearance of having slipped by the other.

Its jaws are like those of a turtle, there being no front teeth but a sharp curved beak. Farther back in the jaws, however, are very finely sculptured cutting teeth, which show the animal to have been herbivorous. Like the other members of this group, it has a deep collar known as a frill, but in this species it has an open space on either side of the neck. The frill was covered with horn and formed a defensive armor for the protection of the neck.

This particular specimen was found with the foot and tail articulated, which makes it especially interesting as being the first complete and connected specimen ever obtained. The foot has four toes, the first with two bones, the second with three, the fourth with five, while only a trace of the fifth toe remains, tending to show the loss of that member through disuse, as is the case with the horse. Parts of all the other feet are also in this collection, as well as nearly all the bones of one individual. In the whole specimen there are but few bones and parts which will have to be restored. Considering that the first specimens of this family were discovered some forty years ago, it is curious that this small individual is the most complete one that has been found.

These fossils were found by Charles W. Gilmore during the summer of 1913, while he was working for the geological survey in the Blackfeet reservation in Northwestern Montana. The partial skeletons of five individuals were uncovered at the same time and form a most valuable addition to science. Mr. Gilmore has written a preliminary paper on the new species, published in the Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections, and is working on the assembling of the specimen for exhibition in the National Museum.

WHY, HOW MEAN!

Chicago News: "A woman will take any mean advantage of you that she can," observed McBippert. "Ever notice that?"

"No, I never noticed it particularly," answered Obbs.

"Well, it's a fact. Do you know what my wife did last night? Last night I came home mad. I had been working hard and things had gone wrong. First thing as I entered the house I stumbled over a chair that had been carefully placed there for that purpose. Everything in the house was lost or in the wrong place. I was pretty mad, and I was late for dinner and everything else was wrong.

"My wife didn't say a word. She placed my dinner before me and I started to eat it. I found fault with everything and said everything I could think of, which was a great deal, for I had my imagination with me.

"But it didn't ruffle my wife. She went into the library adjoining the dining room, and I whooped it up good and plenty. Pretty soon I thought of something extra brilliant, so brilliant that I had to say it to her face. I got up and followed her into the library to see the effect the remark would have upon her. Just as I was in the midst of the choice remark I saw calmly sitting there, the wife of my boss! Now what do you think of that?"

"Didn't your wife make faces or frown or do anything else to let you know that the wife of your boss was in there?" asked Obbs.

"She did not. Not a sign. She let me go the limit. If I had ripped out a string of cuss words a mile long it would have been all the same to her. She would have been just so much better satisfied. Can you beat that? Would a man have done that?"

"Most women don't like to show up their husbands," observed Obbs, thoughtfully.

"No, but when they do take a notion to show them up there isn't a man in the world that can put it over the way they can. You have to hand it to them for being able to do that.

"She didn't tell me there wasn't anybody in the house, but it seems to me that she should have given me some warning. I know I felt safe. Henceforth I shall have to look through every cupboard and recess to see if there are visitors in the house before I dare express myself on the subject of there being no matches in the house. For a few days I'll look under the sofa to make sure."

"The best thing you can do is to cut out the rough talk," suggested Obbs, cautiously. "Act as if there was company in the house all the time."

PROTESTS AGAINST CHISHOLM WAGE CUT

Mass Meeting Voices Protest Against Council's Action.

Chisholm, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The action of the village council in reducing the pay of village employes from $2.50 per day of eight hours to 25 cents an hour resulted in a mass meeting last night of workers and others of which M. J. Thompson was chairman and he outlined the meeting's objects.

Anton Mahne, Silver Brooks and others spoke along similar lines after which Simon Sapere offered the following resolution prepared by a committee which was adopted:

The Resolutions.

"Whereas, At a mass meeting held in the village hall in the village of Chisholm Friday, May 29, 1914, called by the business and working men of Chisholm for the purpose of protesting against the reduction of pay to laborers engaged in village work; and,

"Whereas, We in mass meeting assembled consider the example set extremely poor; and,

"Whereas, the pre-election pledges given the voters of Chisholm called for an eight hour day without reduction of pay and whereas 25 cents per hour is not a living wage we hereby pray your honorable body to reconsider the action taken at the last meeting of the council calling for a reduction of pay to 25 cents per hour.

"Signed, M. J. Thompson, S. Sapero, Sam Castel, Ed Brooks, J. E. Cummings, Anton Mahne, Mike Jampsa and F. G. Harris."

Mines Are Blamed.

During the discussion previous to the passage of the resolution the mines were referred to as being the direct cause of the reduction and some personal remarks were made. It was stated that every morning 150 men called at the mines for work and were unable to secure it.

The statement made was for the purpose of proving that if the statement made that men had been offered work at $2 per day, such conditions would force them to work for $2. With the understanding that the council was to meet next Wednesday and before the wage scale would become effective, the meeting was adjourned, but the chairman stated that should the council fail to meet by that time, an effort would be made to have a special meeting of the council called to consider the question.

Some objections were made to the committee on resolutions not containing more laboring men, but when the call for the meeting was explained, the objections were for the most part withdrawn. The name of Frank G. Harris was asked to be taken from the list, but after a protest by Andy Cox, the matter was not further pressed and he was allowed to serve on the committee.

Chisholm, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of an arrest made by Game Warden George Woods Helen Johnson was yesterday brought into court on a charge of hunning a disorderly house on Lake street.

Game Warden Woods brought Mary Johnson and Tobias Murley here the middle of the week on an illegal game charge and their stop here at Helen Johnson's place resulted in a controversy which brought them into court. Helen Johnson is the daughter of Mary Johnson and both parties are well known to the police in this section.

Mary Johnson lost her husband under strange circumstances about two years ago at Stingy lake when he was murdered and his body found in the yard. The man charged with the murder committed suicide in the Grand Rapids jail before he was brought to trial.

Helen Johnson is well known here, having lived on the county road before moving into town three years ago.

SALVATION ARMY DELEGATES SAIL

Nearly 700 Leave New York on the Steamship Olympic.

New York, May 30.—Nearly 700 delegates to the international convention of the Salvation Army, to which more than a hundred of the ill-fated passengers of the Empress of Ireland were bound, sailed today for London on the liner Olympic.

A score or more, it was learned, canceled their passage at the last moment, after hearing of the steamship distaster, in which so many of their comrades had been drowned.

The holiday crowd that thronged the steamship piers at first mistook the long file of Salvation Army delegates, resplendent in their new gray uniforms and bright red hats, and augmented by three bands, for some military organizations paying honor to Col. Roosevelt, who sailed on the same ship.

SPECIAL JEWISH SERVICE

Temple Emanuel Will Celebrate the Feast of Weeks.

Special Shabuoth services will be held at 10:45 o'clock tomorrow morning at Temple Emanuel, Seventh avenue east and Second street. Rabbi Maurice Lefkovits will preach and a musical program will be given by the choir.

It is called the Feast of Weeks because it comes just seven weeks from Passover. It is the last holiday until fall, when Rosh Hashanah, or New Year's day is observed.

The service tomorrow morning will be the final until next fall, as Temple Emanuel will remain closed during the summer months.

SALOONS MAY BE OPERATED

Half Mile Limit Does Not Affect Villages and Cities.

Scanlon and Moose Lake Cases Within Supreme Court Ruling.

As a result of a decision handed down by the state supreme court yesterday, it is probable that the saloons in the village of Moose Lake may be opened for business again. The high tribunal, in a Martin county case, decided that the operation of saloons in a village or city does not contravene the state law which prohibits the sale of intoxicants within a half mile of dry territory.

And in view of the holding of the supreme court that the law prohibiting the sale of liquor within the half mile limit does not affect saloons in an adjoining wet municipality or village, there is no barrier now to the operation of saloons in the village of Scanlon within the half-mile line of the city of Cloquet, which voted dry.

Judge Bert Fesler of the district court reserved his decision on the constitutionality of the law which makes it an offense to sell intoxicants within a half-mile of dry territory as affecting cities and villages until the supreme court passed upon the question, which arose in a Martin county case which was appealed to the high tribunal. Judge Fesler of the local court is concerned with a Carlton county case which will decide whether or not the saloons in the village of Moose Lake automatically went out of business when the town of Moose Lake voted dry, by reason of the fact that the village was less than a mile square and was bounded on all sides by the "dry" territory of the town of Moose Lake.

Village Went Dry.

During the Month of March this year the village of Monteroy, in Martin county, voted out saloons. Triumph, situated within half a mile, remained wet.

Joseph Miller and Chris E. Sinn, Triumph saloonkeepers, were arrested on the ground that they were violating the law. To test the law as applying to adjoining municipalities, they petitioned for writs of habeas corpus, which were denied by the district court, and an appeal was taken. At the hearing in the supreme court Frank B. Kellogg represented the saloon men and Attorney General Smith appeared for Sheriff W. S. Carver.

May Delegate "Home Rule."

Justice Andrew Holt wrote the opinion of the supreme court, in which it is held that the legislature may not authorize one municipality to determine for another matters which properly belong to the local affairs of the latter. It is conceded, he says, that the legislature may delegate to municipalities powers of local self-government, but such delegated authority operates only within its own territory.

The court says that the law at issue is obviously intended to affect only the territory of a rural township within half a mile of a dry village, in which territory, if no restrictions were made, the county commissioners might grant saloon licenses to the annoyance of the dry municipality.

Important Case.

If the contention of the Martin county authorities had been upheld many saloons in towns and villages situated similarly would have been forced to close. All Mankato saloons are within half a mile of dry North Mankato and the two Kasota saloons are within half a mile of St. Peter, which recently voted dry.

The syllabus in the Miller case follows:

"The provision of section 3142, General Statutes 1913, forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquor within one-half mile of a town or municipality which has voted no license is constitutional, but the half-mile zone which may thus by vote of the adjacent town or municipality become closed against the saloon cannot embrace any territory within a village or city.

"Order reversed."

The same question was raised once before when the city of Cloquet in Carlton county went "dry" and the saloons in the village of Scanlon, which adjoined the city, were closed. The saloon keepers at Scanlon, however, moved their places of business back from the city limit line so as to keep within the law. The supreme court now holds that cities and villages are exceptions to the statute.

Do Fat Women Require SpecialDesigns In Clothing?

Yes, there seems to be a decided heightening of figure, apparent because of the effect of vertical or up and down lines upon the eye, while lines which run around the figure have an opposite effect. The lines of print in the cloth and all drapery should be vertical. Cross stripes or drapes around the figure or very fluffy trimming should all be avoided, as they all serve to accentuate the plumpness which is "ruinous to grace." The wise woman studies these things and, at the same time, reduces her avoirdupois by one of the few good methods of dissolving fat which have been developed in the last few years. The best treatment for reducing weight without danger or inconvenience, which you can make at home, is to put 4 ounces parnotis (you can get it from any good druggist) in 1½ pints hot water. Strain when cold and take 1 tablespoonful before meals. Keep up until weight is sufficiently reduced. This parnotis treatment is gentle in action and positive in results and leaves the flesh and skin firm and smooth.—Advertisement.

STARTED TO MAKE GOOD HIS THREAT

Andrew Kotick Buys Weapon With Which to Kill Enemy.

When Andrew Kotick had a quarrel with James Yancoviak in the latter's saloon last evening he evidently was making no idle threat when he declared that he was going to kill the latter.

Kotick immediately left the bar for a second-hand store, where he bought a revolver and a box of cartridges. Loading the gun he started back for Yancoviak's saloon.

In the meantime Yancoviak notified Patrolmen Manahan and Rickets and when Kotick reappeared they placed him under arrest. They took the loaded gun from him and sent him to headquarters on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

"It's a good thing for him that you got me or he would be a dead man by this time," Kotick said to the officers when they had him at the patrol box waiting for the "Black Maria."

When Kotick was arraigned in police court this morning he pleaded guilty to carrying concealed weapons. After listening to the report Judge Frank H. Cutting handed him sixty days straight in the county jail. Kotick's only excuse was that he was drunk.

HOTEL MAN FILES FOR COUNTY OFFICE

Benjamin F. Smith of Virginia, after nomination for Register of Deeds, held office as appointed when M. C. Palmer died.

Benjamin F. Smith, who has filed for nomination for register of deeds of St. Louis county, is probably one of the best known men in this part of the country. He is particularly well known among the traveling public, for it is with that class of citizens he has had most to do for many years.

Mr. Smith is a resident of Virginia, and is owner of the Fay hotel. For many years he conducted it, but about two years ago leased it. It was as a hotel man that he acquired his wide acquaintance and fully as wide friendship. He has lived in Virginia for about twenty years.

When M. C. Palmer died about two years ago, leaving the office of register of deeds vacant, Mr. Smith was appointed to fill the place until a successor was elected. This he did, but on rather unusual conditions. He refused to keep the salary attached to the office, or to permit his son, a clerk in the office, to take his. Both sums were turned over monthly to the family of the dead register. Mr. Smith was urged at that time to take the office, but owing to business exigencies, refused. Now, however, he asks it. He is prominent in a fraternal way and is also a veteran of the Civil war, being a member, during that conflict, of the Seventeenth Iowa cavalry.

CULTIVATING THE CULTIVATOR HABIT.

By JOHN ASHLEY.

There is no agricultural implement of greater usefulness than the cultivator, and yet, perhaps, none whose value is less fully appreciated. To the unobserving eye the thought of cultivating a crop after each rain seems an absurdity, but a little investigation soon shows the doubting Thomases the convincing need of such a thing.

In the spring, when the rainfall is plentiful, the soil near the surface is filled with sufficient moisture for the growing crops, but as soon as a dry time comes, the sun absorbs all the moisture in the upper strata of soil, and plants' roots have to go further down in search of water. Nature, however, being resourceful, has so ordered things that there is a capillary action going on all the time in the soil. To illustrate: When it rains, the water soaks down into the soil until it reaches what is commonly known as the water table, where it is stored for future use, and when the dry weather comes the sun causes an evaporation to take place near the surface, which draws up stored water through little tubes formed in the soil, analagous to the way in which the scalp supplies food to the hair through little tubes, which may be seen with a powerful magnifying glass. This process in the ground is known as capillary attraction.

Conserving the Moisture.

Now, if the surface of the soil is not constantly stirred, so as to break the capillary tubes, all the moisture escapes, in consequence of which the crops suffer, which is one of the important reasons why crops should be cultivated after every rainfall and during dry weather. Another good reason for frequent cultivation is the destruction of weeds. These pests are voracious eaters and "hard drinkers," the loss of water on account of them being more serious even than the loss of plant food. The rule, both in the garden and with the field crops, should be a frequent shallow cultivation. There are many instances on record where the yield of crops has been increased nearly 50 per cent by the thorough and constant use of the cultivator.

There are many makes of cultivators, some built especially for certain crops like the two-row corn cultivator or the beet cultivator, etc.; then there is the one-horse "all round" cultivator.

The better ones have, besides the regular set of cultivator teeth, extra implements, such as small plows, hoes and hillers that go with them, thereby greatly enhancing their value and usefulness.

OUR ROSE GARDEN AND HOW WE MADE IT.

By A. HYATT VERRILL.

We had always longed for a rose garden, and when at last we had a home in the suburbs our long cherished hopes were realized.

The space selected for our roses was spaded very deeply, and the earth was thoroughly mixed with quantities of well rotted horse manure in the proportion of one quart of manure to four parts of soil, for the ground can scarcely be made too rich for roses.

Our garden was ready in the spring, and as soon as the ground was dry and before the buds started to swell we set out dormant plants from the nursery and a little later added growing potted roses well covered with buds.

Careful Planting Half the Battle.

We cut back the tops of the dormant plants about one-third, retaining the strongest branches and cutting still more on the weak ones, taking care to always make the cuts just above a bud. We also examined the roots and cut off all bruised or broken parts. The holes for the plants were dug deeper than required for the roots, and in the bottom of each we placed a large trowel full of bonemeal, stirred into the earth. In setting the plants we placed them about an inch deeper than they had grown in the nursery. When a grafted plant was seen we were carful to have the joint of the graft at least three inches beneath the surface to prevent srckers from below the graft from sprouting up through the soil.

We found that a great deal depends upon proper pruning. Varieties that bloom on new stalks which grow from the roots should have the strongest canes cut back about half their length as soon as through blooming in June. In this way an abundance of new growth will form which will bloom later in the summer.

Varieties that form new growth from the tops should have all old, dead wood cut out in the spring. During the summer they will have more blossoms and will be stronger if the best branches are cut back one-half after they have flowered.

At first we used only hardy varieties, for every one told us we could not keep the tea roses over. We now have many of these delicate varieties and have found that with a little care and trouble they do just as well as the hardy kinds.

Tea roses planted out in the spring will do well all summer and may be taken in the house during the winter or may be kept out of doors with some slight protection.

GAPES AND HOW CURED.

BY PROF. D. J. LAMBERT, Rhode Island Experiment Station.

Gapes is a parasitic disease which afflicts nearly all kinds of domestic poultry, especially the young and the weaklings. The gapeworms are of various sizes, not over one-half inch in length, and appear to be of forked shape. In reality this is a pair, the larger part being the female and the smaller or branch the male.

These in combination attach themselves to the lining or mucous membrane of the trachea by a disk shaped sucking mouth and live on the blood of their victims, gradually weakening them and finally strangling them to death. The symptoms are general lassitude, loss of appetite, drooping wings and difficult breathing.

Gapes are often contracted through filthy and contaminated soil. Sometimes the worms coughed up by the infected birds find congenial lodgment in the wet ground, multiply rapidly and are eaten greedily by fowls and chickens in search of other animal food.

There are various mechanical devices and inventions for extracting the gape-worms. One is a horsehair looped through a small metal tube. Another and perhaps the most effectual is a long stiff feather tip. This dipped in turpentine and inserted carefully down the trachea, then rapidly twirled and then immediately withdrawn, will often dislodge the worms and sometimes save the chick.

Another Mode of Treatment.

Another mode of treatment is to confine the afflicted birds in a box or barrel, having the open part upward; cover the opening with coarse cloth or sacking and then sift in some pulverized tobacco dust or snuff. This treatment causes the chicks to sneeze and expectorate and if they are strong and vigorous to cough up the worms.

As a preventive of contagion the infected birds should be promptly separated from the well. All dead birds should be burned or buried deep in the ground. The soil in poultry yards and runs should be plowed or spaded up frequently and exposed to the sun and air. Air slaked or carbonated lime should be applied to the ground used for poultry runs, whether it is often turned over or not. Sprinkling the surface with a 2 per cent solution of sulphuric acid will tend to destroy the parasites and also earthworms, which are suspected as being carriers of gape-worms.

The drinking vessels should be kept clean by scalding and refilling frequently. A small amount of permanganate of potash added to the water, just enough to tint it a light wine color, will prevent contagion through that source. As in all diseases, preventive methods are the best.

GROWING CROPS FOR SHEEP.

How and What to Feed Them.

By F. B. MUMFORD, Dean and Director University of Mo.

No class of live stock on a farm so readily adapts itself to all sorts of conditions as domestic sheep. In the western semiarid regions and on high intensive farms of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania sheep have been used to convert coarse raw products of farms into valuable meat products. There are systems of farming peculiarly adapted to profitable production of wool and mutton.

Assuming a sheep farm includes 120 acres, the following cropping system and method of utilization are profitable. The farm should be divided into six twenty-acre fields. On five fields this rotation is recommended:

No. of field. 1st Yr.	Second Year
1. Corn and cowpeas.	Corn and rye.
2. Corn and rye.	Rye.
3. Rye.	Clover.
4. Clover.	Corn and cowpeas.
5. Permanent pasture.

No. of field. 3rd Yr.	Fourth Year
1. Rye seeded to clover.	Clover.
2. Clover.	Corn and cowpeas.
3. Corn and cowpeas.	Corn and rye.
4. Corn and rye.	Rye.

By following this rotation there are each year forty acres corn, twenty acres rye, twenty acres clover to be harvested for winter and fall feeding. Cowpeas are planted in corn either at time of planting or at last cultivation of corn. Clover is sown or seeded on rye in February each year except in certain districts where clover is better sown during March. This rotation does not provide enough summer pasture for a ewe flock, so the remaining twenty acres are divided by temporary fences into five acre lots. Here the cropping system is as follows:

First Year.	Second Year.
Rape and oats.	Corn and rye.
Soy beans.	Rape and oats.
Corn and rye.	Rye pasture.
Rye pasture.	Soy beans.
Third Year.	Fourth Year.
Rye pasture.	Soy beans.
Corn and rye.	Rye.
Soy beans.	Rape and oats.
Rape and oats.	Corn.

On good land such a system of sheep farming is managed to handle 150 high class breeding ewes and fatten their lambs annually, and four or five brood sows with litters could be raised and fed each year. This plan of sheep farming improves the fertility of the farm, and by proper management of manure produced the land will become more productive each year.

MEADOWLAND FARMER TELLS EXPERIENCE WITH FERTILIZER

More Than Tripled Yield of Cabbage By Use of Commercial Fertilizer.

By Theodore Burkhardt.

There is only one way to determine the true value of fertilizers. That is, by actually using it and comparing results with those secured with a similar crop on ground which is not fertilized. That is exactly what I did as I wanted to know what commercial fertilizer would do on my soil on cabbage. Fertilizer men told me they would pay big returns for the investment. I wanted first hand information and this I obtained by fertilizing a portion of my crop, leaving an equal portion unfertilized, and at harvest checked the yield on the scales. There is no guess work about such a proposition; the actual results on your own farm tell the whole story and tell it in such a way that you know you have the truth. This is what all truck gardeners and farmers want to know about the use of fertilizers.

My soil is rich looking black muck underlaid with clay subsoil. It is probably neither richer nor poorer than the average farm in this section. The ground where I decided to grow the cabbage had been cultivated three years in potatoes. It had never received any fertilizer. I divided the area in four equal parts. On one part I applied a fertilizer containing nitrogen and phosphoric acid, on another, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, and on the third part, potash alone. The fourth part was left unfertilized. Otherwise all the land was treated exactly alike. The same variety of cabbages were grown on all plots and they received identically the same treatment in planting and subsequent cultivation.

This was in 1912. Owing to very unfavorable seasonal condition the entire crop was very poor. However, there was no doubt as to where the fertilizer had been used. The portion receiving the nitrogen and phosphoric acid mixture produced 50 per cent more marketable cabbage than the unfertilized area. That which received the complete fertilizer, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, made a yield nearly 100 per cent better than the unfertilized section. Where potash alone was used the yield was also materially increased. Under the conditions the yields were quite wonderful. But it is last year's results that I want to report. My initial experience convinced me that it was worth while to give the fertilizer another test in order to prove what it would do in an ordinary good season. If it would do this well under exceedingly unfavorable conditions what would it do under average conditions?

The same ground was used for the second year's crop and the same general plan of experiment was adopted. The fertilizer represented the only difference in the preparation of the soil, cultivation of the crop and its harvesting. The incomplete fertilizer was made of 160 pounds of dried blood and 500 pounds acid phosphate. The complete fertilizer contained the same amounts of dried blood and acid phosphate with 210 pounds of sulphate of potash. The yields per acre were as follows:

From the unfertilized land I harvested 12,000 pounds or six tons of cabbage per acre of which only 8,000 pounds or four tons were of marketable quality, the balance being culls.

The plot treated with the incomplete mixture harvested at 24,340 pounds or 12.17 tons of marketable cabbage per acre. There were no culls. This was an increase of 12,340 pounds or 6.17 tons per acre over the unfertilized.

Where the complete fertilizer was used the yield was 40,200 pounds or 20.1 tons of marketable cabbage (no culls) per acre. This was an increase of 28,200 or 14.1 tons over the unfertilized acre yield, and 15,860 pounds or 7.93 tons per acre over the incompletely fertilized plot, which was due entirely to the addition of potash in the fertilizer.

The application of potash alone produced a yield of 24,360 pounds or 12.18 tons, all of which were marketable cabbage. This was an increase of 12,360 pounds, or 6.18 tons over the unfertilized acre yield, which was due entirely to potash as that was the element applied to this plot. It will be noted that the yield from potash alone was practically the same, or, to be exact, was 20 pounds per acre better than that produced by the nitrogen and phosphoric acid mixture, and the cost was less being $5.60 for the potash and $8.80 for the last named materials.

Average yields of cabbage in this section on unfertilized land run around six tons per acre. Occasionally some growers secure eight tons per acre, but this is above the average. By using fertilizer I more than tripled the yield—six tons per acre without fertilizer and twenty tons per acre with the right kind. Naturally, my convictions regarding the use of complete fertilizer in the commercial production of cabbages are well established.

FIRE BLIGHT OF APPLE TREES.

BY E. C. STAKMAN, Assistant Plant Pathologist, University Farm, St. Paul.

During the past summer there was more fire blight on apple trees in some localities than for a number of years past. It was especially destructive to young orchards and therefore deserves serious consideration on the part of every fruit-grower. The cause of the disease is a bacterium which is spread from tree to tree by means of insects or pruning tools. It is, therefore, very contagious and this should always be taken into consideration.

The fact that there was a great deal of the blight last year does not necessarily mean that there will be a great deal of it again this season. The germ lives over during the winter in the so-called "hold-over cankers," although only a small percentage of the cankers can be considered "hold-over cankers." If the weather conditions this year are not favorable to its spread, it is possible that there may not be a great deal of blight. If, however, the weather conditions are favorable, it is probable that it will again cause a considerable amount of damage.

Control measures are relatively simple, although a great deal of care is required in carrying them out. Within a short time the hold-over cankers in which the germs have lived during the winter may become active if the weather is warm and moist. They can very frequently be recognized by means of drops of a milky juice which may appear in the cankered area. Sometimes so much of the juice is exuded that it runs down the side of the limb. It contains countless numbers of the bacteria. Insects are attracted to it and in visiting other trees they may spread the disease very rapidly, especially at flowering-time. The safest method of procedure is to cut out all of the dead areas. All limbs which are affected should be cut off at least six inches back from the point at which disease shows. The pruning tools used should be disinfected with corrosive sublimate dissolved in water at the rate of one part of the poison to one thousand parts of water. This solution is very poisonous if taken internally. A cloth wet with the solution may be used to swab off the pruning instruments. This is necessary because unless it is done the pruning instrument may come in contact with diseased wood and then spread the disease to other trees on which it is used.

After the orchard is very carefully pruned, there should be very little fire blight, if neighbors co-operate. However, a few cankers may be missed and a certain amount of the blight may appear at various times during the spring and summer. In case the trees are kept in proper condition, these attacks should be confined almost entirely to the younger twigs. These should then be systematically removed whenever they appear, the same precautions being taken as were indicated for the spring pruning. All diseased parts should be burned in order that they may not serve as sources of infection.

WORK THAT BIRDS DO FOR FARMERS.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, Judson C. Welliver, Washington correspondent of that publication, writes an article entitled "Birds that Work for the Farmer," in the course of which he tells about the new Federal law which has been passed for the protection of birds that are of practical help to agriculture. Following is an extract from his article:

"In truth, the birds do more work for the farmer, at a lower wage, than any other part of his livestock equipment. What it would mean to have a birdless country was most pointedly suggested to me by the story that a West Indian gentleman told me about one of the islands of the Carribean region, with which he was familiar. Many years ago, he said, the mongoose, from the East Indies, was introduced into this island by people who believed it would rid the place of snakes.

"So the mongooses or mongeese, according to the plural you prefer, were brought along. But the results proved that it was a sad mistake. The mongoose multiplied and throve; but he proved to prefer birds' eggs, as a diet, to reptiles. In time he well-nigh destroyed the island's entire bird population. The reptiles and all manner of insectivora multiplied at such a rate that the island, one of the vetry richest in natural elements in all the world, has become a peculiarly undesirable place of residence; its development has been retarded.

"Out new Federal bird law looks to saving this country from anything like such a calamity."

PERHAPS WE SHALL HAVE MORE TURKEY.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, appears an interesting and important article by Dr. Philip B. Hadley of the Rhode Island Agricultural Experiment station in which some hope is held out for the recovery of the turkey-raising business. Doctor Hadley indicates that instead of raising only 5 per cent of the young turkeys, which is now the rule, owing to "Blackhead Disease," a new system of feeding makes possible the successful rearing of half the poults. As to the results of this new system of feeding Doctor Hadley says:

"I might say regarding the percentage of turkeys that can be raised that a year ago we were able to raise something over 25 per cent of our birds, and this makes allowance for many deaths due to other causes than blackhead. In our experimental work we attempt to get a perspective on our results by observing the increase or diminution of mortalities caused by blackhead alone. In all of our experimental work so far, this mortality has been reduced by 40 to 60 per cent as a result of our new methods of feeding. I believe it is a conservative estimate to say that at least 50 per cent of turkeys hatched under favorable conditions can be raised by this method."

The editor of Farm and Fireside, in the course of an introduction to Doctor Hadley's article, writes:

"Giving up turkey-raising was a disappointing and humiliating experience to thousands of farmers and farmers' wives in the New England, Eastern, and Midwestern states. The old-time flocks, numbering scores of strutting Toms and plump hens as the holidays approached, were a source of satisfaction, pride, and profit.

"The fight against the insidious blackhead disease has been long and stubbornly waged, but one by one the former turkey-raising experts have lost courage and retired from the field.

"As this industry languished in the older sections of the country, the turkey and the star of empire' wandered westward together, until now the great Panhandle and contiguous region of the Southwest, and certain parts of the Central South, furnish the great bulk of the holiday turkey supply. Flocks of 2,000 to 10,000 turkeys being driven to central slaughtering houses are not uncommon sights in these turkey-raising areas."

PRESERVING FOODS FOR HOME USE.

By R. W. THATCHER, Agricultural Chemist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Juicy foods, such as vegetables, fruits, and meats, spoil very quickly when left in the open air, especially in summer time. The decay of such foods is the result of the action of micro-organisms which are always present in the air and hence infect any food material which is open to it.

These micro-organisms, commonly known as "bacteria," "germs," or "microbes," are all alike in that in order to grow, and so produce the decay of the food with which they may be in contact, they must have moisture, the proper temperature, and plenty of air, and must not be in contact with certain chemicals which hinder their growth and are known as "antiseptics" or preservatives.

Drying is the easiest and most efficient method of preserving food from decay; but the necessary heat to dry the material rapidly usually partially cooks the food and so changes its flavor. But thoroughly dried foods will keep indefinitely, if kept from getting damp.

The next most efficient means of preservation is to exclude the air, as canning fruits and vegetables. Heating the material before it is sealed up does two things, first, kills most of the bacteria which are in the food, and second, drives out the air from it, so that when the can is sealed up airtight any bacteria which may not be killed by the heat cannot grow because they have no air.

The use of chemical preservatives, except such harmless ones as salt, sugar, or the products in wood smoke, is objectionable because any chemical which will prevent fermentation will almost certainly hinder digestion. Moreover, foods which have been properly heated and then carefully sealed do not need added preservatives to keep them from spoiling.

NEW FRUIT VARIETIES.

By M. J. DORSEY, Research Technologist on Fruit-Breeding, University Farm, St. Paul

The University of Minnesota, through the fruit-breeding farm at Zumbro Heights and the section of fruit-breeding in the division of horticulture, is attempting to originate new fruits on an extensive scale. The peculiar conditions of climate in the northwest make it almost imperative that we build up a horticulture of our own. Some of the pioneers of this section have been at this for fifty years. We propose in the fruit-breeding work to round out a suitable list of varieties for this section. Besides this attempt at originating new fruits, we hope to make University farm a clearing house for all new seedlings which arise in various sections of the state. We shall have to depend upon the field men to let us know of these seedlings. Anyone who observes a promising seedling is urged to report it to the section of fruit-breeding.

FARMERS' ELEVATORS.

By L. D. H. WELD, Agricultural Economist, University Farm, St. Paul.

In accordance with a law passed by the last Minnesota legislature, the division of agricultural economics of the college of agriculture is collecting reports from co-operative organizations in Minnesota. The following preliminary figures with regard to farmers' elevators have been issued.

There are 270 farmers' elevators in Minnesota, the aggregate membership of which is about 34,600, averaging 128 to a company. One farmer out of every five in the state belongs to a farmers' elevator company. Farmers own at least 50 per cent of the stock in all these companies, and own practically all of the stock in most of them. The aggregate volume of business was about $24,000,000 for the 1912 crop, of which $22,000,000 represents value of grain sold, and $2,000,000 value of supplies purchased. These elevators marketed about 30 per cent of all grain marketed in Minnesota.

Ninety-four and one-half per cent have the one-man-vote principle, five-sixths of them limit the number of shares that one person may own, and 26 per cent have the patronage dividend. Nearly 50 per cent paid no dividend at all. At least 20 per cent lost money during the year 1913. Sixty-three per cent buy coal, 41 per cent, feed; 40 per cent, flour; 35 per cent, binding twine; 18 per cent, seeds, and 16 per cent, salt. Among other commodities handled are cement, tile, farm machinery, lumber, fence posts, oil and wire fencing. All but 41 companies out of 239 reported the handling of some other commodity than grain.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

By LEROY CADY, Associate Horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Make frequent sowings of your favorite vegetables all season.

Any vegetable or flower seed may go into the ground before June 1.

Prepare the land well for melons. They should have warm, rich soil.

Early sown spinach, lettuce and radishes should be ready for the table now.

Grapes should be tied to the trellis and new shoots which crowd may be removed.

Cucumbers, melons and other vine crops may go into the ground during the last week of May.

Much large trees or shrubbery which has been set this spring. It will help to prevent drying out.

Chicken wire makes a neat support for peas and pole beans and does not cost much more than brush.

Was a good bed of strawberries set out this spring? It may still be done, although rather late.

Lima beans may be planted late in May. The dwarf varieties are easier to grow and just as good as the pole sorts.

Tomatoes may be staked or grown on a wire fence. Trim to one or two branches. It is more work, but larger and better colored fruit results.

Late this month all plants such as tomatoes, egg plant and peppers may be set out. There is always danger of frost up to the last week of May.

Early Iris should be in bloom by June 1. By a proper choice of varieties several weeks' bloom of these plants may be enjoyed.

Become acquainted with the many flowering shrubs and plants in bloom at this season of the year. There are many native sorts that could easily be moved to the home yard.

COLLECTORS' NEW SPICE OF ADVENTURE.

London, May 30.—Collectors and bargain hunters from the aristocratic quarters of the West end have found a new spice of adventure. On a Friday, which is the day the rag and bone men of the metropolis display their wares for sale in the old Caledonian cattle market, near Pentonville prison, in one the dirtiest slums of the city, wealthy collectors flock there to profit by the wonderful bargains offered.

It is known that many of the articles on sale have been stolen by the rag and bone men, but the fact gives all the more impetus to the trade. The haggling between the ragged merchants and their wealthy customers is worthy of an oriental market. Both men and women are playing the new game with the greatest zest.

LARGE INCREASE IN SHARES OF THE ANACONDA COMPANY

How Will Purchase of International Smelting Affect Dividends?

Butte & Superior May Purchase Success Zinc Mine in Idaho.

Butte, Mont., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition of the directors of the Anaconda Copper Mining company to purchase the International Smelting & Refining company by the exchange of 3.3 shares of Anaconda for one share of Smelting, was unanimously approved at the stockholders meeting, held May 20, at Anaconda. There were represented 2,754,208 shares of stock, by proxies, and all voted in favor of the offer. It had not been mentioned in the notices of meeting, nor in the advertisements, that the matter was to come up, but there would have been no opposition to the proposal anyway, as it seems to be generally approved by Anaconda stockholders. The International stockholders are yet to meet and accept the offer, which they appear willing to do. The deal means the issuance of 330,000 shares of additional stock by the Anaconda company, making the outstanding stock 4,662,500 shares. The Anaconda company will assume a heavy obligation, including $9,000,000 in actual debts of the International and a contract to build a smelter for the treatment of Inspiration and Miami ores at a cost of $2,500,000. The Anaconda is also building an enormous leaching plant at the Washoe smelter, which will cost, approximately, $6,000,000. Last year the company failed to earn its dividends by $1,674,000. What it will be able to do with 330,000 additional shares of stock out is one of the questions about which stockholders are somewhat interested. In the face of this copper is selling nearly 1 cent a pound below the average for last year. That International stockholders think well of the exchange offer the Anaconda directors have made is evidenced by the fact that some of them have been selling Anaconda stock against the Anaconda stock which they are to receive in exchange for Smelting. Before the offer was made by Anaconda, the International stockholders were canvassed as to whether they would take more of their own company's stock, and they frankly said they had all they wanted, at present at least. The Anaconda company's assets are enormous, and its credit good, so that it will not be difficult to finance the new obligation without seriously impairing the market value of Anaconda shares.

Leaching Plant Progressing.

Work on the 2,000-ton leaching plant of the Anaconda company at the Washoe smelter is making such good progress that Manager Matheson says the plant will be ready for operation by next spring. Excavation is now being done for the furnace building which will be 230 by 110 feet in dimensions; the leaching plant, which will be 293 by 122; the dewatering building which will be 226 by 41, and the solution tanks which will occupy a space about the same size as the dewatering building. Orders for steel and furnaces for the plant have been placed. This 2,000-ton plant is but a unit of what the new system will be when eventually completed and will cost about $1,250,000. The plant will eventually be increased four or five times, and while at first it will be used for the treatment of tailings, there is no doubt that it will in time be used on the ore direct and that the present smelting system will eventually become obsolete. Five processes are used in removing the copper from the tailings. First there is the dewatering plant, then the roasting plant where the tailings are roasted; the acid plant, which prepares the chemicals; the leaching plant itself where the tailings are treated with the acid solution, and the precipitating plant.

The new slime concentrator, which has been in operation since March, is giving splendid satisfaction. Six carloads, or 300 tons a day, are turned out by this plant. These concentrates run 7 to 8 per cent copper. This concentrator has solved a problem that has bothered the smelter men for years. Heretofore about 25 per cent of the copper content of the ore escaped to the slum pond, but by the new method this is practically all recovered, and it is claimed that by the various improvements in economies the company now recovers about 95 per cent of the mineral value of the ore.

Work on the new coal dust plant is well along toward completion and the plant will be ready for use by July 1. It is being built at the east end of the reverberatory building. In this plant the coal will be dried and ground into a fine powder. The furnaces in the reverberatory will be remodeled one by one so that the coal dust can be blown into them. Experiments have shown that the use of coal dust instead of lump coal is a great saving in fuel. No cinders are left by the dust, and the dust burns like gas. It is predicted that the principles demonstrated at the smelter will in time be applied to coal burning furnaces and a maximum of heat from a minimum of fuel obtained.

"Safety First" Work.

The "safety first" department of the Anaconda company has had a very successful first year, and the accidents of a serious nature were greatly reduced. Under the new plan to encourage greater care and consequent greater safety for miners, the company offered prizes to the foremen of mines having the least number of accidents of a serious nature. The result of the first year, which ended March 31, has just been announced and the first prize of $750 has been awarded to Dan P. Sullivan of the Original mine, while the second prize, $250, went to Karl P. Kruger of the Colusa mine. The award is to be an annual one. In construing a serious accident, in making up the basis of award, it was figured that where a man was incapacitated for thirty days through an accident in the mine it counted as "serious" while minor accidents where men lost only one or two shifts were not counted at all. Percentages were used and the number of accidents figured against the total number of men employed, and the shifts worked underground. As a result of the rewards and the interest created by the company's efforts to make mining less hazardous for its employes, every foreman in the employ of the company at its twenty-two operated shafts is constantly on the alert to see that every possible safety appliance is used, and that the men are careful and live up to the rules of the company. The department was established and placed in charge of C. W. Goodale, manager of the Boston & Montana department of the Anaconda company. Mr. Goodale recently made an extensive trip through the east, visiting the plants of the United States steel corporation and other large concerns employing large numbers of men in hazardous labor, to see the methods used there for the protection of the men.

Closed for Repairs.

The Mountain View mine of the Anaconda company has been closed for repairs, and the entire shaft will be retimbered. It is likely that the mine will be closed for six months. The Mountain View employed 700 men and these have been put to work in other properties, so that the output of the company will not be curtailed. The auxiliary shaft of the Mountain View is being put in shape for use and in three or four weeks some mining will be done through that. The West Steward mine, which has been closed for several months, is about to be reopened, all repairs having been completed. The West Steward will give employment to about 500 men, and the ordinary output of that mine has been 800 to 1000 tons per day.

It is estimated that the May production of the Anaconda company will be slightly in excess of the April production of 22,900,000 pounds of copper, which was about 1,000,000 pounds below that of March.

Other Companies Formed.

In addition to approving the action of the directors of the Anaconda company in offering to take over the International Smelting & Refining company, the stockholders at their recent meeting approved other acts of the directors which disclosed two other important departures by the company. One was the organization and incorporation of the Blackfoot Land Development company to which all the vast timber lands of the company in Ravalli, Sanders, Missoula and Powell counties have been transferred at $2 per acre. The extent of the timber acreage is not given and the transaction wasn't mentioned in the annual report of President Thayer. It is understood that the purpose of the Anaconda company is to sell a lot of its timber lands to actual settlers, there being a great demand for it, and also a lot of agitation among assessors to raise the valuation on the lands for purposes of increasing taxation.

The other company formed is the Deer Lodge Valley Farms company to which 5,180 acres of agricultural land were sold for a consideration of $112,300. This land comprises all the land owned by the company within the noted smelter smoke zone of the Deer Lodge Valley, most of which has been purchased by the company from "smoke farmers." In fact the Anaconda company acquired practically all the land that was involved in the long and costly litigation between the farmers and the Anaconda company. The latter by long tests and experiments demonstrated that the land was little damaged by the smelter smoke and that the valley is ideal for small farming and dairying. A plan was formulated and is now being carried out to cut up the entire tract into ten-acre farms which will be sold to employes of the company. The company will maintain an expert agriculturalist to superintend the farming of the tenents for years without cost to them, and will furnish blooded stock which will be sold to the employes at cost and they will be given long time in which to pay for the farms and stock at small interest.

The company's electric railway between Butte and Anaconda will be run through the tract and schools will be established, and a large public park laid out and kept up by the company for the use and enjoyment of the tenents. The latter will always have the free advice of the company's experts. Building material and farm equipment will all be furnished at a reasonable price, and everything will be done to encourage the settlers to build up profit producing farms. A number of reservations have already been made although the land has not yet been formally put on the market.

Success Mine May be Sold.

The Success mine, about eight miles from Wallace, Idaho, has been offered to the Butte & Superior company, and the latter has thought so well of the offer and the reports on the property that it has the purchase under consideration. The price at which the offer has been made is not known, but it is understood to be very favorable. The Success is a producing mine and has yielded about 1,000 tons of ore per month. It was originally copper, but later developed into a zinc mine, and because the Butte & Superior is in the zinc business, the property has an especially appealing attraction to the Butte & Superior people. Supt. Bruce who made an examination of the property says, however, that the company itself has not yet taken action on the offer of the property, and that his visit to the Idaho district was not made for the company. The Success company is capitalized for $1,500,000. There is a good mill connected with the mine and there are five claims in the Success group.

Butte & London and Rainbow.

The Rainbow Development company has finally begun work on the Butte & London mine, and is engaged in unwatering the 1,100-foot shaft and extensive workings. The property is equipped with one of the finest electrical plants in the West. The water is being taken out of the shaft with tanks, but as soon as the water is lowered to the 1,100-foot station a large electric pump will be installed there and the remainder of the water pumped out. It is expected that by the latter part of June the work of sinking the shaft will be started and carried to the 1,600-foot point. The Rainbow company is also developing a group of claims just northeast and adjoining the Butte & London, in which a fine ledge has been cut on the 1,000-foot level. The Rainbow shaft is now down 1,230 feet and will be carried to the 1,600-foot level before another crosscut is run. The intention is to run a crosscut north and south through all of the Butte & London ground and thoroughly develop it. If a paying mine is not opened at that depth and the showing is sufficiently encouraging, the shaft will be sunk deeper.

SERVICES FOR THE AMERICANS

Tent Seating Five Thousand to Be Erected at Christiania.

Christiana, May 30.—The thousands of Americans who are expected in Norway this summer to attend the celebration of the centenary of Norwegian independence will not lack for spiritual guidance provided by their own countrymen while they are here.

An anonymous donor of Chicago has provided for the erection of a tent seating 5,000 people in which evangelistic services will be held throughout the celebration. Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Metropolitan tabernacle, Spurgeon's famous church in London, will conduct the services for several weeks in June. Dr. Dixon is an American and he will be known to many of his auditors. He will preach twice daily, once with an interpreter for the benefit of the Norwegians, and once without. On his return to London Dr. Dixon expects to welcome a large number of Americans to the tabernacle, where Dr. J. H. Jowett of New York will preach in July.

NATIONAL TRIBUTE TO JOHN GRIBBEL.

Glasgow, May 30.—The Burns federation plans to present to John Gribbel of Philadelphia a Scottish national tribute for his action in purchasing the Glenriddel manuscripts and restoring them to Scotland.

An album prepared by leading artists will contain an illuminated address of thanks, and Lord Rosebery, honorary president of the federation will be asked to make the presentation.

ROWE WILL BE FIRST OF PIT MINES ON CUYUNA TO SHIP

Pittsburg Steel Company Officials to Visit Property Next Week.

Good Offers Received By Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore Company.

Brainerd, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Of the pit mines on the Cuyuna iron range, the Rowe mine at Riverton will be the first to ship. Early in the week officials of the Pittsburg Steel company will visit the property, the delegation including President Wallace H. Rowe, after whom the mine was named, Mr. Winter and others. Two new pumps of 2,000 gallon capacity each, known as two-stage pumps, will be installed for hydraulic work, working from 12-inch mains. One pump was started Wednesday. The pit is in shape to have ore mined out immediately. The Pennington pit mine west of Ironton and the Thompson pit mine of the Inland Steel company in Crosby are preparing for shipments.

The Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore company has held its annual meeting for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. About 150 members were present and all were well pleased with the excellent reports of the present condition of the company. The old board of directors was unanimously elected to office and an appreciative vote was tendered them in view of the excellent work they had done.

This company has put about as much money into a single property as any concern on the range. They have drilled over forty drill holes or a total of over 10,000 feet of drilling. These holes if stretched in a straight line would extend nearly two miles in length and as a result of this drilling engineers consider that one of the finest high grade ore bodies on the Cuyuna range has been shown up.

Good Offers Received.

It is understood that the company has under consideration some very good offers for their property and it is said that some one of them may be acted on in the near future, but from the present outlook the stock of the company may decide to hold their property for some time to come. They are in a good position to hold it and will not accept the first proposition that is offered by eastern furnace men.

On the north range the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine has commenced loading from its 25,000-ton stockpile and will soon be shipping. Rush orders have been received for ore. The Northern Pacific railway has switched in to the mine a large number of ore cars. The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs and the Cuyuna-Duluth mines are hoisting ore and will load directly from shaft to cars. At the Duluth-Brainerd mine drifting is being carried on at the 150-foot level and the pump station completed.

Option to Longyear.

H. K. Frederick and others of Brainerd have given to the E. J. Longyear company an extension of the option covering the south half of the southwest quarter and the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 7, township 45, range 29. To secure a loan of $3,000 C. W. Miller has made an assignment of mining lease to John Dower covering the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter and the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 13, township 45, range 30. The Cuyuna Realty company has given the Inter-State Iron company an extension to its mining lease covering the south half of the northwest quarter and the north half of the southwest quarter of section 10, township 46, range 29.

On the range this week were Franklin W. Merritt accompanied by M. Schermerhorn, W. E. Peterson and L. Peterson of Minneapolis and it is reported that drills may be set to work exploring lands in which they are interested. The Crow Wing Iron company has a drill operating in section 6, township 46, range 29. A. H. Elftman, geologist of Crosby, has returned from a trip to Minneapolis. C. J. Foley, interested in the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Mine company, was in Brainerd this week. Lands in section 3, township 46, range 29, belonging to the Cuyuna-Sultana Iron company are being explored. Drills of the Seafield Exploration company of Ironton and the Carlson Exploration company are working there. It is reported that Osterberg and Johnson have spotted a drill in a new location. J. P. LaBrec of Ely from the Vermilion range, has put his first drill on the Cuyuna iron range, starting exploration work in section 8, township 46, range 20. Mr. LaBrec was formerly the president of the White Iron Mining company and was also interested in the Euclid at Ely. It is reported that lands in section 34, township 46, range 29 are soon to be drilled again.

At Poor Farm Property.

The Longyear Exploration company is on its second hole at the poor farm property of Crow Wing county and still in the iron formation. Drilling in this section is followed with interest and other lands near by may soon be explored.

The Rogers, Brown Ore company's properties, the Armour No. 2 mine at Crosby and the Kennedy mine at Cuyuna, are both hoisting ore from shaft to cars and shipping steadily. The steam shovels have not yet been set to work at the stockpiles.

The Brainerd-Cuyuna mine in the city limits of Brainerd has its No. 2 shaft down seventy-eight feet. The steel piling driven by Capt. John O. Martin is enabling sinking to be carried on through the quicksand area. Seventeen men are at work. At the Barrows mine of the M. A. Hanna company in Barrows, an additional train crew from St. Paul has been put to work and the steam shovel is now working day and night at the stockpile, the daily shipments from the mine running about eighty cars a day. This ore is shipped to the Northern Pacific railway ore docks in Superior.

At the recent election of officers of the Patterson Construction company to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of President Patterson, Supt. Mackay was elected. This company is doing the shaft sinking at the Wilcox mine of the Canadian-Cuyuna Ore company at Woodrow, about six miles east of Brainerd. The mile spur from the main line at Loerch to the mine will soon be built. The shaft is now down about 65 feet and the flow of water, 250 gallons a minute, is easily handled by a Cameron pump. The Cuyuna Range Power company is building a sub-station at Woodrow of 500-horse power capacity. At the Adams mine at Oreland the new 1,500-gallon electric pump is being installed by the Cuyuna Range Power company.

UNABLE TO DECIDE WHO IS GENTLEMAN

Dispute Over Definition Under British Workmen's Insurance Act.

Liverpool, May 30.—An inquiry is being conducted here to determine the definition of a gentleman as contemplated by the workingmen's insurance act.

According to the reading of the act, any one who earns more than $800 yearly and does no manual labor is a gentleman. This definition, simple enough on its face, has caused infinite dispute in shipping circles, and the Liverpool Steamship Owners association is trying to solve the question by the present inquiry, but it is likely that whatever the decision, an appeal will be carried to the chancellor of the exchequer.

A prominent labor union official declares that the definition creates undesirable class distinctions in the mercantile marine. Under the existing ruling on big ships the captain, mate, second officer and everyone in the engineering room down to the sixth assistant are gentlemen under the act, but the line must be drawn at the seventh engineer. The steamship owners are claiming that the amount of food and lodging alloted to their officers must count in determining their status under the act. On smaller ships the question is more acute, for only manual workers are receiving benefits, so no matter how low their stipend the officers, who do not work with their hands, do not profit by the act. Therefore the Gilbertian situation is created that if a man, though a manual worker, should by promotion get another man to do his manual labor, he at once becomes a gentleman. The quartermaster by steering the ship always qualifies under the act, but misses being a gentleman, although he may mess with the rest of the officers.

The question is of such supreme importance, affecting as it does every British ship sailing from a home port, that some of the most eminent lawyers in the kingdom have been retained to conduct the inquiry.

MILLIONS LOST BY BAD COTTON PACKING.

London, May 30.—The advice which the cotton spinners of England have been giving American cotton planters to improve their methods of packing is beginning to bear fruit. One of the biggest American companies is now sending its cotton to England in neatly packed bales thus escaping the great wastage that in years past has resulted from bad packing. Sir Charles Macard, president of the English Federation of English Cotton Spinners, pleased at the progress that the movement for better packing is making, still finds it not so rapid as he would like. "Thousands of pounds," he said, "will be saved every year by good packing, which I trust will ere long be the rule all over the cotton growing districts of America."

It is estimated that $25,000,000 have been lost by bad packing, the American packers being entirely responsible. The Indian, Egyptian and colonial packers all send their cotton in well secured bales, from which there is no leakage.

SWEDISH ATHLETES TO GO TO BUDAPEST.

Stockholm, May 30.—Swedish athletes will go to Budapest next month to accept the challenge of the Hungarians for a track and field meet, including all the events of the Olympic program. The date set is June 27 to 28.

The original challenge for a meet at this time came from the German Athletic Federation, but the Germans have lately advised the Swedish authorities that they will not be in form for international competition before next year. There was keen disappointment here over this news, as the athletic progress of Germany has been watched with great interest, and a German-Swedish meet doubtless would have proved an exciting affair. Sweden looked about for another opponent, so that all of the preliminary work might not be wasted, and Hungary has now consented to take Germany's place.

TO CLEAR UP UNCERTAINTY

Superior to Find Out Southern Extent of the West Vein.

Wolverine Is Now Running Almost to Its Mill Capacity.

Houghton, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superior has reached the eighteenth level with its No. 2 shaft, where work was resumed last January. It is probable that some crosscutting will be done before a drift is started towards shaft No. 1, but there is some doubt as to whether the lode in which No. 2 was sunk is the Superior. On March 25, when President Shaw completed his report, a drift had been driven on this same level 1,300 feet south from No. 1 shaft. The connecting of the two shafts will clear up the uncertainty as to the southern extent of the west vein, lying one foot to forty-five feet west of the main, or Superior lode. It is not likely that the limit of the west vein's mineralization has yet been reached, as the report alludes to a stope 100 feet long on the seventeenth level, 1,000 feet from the shaft, as being the farthest point south at which paying copper had been found, only 100 feet, approximately, separating the end of the longest level, the twentieth just mentioned above. The thirteenth level unites the two shafts through an intervening angle of a "forty" belonging to St. Mary's Mineral Land company. Nothing concerning the mineralization was learned, as it was expressly stipulated by that company that the drift should not follow a lode. If No. 2 shaft is not on the lode it may be the case that the west vein, or lode, runs out somewhere here or passes by the shaft. It is 2,540 feet between the two shafts and 2,400 feet further to the southern boundary, and it would certainly be a very pleasing discovery for the big company, the Calumet & Hecla, to find that the rich vein extends over any considerable portion of this area, especially as so far nothing of value has been encountered on the territory reaching north of No. 1 about 1,200 feet to the boundary, except on the twentieth level near the shaft. There it is also possible that another shoot of the main or Superior lode, which has not developed any copper of commercial grade south of No. 1 may at any time meet with profitable values. From the twelfth to the twentieth inclusive there is a splendid succession of the rich "bunches" that, notwithstanding the lower grade of the Superior lode, keep the yield up to about twenty-three pounds a ton. The daily tonnage is averaging about 800 tons and sometimes it rises to 880 tons.

Franklin.

Franklin has enlarged its 335 feet of drifts into drift stopes, increasing the height from 7 to 16 feet, the width, 19 feet, remaining the same. This permits the miners to work continuously and gives a better idea of the contents of the lode. The extension of these drift stopes has been already begun, and the work of the raise, sixteen feet wide, for the gravity plane road is being resumed at the height of thirty feet, which had been reached at the time of discontinuing it in order to begin the drift stoping. About 2,000 tons of rock have accumulated and are waiting until the Centennial-Algonez tram is put in. The quality of the copper being disclosed in the drifts is somewhat better than the average of that taken out previously. There was some "copper brick" left in the roof or "back" of the drift stope and, of course, no estimate can be made of its upward extent. No additional work is contemplated at the present time.

New Arcadian.

New Arcadian is encountering in each of the drifts of the 600-foot level the same phenomenal grade of the red metal that was found on the 750-foot level, each drift having covered the distance of from 35 to 40 feet. The drifting at the 750-foot level has been suspended until the sinking of the shaft has been carried down to the depth of 60 feet, about 10 to 20 feet further than it is now. Very close to twenty feet a week is being made in sinking, which is quite a fast rate, two drills being employed during one shift and the dirt being removed during the other. It is possible that this lode is the Arcadian and some of the officials of the company hold that belief, but it would seem that it is too far east, and that it is a new lode. Supt. Harris of the Oneco considers it highly probable that it is the Arcadian and that it continues curving until on his property it becomes the Oneco lode, where the exploratory work is now being carried on. However, it is not likely that this question will be solved until the southern drift is extended far enough to give an answer or until No. 3 conglomerate, lying about 300 feet east, shall be cut. If it should prove to be the Arcadian it will have an extent along the formations of forty miles or more as the geologists here think that the lode is identical with Isle Royale lode and also with one of the Evergreen series.

Mass.

Mass is maintaining its daily output at slightly over 1,000 tons and will very gradually increase it to nearly 1,200 tons. A little exploration in a few drifts is being done besides the development that is necessary to keep the reserves up to the proper amount. New drills are being purchased and more men are being taken on as they are needed. If the present showing continues at the mass, and there does not seem to be any reason why it should not, the mine will have a great future before it as it has hardly scratched the lodes, shaft "B" being bottomed at the eighteenth level with but little work having been done on the lower levels and "C" only down to the ninth level.

Wolverine.

Wolverine is running almost to mill capacity. Considerable new work is being done and at No. 3 shaft, the northernmost, the plat is now being cut at the thirty-ninth level which was reached only a few days ago. Only one more level can be opened, at a depth about 4,000 feet, as the boundary limit will have been arrived at a short distance beyond.

South Lake.

South Lake will begin the long crosscut to the South Lake lodes within two or three days. In two or three weeks thereafter the crosscut on the third level which is now in the No. 3 so-called Evergreen lode at a distance of about ninety feet from the shaft will be pushed through to the No. 1 lode and drifts begun simultaneously in both directions on the former. The three so-called Evergreen lodes were passed through while the shaft was being sunk from 110 to 210 feet down, the first and third being excellently and very uniformly mineralized.

Indiana.

Indiana is still searching for the famous felsite body that was disclosed in the diamond drilling, by crosscutting, drifting and raising at the 600-foot level where the rich felsite had been met with prior to the strike. By this work it is hoped to be able to trace out the trend of this felsite in the vicinity of the bottom of the shaft where holes Nos. 2 and 9 were supposed to have passed and have encountered it in such heavy grades. The water has been bailed out to below a depth of 1,000 feet, the bailers running only four hours a day.

REDUCTION TO BE HEAVY

Iron Ore Shipments From Lake Superior Region Continue Light.

Inactivity Marked in Michigan and Wisconsin and on Vermilion.

Ore shipments from the Lake Superior iron region still continue at a rate that presages a heavy reduction in the season's movement, compared with the outgo the two preceding years. The inactivity is especially marked in the Michigan and Wisconsin fields and on the Vermilion range of Minnesota. There is seen no prospect of improvement pending the adjudication of the Eastern freight rate controversy. Mining men are hopeful the settlement of that issue will lead to a revival of the demand for iron and steel.

The furnace of the Stephenson Charcoal Iron company at Wells, a suburb of Escanaba, Mich., will go out of blast June 20, according to present plans. The Mashek Chemical company, operating at the same place and which furnishes the charcoal for the Stephenson stack, will also stop work. The suspension will be for at least three months, and may be continued longer, unless market conditions improve. The Stephenson company has in stock some 7,000 tons of pig iron. The Mashek company has on hand 1,500,000 pounds of acetate of lime. More acetate is said to be in storage in the United States than at any previous time. The stocks of pig iron are also said to be unprecedented. Officials of the Wells companies are quoted as saying that their operations the last few months have not been profitable.

Partial Suspension.

There will be a partial suspension at the big plant of the Pioneer Iron company at Marquette, July 1, a month later than the date announced recently. The production of pig will then be stopped, but the operation of the chemical plant will continue and the curtailment of the working force will not be material. Furthermore, it is said to be likely that the furnace will not be out of blast for more than a few weeks, although this is not definitely known as yet. The stack is in much need of repairs. Like other furnaces in the Lake Superior district the Pioneer plant is now carrying a heavy stock of iron. By the first of July, the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company's plants both at Manistique and Newberry, Mich., will go out of commission. The corporation's production of iron will not be greatly curtailed, however, for the reason the furnaces at Ashland, Wis., and Elk Rapids, Mich., will be restored to activity. While repair work is to be done, the suspension at Newberry will affect some 150 men. The plant produces approximately 2,500 tons of charcoal iron, 35,000 gallons of wood alcohol and 900,000 pounds of acetate monthly. Much repair work will be accomplished at Manistique and a start made with the installation of a proposed retort system.

Shipping From Marquette.

Shipments of ore are again being made from the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad company's dock at Marquette, after a suspension for a fortnight. The traffic is, however, much less than normal. On the Menominee range the Pewabic mine at Iron Mountain has curtailed production and is operating at present on half-time. For the first time this season the United States Steel corporation is sending out ore from the stockpiles at the Chapin and Aragon properties, at Iron Mountain and Norway respectively. The movement is small, however. Rogers, Brown & Co.'s Monroe mine, north of Iron Mountain, will resume operations shortly and will forward the usual tonnage. The property is a small one, wrought only during the summer season. Royalty requirements demand the production of a specified minimum tonnage, and generally this is mined each year. The Antoine Ore company's Traders mine, which also is a milling property in the Iron Mountain district and is operated under the direction of the Republic Steel & Iron company, is again shipping, as is customary each summer. The expected outgo is 100,000 tons. The big pit, which is being enlarged under a contract calling for the removal of 20,000 cubic yards of overburden, contained nearly 4,500,000 gallons of water. This was worked out by means of pumps and blowers within twelve days, 250 gallons being handled each minute. Including two score engaged in the stripping, the present force at the Traders comprises 170 men. The Dessau company's Millie mine at Iron Mountain is giving employment to twenty men. Operations were resumed some weeks ago, after a prolonged shutdown, and are as yet confined to development work. Whether shipments will be made this season is not known at this time. The Thomas Furnace company of Milwaukee is installing equipment at the old Indiana mine, adjacent to Iron Mountain, which property and adjoining acreage it recently acquired under lease from Capt. John T. Spencer. Development work will soon be in progress.

Exploration Decreased.

Less exploratory work is in progress at the western end of the Menominee this season than for several years past. The principal operations of this nature in the Iron River district are in the vicinity of the Rogers mine, to which field the success of the Swallow & Hopkins interests has attracted considerable attention. Several diamond drills are in commission. Duluth interests are operating in section 30 43-32, near Crystal Falls. A number of holes have been put down and there is evidently the work to date has been satisfactory. The Carpenter interests of Chicago have a drill in operation in section 35, 43-33. There is great interest in the outcome, for the reason the field is virgin territory. M. A. Hanna & Co.'s new Carpenter mine at Crystal Falls is now practically wholly equipped, lacking only the permanent shafthouse, which is to be of steel. The company's nearby Ravena property continues to stock ore, but is cramped for room, as is its neighbor, Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Bristol.

With a large force of men employed the Winston Bros. company of Minneapolis has its preparations to strip the Balkan property of Pickands, Mather & Co. well advanced.

It is the expectation that 100,000 tons of ore will be shipped this season from Rogers, Brown & Co.'s Portland mine. The property is in the Michigamme district of the Marquette range and is an open pit. It has been idle for upwards of a year. The product is a hard limonite ore, the blasting of which is necessary before it may be handled by a steam shovel. As in former seasons, the Hoose & Person Construction company of Iron Mountain will operate the mine under contract. So far as now appears, the Portland will be the only shipper in the Michigamme field this year. The largest property—the Imperial mine of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company—has been idle for several seasons. The last of its stockpile was, however, shipped last year and the mine was made ready by the installation of new equipment to produce more extensively than heretofore.

Cascade District.

It will be several months before the Cascade Mining company's mine in the Cascade district of the Marquette range will be ready to produce. Development work is in progress. A contract for a hoisting engine of large capacity was awarded recently to the Lake Shore Engine Works of Marquette. It will be some weeks before delivery is made. The only shipper in the Cascade field at present is M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Richmond mine, an open pit property. While little ore is being moved for the time being, it is expected the usual tonnage will be sent out, the product being desirable as an admixture with the higher grade Bessemers.

A Tasmanian apple orchard eight years old will net the owner in an average year from $200 to $300 an acre. The increase of orchard area in Tasmania is at the rate of two thousand acres a year.

Rapid Depletion of Wheat Supplies Is Bringing About Advances.

Flaxseed Situation Strong As Result of Decreased Acreage Forecasts.

This being Decoration day all the American grain and stock exchanges are closed. With the crop situation rounding up satisfactorily, grain operations are expected to assume greater importance from now on. A feature of late has been the increased strength shown in the cash wheat market due to the rapid dwindling down of remaining supplies of last season's grain and the belief in trade circles that present stocks of winter wheat will barely suffice to cover requirements between now and the marketing of the new crop next September.

Quotations in the May and July options have, however, declined fractionally during the past week. This was brought about through increased assurance of a bumper harvest in the Southwest and Middle West states. The cutting of grain has been started in Oklahoma and Texas.

Compared with a year the quotation of July wheat, 94c as at the close of business yesterday, was 1⅝c up, while the September option at 89⅞c, showed a bulge of 1⅛c.

The flaxseed market has been strong of late with steady buying by crushers in evidence on all the weak spots. It is now generally conceded that the acreage sown in the seed will show a considerable decrease this season in both the American and Canadian northwest, and the situation has consequently taken on a bullish aspect.

Quotations in the seed have advanced all the way up to 3½c during the week with cash and the near futures showing special strength. Flaxseed figures are now around 28c a bu. higher than a year ago.

The crosscut to the north now shows the vein at least 60 feet wide with the face of the drift still in the ore, and you ought to see the rich samples taken from the last 10 feet. We have them at our office for your inspection. A printer's error last week stated vein was dipping to "northwest"—this should have read "northeast." Every additional foot continuing in ore on the crosscut adds an immense tonnage to what is already shown up at this mine. The McCombes is proving itself to be one of the real big Vermilion Range mines, that everyone acquainted with the formation in this district expected it would.

IS MAKER OF TINY DOLLS

Quaint Figure in Mexican Town Is Very Clever Maiden.

Diminutive Dolls Are Most Remarkable in the World.

Washington, May 30.—This is the story of Isabel Belaunsaran, maker of the smallest dolls in the world, who is the quaintest figure in Mexico's quaintest town, Cuernavaca, as told by Russell Hastings Millward in a communication to the National Geographic society.

"This little girl is called 'Queen of the Needle,'" writes Millward. "The natives of the village will tell you that no cleverer Mexican Indian maiden has ever been known. The diminutive dolls she makes, both in point of construction and design, are the most remarkable in the world.

How They Are Made.

"The operation of making consists in forming a tiny framework of wire barely three-fourths of an inch in length and winding the same with many turns of silk thread. The clothing is cut according to the character of the doll and fitted carefully about the small figure. The most difficult work, that of embroidering, is then begun. With a needle that can scarcely be held in the fingers and the finest of silk threads, various designs are actually embroidered on the clothing, and so cleverly is the work executed that even through a powerful magnifying glass the details of the design appear to be perfect. After dressing the figures it is necessary to add the hair, and what is undoubtedly an example of the tiniest and most marvelous hair-dressing known is then performed on each doll. Even to the details of the braids and ribbons, the work is completely carried out. The eyes, nose, mouth, hands and feet are then formed and the doll is ready to be placed on sale in the village shop.

Find Ready Sale.

"On account of their daintiness, exquisite coloring, design and workmanship, these dolls find at all times a ready sale at the ridiculously low price of twenty-five cents each. But two hours are required to make each doll, so it can readily be imagined just how rapidly the work must be done, although the finished product shows no signs other than those of artistic skill and extreme patience. By working steadily for 10 hours the sum of $1.25 may be earned. So constantly has this little maiden used her eyes that she is beginning to lose her eyesight.

"Miniature roses are embroidered on the dresses and hung about the shoulders of the dancing-girl dolls. Ornaments are arranged in the hair and the tiny limbs are formed in graceful and life-like attitudes of dancing. The costume of the matador doll is gaily embroidered in colors and his hair dressed in Spanish style, including the conventional cue. The flower-girl dolls are provided with small baskets woven of fine hair filled with flowers of variegated colors. It is difficult to believe that human hands could have fashioned such wonderful little figures. The first dolls of this kind made by Isabel were secured by several of the royal families.

German Neatly Answered.

"A German traveler criticized the dolls one day and told the little Indian maiden that in Germany they had fleas fully dressed and trained to perform the most wonderful feats. 'Yes,' answered she. 'I remember my father telling how those trained fleas were first sent to your country from Mexico. We cannot dress the fleas so completely as the dolls, however, as we cannot make them stand still long enough. I suppose,' she added, naively, 'you can make fleas stand still as long as you like in Germany.'"

INVENTION ABOUT TO MOCK DECREE OF PRUSSIAN COURT

Berlin Admirers of Felix Weingartner to See Him Again Leading Orchestra By Means of the Cinematograph.

Berlin, May 30.—Invention is about to mock the decree of a Prussian court which some three years ago made permanent an injunction restraining the famous Felix Weingartner from conducting an orchestra within a radius of thirty miles of Berlin. The local admirers of Weingartner, who gladly have been making the pilgrimage to Furstenwalde, a city just outside the forbidden circle, to see theih idol conduct, are to see him again in Berlin concert halls leading an orchestra. He will not be present in flesh and blood, but by means of the cinematograph his animated picture will actually direct the orchestra.

The banishment of Weingartner came about through proceedings brought about by Count Von Hulsen-Haeseler, director of the Royal opera house, for breach of contract. Friends who shared his indignation suggested the idea of bringing the famous conductor back to Berlin on a moving picture film, but the cinematograph firms declared that technical difficulties of synchronization were insuperable. Eventually, however, experiments were made, employing one of the city's well known orchestras which was led by Weingartner's picture. Weingartner, Nikisch and other prominent conductors witnessed the experiments and declared them a complete artistic success.

The narrow canvas is stretched over the conductor's stand, and one audience sees his back, while his face is turned toward the orchestra, making the illusion complete.

The idea makes it possible for the conductor himself to study his own picture and experiment until he secures an ideal manner of directing. It will also make possible for millions of music lovers to see the work of a conductor whom they might not otherwise see, and it will preserve for future generations every gesture of these masters of their art. As Nikisch says: "What tremendous value it would have for this generation if it could see and hear how Richard Wagner conducted the notable presentation of the Ninth Symphony in Bayreuth in 1872."

Dangers of Radium.

The dangers attending the use of radium are receiving quite as much attention in Germany as the curative value of the substance.

At a recent congress on diseases of the internal organs, at Wiesbaden, Prof. Werner of Heidelberg university declared that the difficulty of confining radium treatment to the diseased tissue made the use of radium dangerous in the treatment of cancer and other tumors. Instances had been noted where the radium attacked and destroyed healthy tissue and where perforations and bleedings followed. Ill effects were also sometimes caused if the diseased tissue treated by radium could not be removed. Poisonous changes might occur with fatal results. With cancerous growths in the mouth, larynx and throat, Prof. Werner seldom found any permanent improvement through radium. Satisfactory results were obtained, however, in treating tumors of the thorax, and some were completely cured. There was also some improvement in diseases of the bladder, but no permanent cures. Tumors in the spleen, on the other hand, were most effectively treated with radioactive substances.

Prof. de la Camp, of the University of Freidburg, reported at the same meeting that patients with tumors of the lungs had died after treatment by radium.

At a meeting of specialists for ear and throat diseases, held at Cologne, Dr. Cronenberg, the chairman, jointed out that while the association had not rejected radium, the experiments reported by various speakers had shown negative results. The treatment of deafness was discussed particularly and the reuorts were in the some negative category.

Cardinal of Humble Birth.

Archbishop von Bettinger of Munich, who has just been made a cardinal is a man of very humble origin. His father was a poor blacksmith at Landstuhl in the Bavarian palatinate, and the future cardinal spent a part of his early years at the forge with his father.

During his career as priest and bishop, von Bettinger has taken an active interest in politics, zealously promoting the cause of the Clerical party. He was made archbishop of Munich seven years ago and since then he has become a great favorite of the Bavarian court, head of Count von Hertling, the prime minister. His appointment caused much talk at first owing to the fact that the new cardinal was to take the rank, in all social functions at the court, in advance of all the Bavarian princes of the blood; his preference, however, was afterwards waived by the pope, and now the princes are happier.

MOTOR RACE ON AT INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Thirty cars, representing six nations—United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium—battled for cash prizes totaling $50,000 at the Indianapolis motor speedway today in the fourth annual 500-mile automobile race. The attendance, which last year was more than 91,000, was expected to reach 100,000 today.

Thousands of race enthusiasts were on their way to the speedway long before the gates were opened at 6 o'clock and the crowds continued to arrive until after the race started at 10 o'clock.

The day dawned clear and much cooler than for several days. A small shower last night cooled the air and also quenched some of the heat in the bricks of the two and a half mile track. The weather man said there might be a few thunder showers during the day.

Race Started.

The race was started promptly at 10 o'clock. The cars lined up in eight rows before the judges, and when the starting bomb, which when it burst unfolded a parachute to which was attached an American flag, was exploded, the thirty cars, paced by a machine bearing a speedway official, began jockeying for places in the flying start. The first lap does not count in the 200 necessary to complete the race.

Thomas, from France, was leading at the completion of fifty miles by a quarter of a lap. Christiens from Belgium, followed with Anderson, of the United States, close behind. Thomas' time for the fifty miles was 34.42.

Car Overturned.

Chassagne's car, British, overturned on the northeast turn and his mechanician, S. Morris, was knocked unconscious, but not fatally hurt. Chassagne escaped unhurt and expected to get his car back into the race.

VOTES FOR FAMILIES.

A new suffrage step which goes beyond "Votes for Women," is proposed by Prof. Thomas C. Hall of Union Theological seminary, writing in the Survey for December. He suggests family voting. The plan and arguments for it he outlines as follows:

"The vote should be given not to male adults, but to everyone, man, woman and child. Naturally children so long as they remain children, would be represented by the parents. The mother would be the natural and fitting representative of the daughters as long as they were immature, the father would be the natural representative of the immature sons. Maturity is not a matter of years, and parents and teachers would be the proper ones to decide when a boy or girl had reached such maturity as the community needed at the polls.

"Probably at some age there should be conventional acceptance of maturity, but parents and teachers might agree that childhood and immaturity had been outgrown long before that time had come and advise the handing over of the responsibility borne by the parents and guardians to the boy and girl. Boys and girls without living parents should have carefully selected guardians to care for their political interests.

"The advantages of such an extension of the franchise are many and very weighty. In the first place of importance must be put the emphasis upon the family bond.

"The unmarried and childless married man has undue weight because he is unhampered as the father of a large family is apt to be hampered. This should be offset by a due increase of political power in the hands of the father and mother of large families.

"Another advantage would be the great incentive of such a franchise to the proper political instruction of the children. Family franchise would make often definite and concrete the all-important question. What kind of a world are we going to leave to our children?

"To vote for children and in their room and stead would in many cases be the most proper education of the voter for his larger social duty of voting on behalf of the future generation."

In most parts of China wood is very scarce and costly. Most of the trees were cut down long ago, and every year dry leaves and grass are raked and gathered with the utmost care.

HIGH RECORDS BEING SET IN BUILDING OPERATIONS

Figures on Large Wholesale Warehouse to Be Taken Within Few Days.

Work Active in Steel Plant District and in West Duluth.

With building permits during the present week aggregating forty in number with the cost of improvements placed at $59,250, a good showing was made in new construction. It is intimated at the building inspector's office that the work authorized during May will compare favorably with last year, and taking into account new propositions in sight, the opinion is expressed that with the exception of 1910 when the $10,000,000 permit, taken out by the Minnesota Steel company, went to swell the total, a new high record will be set this summer.

While no especially large jobs are in hand just now, it is conceded that all interests connected with the building trade are fairly well employed. That is especially the case with carpenters as a result of the activity in the construction of dwellings in all parts of the city. All but seven of the forty permits taken out during the week were for that class of work, and is to be noted that the bulk of it was proposed in the steel plant districts and in the western sections of the city.

Architects say that plans for several large jobs are likely to go out for figures within the next two or three weeks. In the list will be included a warehouse building estimated to cost $200,000, and some high class construction in the range towns. Though building operations have been on an extended scale in West Duluth and Gary so far this season, still greater expansion is expected from now on.

The force engaged by contractors in the several departments at the steel plant is being steadily augmented. considerable heavy machinery is being installed, and superstructures are being erected on foundations for additional structures put in recently. It is intimated that 150 more men will be placed at work at the Universal Portland Cement company's plant next week.

The committee of the Duluth Real Estate exchange, Builders' exchange and the Building Owners' association, is making progress in its task of going through the present building code with a view to suggesting changes designed to make it more workable. A meeting of the committee was held at the Commercial club last Wednesday evening, and it is announced that these conferences will be continued till an agreement is reached on the various points.

Arthur Hanford, architect, is preparing plans for a frame and stucco home to be built for L. E. Marvin at Chester park. Its cost is estimated at $4,500. He has also plans in hand for remodeling the residence of E. F. Alford at Hunters Park.

The same architect is preparing plans for a frame dwelling for the Lakeside Land company to go up on Fifty-seventh avenue east.

* * *

George H. Gardner of Brainerd, Minn., is preparing to erect a reinforced concrete building block in that city at an estimated cost of $50,000. It is to be a four-story structure, 50 by 125 feet in size on the ground floor plan. This will be the first business building of that type of construction in the range territory. The plans are expected to go out for figures shortly from the office of Vernon J. Price & Co., architects.

That office has also prepared plans for a two-story school to be built in school district 46, St. Louis county.

Mr. Price announces that the firm's office at Crosby has been closed for the present and that he will devote his personal attention to the Duluth office from now on.

HOMESEEKERS ARE MUCH IN EVIDENCE IN DULUTH

Good Demand Is Reported for Houses and Building Lots.

Attention of Outside Capitalists Is Focused on Zenith City.

Houses and building lots practically monopolized the business in real estate during the present week. As the transfers show a fair volume of trading was put through and it was well distributed between the different sections of the city. Homeseekers are much in evidence and the inquiry is reported to be of a nature to warrant expectations of expansion in activity later on in the season. It is a subject of comment by experienced operators that there are buyers in the market ready to pick up anything regarded as being offered at a reasonable price basis.

While outside investment inquiry has slackened off somewhat pending the settlement of the railway freight question, an era of activity is confidently predicted once that is out of the way.

Said an operator today: "The attention of capitalists is being more and more focused upon Duluth and the possibilities of profitable investments in centrally located properties regarded as offering here. Had it not been for the general hesitancy in business and industrial circles brought about through the withholding of the railroad rate decision, I think we would have all been doing a humming business in a real estate way during the spring months. However, everything appears to be lining up all right and if the crop situation in the Northwest maintains its present promise, I think that we may count upon considerable outside capital being invested here during the fall months."

Transactions reported to be pending at the present include a deal for a large stretch of water frontage to be utilized as a dock site and of business properties in the West end and West Duluth.

Inquiry for land in the districts tributary to this city has been a feature since the early spring and summing up everything it is estimated that transfers in that line are showing an increase of more than 40 per cent over last year's record.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Real Estate exchange, to be held at the Kitchi Gammi club next Tuesday evening, promises to be of special interest. More of a get-together spirit than at any time in the past is said to have been developing among the local realty operators of late, and it is expected that some interesting topics will be brought up for discussion. A committee headed by E. D. Field, has had a program of entertainment in hand, and some surprises are promised in the course of the evening.

* * *

A. W. Kuehnow, president of the Gary Land company, reported a good inquiry from outside points. A number of sales of business frontages and house building lots were closed up.

Sales of four lots in the Gary Central division were also advised by Kinzel & Burke. Members of that firm regard the outlook as very promising.

* * *

A gratifying opening sale of lots in its Park Drive addition in the vicinity of Chester Park, was reported by the Hoopes-Kohagen company. The bulk of the property disposed of thus far has been for immediate improvement in the erection of modern homes. That office sold several acre tracts during the week. It is now offering to investors its allotment of high-class residence lots in Waverley Park.

* * *

The Ebert-Walker company advised the sale of 480 acres of Lake county land to an Iowa investor. It will be divided into small tracts and sold to settlers.

* * *

Stryker, Manley & Buck reported the sale of a seventy-five foot frontage in the East end residence district. The office also disposed of several lots in the Wilmington addition at West Duluth.

* * *

The Anchor Realty company had a fairly busy week, resulting in sales of both city property and farm lands. A house and lot at Lakewood was sold to Charles A. Rose at $2,500, and a house and lot on Fortieth avenue west was sold for L. E. Larson to Joseph Schineck at $5,500. A farm of 120 acres in Aitkin county was disposed of to E. L. Anderson at $2,000.

* * *

The Alliance Real Estate company sold six tracts at Exeter farms. The erection of a number of additional houses has been started there during the last few days.

* * *

W. M. Prindle & Co. sold four lots at Crescent View park. Good inquiry for property at Kenilworth Park was also reported. Three more modern homes are now under erection there.

* * *

The Harris Realty company sold for James R. Sutphin to Harry Krantz, a house and lot on Sixth street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues east at $4,500, and for Robert Chubb to A. G. Anderson, a house and lot on Third street west near Third street at $3,500.

* * *

The Field-Frey company reported the sale of 100 feet frontage on Kent road in the normal school district to a local investor.

* * *

The A. A. Fider company sold to Martin Kusnevick, house and lot No. 717 Fourth street east at $3,000. The Little & Nolte company represented the owner of the property, Mrs. Price.

* * *

It is expected by members of the Duluth real estate exchange that the plan of Waverley park will be opened by June 10. Rapid progress is being made in pushing through the development of the property in the opening and grading of streets, and laying sewer and water mains. Rogers & McLean are making a showing on their Victoria street paving contract. Evergreens are being planted on Lakeview drive and other thoroughfares so that on the whole the thirty-five acre tract is taking on an attractive appearance.

SOCIAL COST IN THE BALKAN WAR.

Awful as the cruelty and barbarism of the Balkan war have been, the Survey tells of the even more appalling social cost, as set forth by Mrs. Toriza Furnadjieff, who has come to America as a representative of the Protestant churches of Bulgaria to raise money for the sufferers.

During the last eleven months Bulgaria has placed 400,000 men on the battlefield. Of these, 44,892 have been killed, 7,744 are missing and 10,000 have been crippled for life, in many cases horribly mutilated. Practically all of these men were stalwart wage-earners in the prime if life, and, since in Bulgaria a man marries at the age of 19 or 20, most of them are survived by wives and large families of young children.

In addition to the burden of her own losses, Bulgaria must shoulder certain other responsibilities of war. There are 90,000 Turkish prisoners who, to quote Mrs. Furnajieff, must be fed well. Distress is even more acute because severe storms have partially ruined the crops—the winter's food supply—and in some regions earthquakes have destroyed buildings and driven the people into flimsy tents.

The work is being organized on a systematic basis by a central Red Cross committee, composed of representatives from every philanthropic agency with the queen at the head.

The work in the capital city, Sofia, which is sheltering 30,000 of the Macedonian refugees is similar to that undertaken on a smaller scale by every Bulgarian city. Sofia has been divided into six sections, each in charge of a committee of citizens responsible to the central Red Cross committee.

Each district committee has made a house-to-house canvass of its district to ascertain the exact status of every inhabitant.

While the relief workers have necessarily centered their time and means on alleviating immediate distress, the Bulgarians have not forgotten that there must be some constructive plan for future action. There is plenty of work to be done everywhere, especially in the country, where the farms have been abandoned and the agricultural products allowed to go to waste.

THE REMEDY.

Harper's: Mrs. Ray had just engaged a new nursemaid for her baby. One morning, shortly after the girl's arrival, she appeared before her mistress and said:

"Please, ma'am, I don't know what's the matter with the baby, but he cries and cries and cries. I can do nothing to quiet him."

Mrs. Ray was lost in thought for a moment. Suddenly she brightened up and replied:

"I know what is is, Minnie. Baby's last nurse was a colored girl. You will find the stove polish on the third shelf of the kitchen closet."
